'Little Steel' Pay Increase Indorsed by WLB Panel

Union Maintenance, Dues Checkoff Also Backed in Report To Full Board

A fact-finding report showing strong support for a substantial wage increase for 157,000 workers in "Little Steel" was made public last night by the War Labor Board.

Maintenance of union membership and a company checkoff of union dues in the hitherto "open shop" plants of the four companies comprising the "Little Steel" group was also indorsed. The report—67 pages long—represents four months of work by a three-man panel appointed by the board.

The dispute was certified to the board last February after the four companies were unable to reach an agreement with the United Steel Workers of America, C. I. O., on the union's demand for $1 a day wage increase, union shop and checkoff for the steel workers. Action by the board along the lines indicated by the panel would represent a major victory for the union.

No Pay Recommendation

Although the panel made no recommendation as to the amount of the wage increase, it presented figures to show that the companies are able to pay the $1 a day increase and that the usually well-paid steel workers are not as well off today, in comparison with workers in durable goods industries, as they were last year. At the same time, the panel pointed out that the cost of living in steel towns has increased 12.3 per cent since the last general increase in steel wages—10 cents an hour in April, 1941. The full $1-a-day increase would amount to a wage boost of 12½ per cent.

Any increase granted to "Little Steel" would probably be extended to the 450,000 workers in the rest of the steel industry who receive substantially the same wages.

The four companies are Bethlehem Steel Corp., Republic Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., and Inland Steel Co. On the panel are Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York State board of mediation, representing the public; Cyrus S. Ching, vice president of the United States Rubber Co., representing employers, and Richard T. Frankensteen, organization director of the United Automobile Workers aircraft division, representing labor.

A total of 2500 pages of testimony was taken by the panel in the course of hearings. At the request of Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., who is also president of the United Steel Workers, the board decided to make any wage adjustment retroactive to the dates of certification to quiet unrest in the steel plants arising out of prolonged consideration of the disputes.

The panel split three ways on union security, with Meyer advancing maintenance of membership combined with the checkoff, Ching regarding any form of union security as unnecessary and Frankensteen dissenting in favor of the

A toy wagon race between two newsboys ended in death late yesterday for Robert Gomes, 14, of 38 Sixteenth Street Southeast, when he swerved his vehicle into the path of a truck, according to police. The accident occurred in the 200 block of Tennessee Avenue Northeast and was the District's fifty-sixth traffic fatality of the year.

The other boy, whom hospital attendants could identify only as "Steinmeyer," was not injured, although his wagon also was struck.

The driver of the truck, according to police, was Roland S. Padgett, 20, of 1810 Minnesota Avenue Southeast, employed by the Edmonds Art Stone Co., 2125 Queens Chapel Road Northeast.

The dead boy's parents are Caesar and Catherine Gomes. The father is employed at the torpedo plant in Alexandria, police said. Robert had just graduated this year from the Holy Comforter School, 1357 East Capitol Street.

Padgett was not held, but was ordered to appear at a coroner's inquest which probably will be held today.

Still Senate Hurdles to Clear

One of the worst legislative log-jams in history, threatening key Government agencies with a penniless July, started yielding last night under spur of a night session in an Administration drive for swift clearance.

With only 24 hours to go to the fiscal year's end, eight major appropriation bills still were trapped in the jam, but leaders said all but three of these could be sped to the White House before nightfall.

Still deadlocked in conference, beyond hope of early passage, was the $680,000,000 Agriculture appropriation bill, resisting every Administration effort to budge it.

On another, the $1,810,437,615 supplemental defense bill, carrying funds for OPA and 18 other war agencies, the House drove into night session. The House will vote today, but the Senate has not held hearings on the bill.

On a third, the Labor-Federal Security bill, separate votes today in House and Senate will determine the fate of the Civilian Conservation Corps and whether this bill clears Congress before the fiscal year's end.

The biggest appropriation bill in history, carrying $42,820,000,000 for attainment of the President's 1942-43 War Department production goals, meanwhile was slated for early action today on a loaded Senate docket.

Senate passage of the measure, reported only yesterday, was put over until today when Senate Minority Leader McNary objected to "unduly hasty" consideration. McNary said the War Department had $35,779,000,000 in appropriations, and insisted Senators be given time to read and study the bill overnight.

Of the nine money bills hanging fire when Congress opened its "clean-up drive," only one was sped to the White House—the 33-million-dollar second 1942 deficiency bill—but the House placed four others on the doorstep of the Senate for final action today.

Army to Try 8 Saboteurs Landed by Sub

Death Almost Certain; Biddle Sees Stimson, Judge Advocate General

By Joseph Short
Washington Bureau Chicago Sun

Eight would-be Nazi saboteurs, landed from German submarines, will be turned over to military authorities for court martial and almost certain execution, it was indicated last night in high quarters.

In a formal statement, Attorney General Francis Biddle disclosed that he had been in consultation during the day with Secretary of War Stimson, Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, Army judge advocate general, and other Justice and War Department officials.

Departments In Agreement

"The two departments," Biddle said, "are in substantial agreement upon the steps to be taken in the prosecution of the eight German saboteurs who were apprehended by the FBI shortly after landing on our coasts from Nazi submarines."

"A further and more detailed announcement concerning this matter may be expected within the next 48 hours," the Attorney General added.

Under present plans, it was understood, the detailed statement will disclose that the civil authorities are handing the agents over to a military court.

This would mean that satisfactory evidence has been established that the Nazis were military men and subject to military jurisdiction. Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said they were wearing naval uniforms when they landed in two groups from submarines off the coasts of Long Island and Florida. The agents were arrested in Chicago and New York.

Biddle previously had announced cancellation of all appointments for 48 hours to give exclusive attention to the case, while in Congress Representative William T. Pheiffer (Republican), of New York, demanded the mandatory death penalty for all those who give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Military Leave Denied Police, Firemen Here

Navy, Coast Guard Will Cooperate in Keeping Them on Jobs

The District Commissioners yesterday put a stop to the growing practice of policemen and firemen leaving their jobs to enter the armed forces when they voted to discontinue the custom of granting military leave.

Since late in 1941, the Commissioners have watched the city's police and firemen join the Navy and Coast Guard. A total of 102 policemen and 65 firemen have gone into these branches of the services.

Many prominent citizens and organizations became alarmed about the safety of the Nation's Capital, and last Friday Commissioners Young and Mason conferred with Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and Vice Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard, and exacted their promise that no more members of the two Washington departments would be accepted without "military leave" letters from the Commissioners.

Deferment Previously Granted

Previously, Selective Service officials had agreed to defer any registrants among policemen or firemen on occupational grounds, and this combination of moves apparently has closed the service doors, with the exception of United States Army enlistment.

Commissioner Mason said last night that overtures already had been made to Secretary of War Stimson and that the Army was expected to fall into line soon.

He pointed out that the letters granting military leave amounted to nothing more than a gesture on the part of the Commissioners because action of Congress last year incorporated into the Selective Service Act a clause which provided that enlistees—as well as previously included draftees—were entitled to reemployment at their old jobs if they applied in good physical and mental condition within 40 days after demobilization.

According to Commissioner Mason, Admiral Waesche frankly admitted that the Coast Guard had recruited among the policemen and firemen because they were well-trained men who gave exceptional performance as guards at ports of debarkation.

Missing Link Uncovered

Gun Used by Sniper Found In Time for Eklund's Trial

The missing link in the case against John Eugene Eklund—the pistol used in the 1940 "sniper slayings"—has been recovered by police and will be introduced as evidence in the current retrial of the 27-year-old former college student.

The disclosure came yesterday as selection of a jury at last was completed, after six days of effort, in District Court.

Recovery of the weapon resulted from information supplied by a man who became friendly with Eklund while both were in the District Jail.

Completion of the jury's impanelment to try Eklund on charges of killing Hyland McClaine, 17, one of the victims of a mysterious "sniper" who terrorized Washington's Negro population with his night-time shooting, required questioning of 270 Washingtonians by attorneys for both sides. All but 14—seven men, five women and two male alternates—were rejected.

Most of the rejections were made because the prospective jurors either had already formed opinions as to the guilt or innocence of the youthful defendant or were opposed to

Our Bombers Smash Every Plane on Isle, All Buildings

By Walter Clausen
Associated Press Staff Writer

Headquarters Hawaiian Air Force, T. H., June 29.—Striking in the brilliant light of a full moon, U. S. Army bombers loosed a devastating raid last Saturday night on Japanese-held Wake Island. Their bombs "leveled everything on the surface."

Headquarters of the Hawaiian Air Force announced the raid today after all of the planes had returned to their base. The number of bombers that participated in the long-range attack was not disclosed. There were no American casualties and only one plane received any damage, that being minor and resulting from a shell fragment.

[Dispatches by the International News Service describing the raid called it the longest over-water bombing mission in history. Wake Island lies about 2000 miles west of Hawaii, it was pointed out.—Editor's note.]

Bombing crews are extremely anxious to carry on the offensive against Japan's installations in the western Pacific as a result of this successful raid. It was the second attack on the islands since the Japanese seized it at high cost last December 23. The first was last February 24 by naval planes from an American task force which pounded shore installations to bits, damaged the landing area and wreck several small boats.

Operated Under Nimitz

(In announcing last Saturday's raid the Navy Department in Washington explained that the Army bombers operated under the general direction of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as supreme commander in the mid-Pacific area.)

"We leveled everything on the surface and crippled this Japanese stepping stone in the Pacific at least until the Japs can repair the damage and fly in new planes," Col. Art W. Meehan, who piloted one of the bombers, said. Meehan is a former quarterback at West Point.

"We gave them everything we took over and all our planes returned without casualties. Only one plane was hit, by a fragment of antiaircraft.

"Credit was shared by all who went on the mission but we cannot disclose all the names. I would give the most credit to the navigators who made a perfect flight like picking up a handkerchief in the ocean.

"In fact, it probably was the longest range over-water bombing flight ever achieved. The naviga-

Germans Held Off at Kursk, Gain 'Somewhat' At Sevastopol

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow (Tuesday), June 30. The Red army smashed wave after wave of German tank attacks in the Kursk sector, north of Kharkov, yesterday but was forced to yield some ground to reinforced German forces in the battle for besieged Sevastopol, the Russian midnight communique said today.

The high command indicated the German offensive in both these sectors was increasing in violence, particularly around the Crimean naval stronghold where the communique disclosed new German reserves were being used.

"On the Sevastopol sector," the communique said, "our troops repulsed frequent attacks of superior forces of the enemy. The enemy put new reserves into the battle. With heavy losses, the enemy succeeded in advancing somewhat. The battles are extremely fierce."

Throwing in Tanks, Planes

The high command said:

"The German command, trying to break down Sevastopol resistance, is throwing in more and more tanks and aircraft."

In the Kursk sector, 200 miles south of Moscow, where the Germans started a big offensive Sunday, "a large number of enemy tank attacks" were repulsed with heavy losses, the communique said.

The Soviet information bureau issued a special communique today denying the claim made by the Germans yesterday that they had captured 30,000 Russian troops on the Volkhov front, south of Leningrad.

The communique said there had been heavy fighting in this sector earlier this month and that both sides had suffered heavy losses, but the Germans were said to have lost "no less than 30,000 killed alone" while the Red Army lost only about 10,000 killed and 10,000 missing.

(A military commentator in London said "the main German offensive" opened with the Kursk attack.

Enemy's Version

(The German high command said 15 tanks were destroyed around Kharkov in attacks east of the Donets River. The Nazis claimed to have crossed the Tchernaja Valley and infiltered to Sapun Hill—a natural defense promontory southeast of Sevastopol. The Germans said that 15,667 prisoners had been taken at Sevastopol between June 7 and 28 and that 900 Russians were killed and 332 captured on the central front. Big German guns were said to be shelling factories in Leningrad.

But Guerillas Fight On

Vengeful Japs Raze Cebu, Philippine City of 100,000

By the Associated Press

Japanese vengeance forces have razed Cebu, second city of the Philippines, Lieut. Col. Carlos P. Romulo of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian staff, reported on his arrival here yesterday.

The town of about 100,000 was leveled May 22 in reprisal for continued guerilla activity by Cebu civilians, Col. Romulo reported. The Japanese later broadcast to all the Philippines that the Cebu action was a warning against further guerilla activity.

"Even the women were sniping at Japanese occupation forces," Romulo said. "They could not stop them. Burning the town will not stop them either."

Colonel Romulo is in Washington on a secret mission for General MacArthur. He conferred with officials of the Philippine Commissioner's office and President Quezon's staff. He was recently awarded the Pulitzer Prize for "distinguished correspondence" when he was editor of the Philippine Herald before the war.

The Japanese, immediately after landing on Luzon, put a price on his head for the prewar articles which forecast their moves in the Pacific.

New Zealand Troops, More U. S. Fliers Join Desert Battle

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, June 29.—Great Britain's desert army, reinforced by United States planes and fliers and by fresh New Zealand troops, fought stubbornly tonight in a funnel-shaped area east of Matruh after that strongpoint was evacuated for terrain which the British command considered more advantageous.

As the details of the battle began to reach here, it became known that there was no fighting in Matruh itself and that all supplies were removed or destroyed before the Axis forces entered the town, which is 175 miles west of Alexandria. It was understood that the British never had any intention of making a stand at Matruh.

They withdrew quickly to the east and were followed by advance units of Marshal Erwin Rommel's mechanized army, creating a funnel-shaped spearhead near the Mediterranean coast which tonight was being jabbed along the sides by British columns.

Panzers Reported at Fuka

A dispatch filed by Harry Crockett, Associated Press correspondent with the British army said the British were planning all-out defense about 45 to 50 miles east of Matruh in the region between the coast and the great Qattara Depression.

"The battle of Egypt is on in full force," Crockett messaged.

Later the correspondent filed a second brief dispatch.

"We expect big developments in the next few days," he said. "The British are confident they can hold the line toward which the German Twenty-first and Fifteenth Panzer Divisions are driving."

[According to the International News Service, Axis tanks have battered their way 50 miles past Matruh to attack the airdrome at Fuka. The land battle was centered in the Fuka area, but it was believed in Cairo that the major British stand would be at El Daba, 75 miles east of Matruh.]

Bolstering Defense

[The United Press quoted British Press dispatches from Egypt as saying Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, British commander, might withdraw all the way to Alexandria before making another stand.

[Press dispatches to London newspapers from Cairo said that "thousands" of United States troops with "enormous" quantities of equipment were reported to have arrived in Egypt.]

The announcement tonight that new American air reinforcements had arrived and that more were being rushed up indicated every effort was being made to bolster the

4 More Ships Sunk With Loss Of 21 Lives

14 of 18 in Crew Of Seagoing Tug Lost When Craft Hits Mine

By International News Service

Enemy action has sent four more United Nations ships to the bottom and taken a toll of 21 lives, the Navy disclosed yesterday.

Three of the ships were torpedoed. The fourth was blown up by an underwater explosion, which survivors believed was caused by an enemy mine.

The latest sinking revealed was that of a large American seagoing tug which sank in the Atlantic last Wednesday with a loss of 14 members of her crew of 18. The four survivors, landed at an East Coast port, were positive the explosion was external and caused by a mine. They were picked up by a Navy rescue craft within 40 minutes of the explosion.

The four men told how they were tossed high in the air by the terrific blast and how the ship disappeared from sight. They reported four lookouts were on duty and none had spotted a submarine or a torpedo, leading to the conclusion a mine had wrecked the vessel.

Rescue Ships Also Sunk

Thirty-one other rescued men, members of the crew of a Norwegian ship, had survived two torpedoings within two days. The crew's two lifeboats were picked up by a Yugoslav vessel, only to be put overside again when torpedoes crashed into the rescue ship.

Two men were lost from each of the Norwegian and Yugoslav vessels, survivors reported.

Three American seamen of a crew of 36 were lost when a single Axis torpedo struck a medium-sized United States merchant ship. The 33 survivors, including the skipper, Conrad Nilsen, were landed at an East Coast port after being picked up by a patrol vessel.

The torpedo struck the ship between the engine and boiler room, the skipper reported, scattering debris in all directions. The captain was thrown against a steel bulkhead but recovered in time to direct abandoning of the ship.

A heavy list to port made lowering of lifeboats difficult and one liferaft was used. The crew was not able to repair the ship's damage, but

Churchill Faces Libyan Debate 'Confidently'

BULLETIN

London (Tuesday), June 30 (AP).—Bremen again was bombed by the R. A. F.—the third time in five nights that Britain's big bombers have struck at the Nazi port and submarine base—the Berlin radio announced today.

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, June 29.—Winston Churchill confidently prepared tonight to defend his government and his dual role as Prime Minister and Defense Minister against parliamentary opposition strengthened by the Axis capture of Matruh, the Egyptian strongpoint.

Political experts said only a catastrophe in Egypt would produce more than 20 or so votes for Conservative Sir John Wardlaw-Milne's motion of "no confidence."

Sensation Expected

It was hinted that Churchill could make a startling announcement of one of the fundamental reasons for the defeats in Libya and Egypt.

The political situation was complicated by the British and American promise to divert German strength from Russia, presumably by opening a second front.

A second front would be a strategic luxury if the Allies hold in Africa and South Russia, but would become a necessity should Egypt fall or the Germans crash through to the Caucasus. Either event might force the opening of a western front sooner than expected.

Churchill's answer to the growing demand that he relinquish his role as defense minister could be that the twin tasks he now performs are undertaken by President Roosevelt, Josef Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek. He is expected to say that no man can be Prime Minister during war unless he also is Minister of Defense.

Should Churchill give ground after the debate, it appeared likely that he might announce the creation of a general staff long advocated by the powerful Times and influential groups in Parliament.

New Americans Register Today

As Army Expands

Youths, 18-20, Register Today; Married Men Face Draft Here

Some Likely to Be Called Up for Army Service in August

Local draft boards will call some married men despite the new Selective Service policy placing them far down the list, because the Army's call on the District will be heavier in August than ever before, it was learned yesterday.

Married men with working wives, who had taken draft board physical examinations before the new orders were announced last week, will be called up for induction in August, it was said.

It was explained that these men probably would have been called in the fall anyway to meet stepped-up Army demands.

Family men have been taken only in isolated cases and under recent orders will be the last to be called.

Married men who have not had local board physical examinations need not expect to be called until September, at the earliest, Selective Service officials said.

Men with dependents with whom they do not maintain a family relationship will be called before

See SELECT, Page 12, Column 1.

3 Million or More Expected to Enroll Throughout Nation

Three million or more youths from 18 to 20 years old will register for Selective Service today, completing the listing of the Nation's man power for possible war duty.

The fifth Nation-wide draft registration will round out the official roster of some 43 million men in the United States from 18 to 65.

The 20-year-olds signing up today will be subject to military service and it is likely that many will be summoned within a few weeks to swell the ranks of the expanding armed forces.

Those in the 18 and 19-year-old brackets are not liable to service at present and an amendment to the Selective Service law would be necessary before they could be drafted. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, has indicated that it may be necessary to call these youths later.

The latest group was defined by Presidential proclamation as men born on or after January 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924.

Rubber Campaign Extended 10 Days

A dismal Nation-wide total of 219,000 tons of scrap rubber collected in President Roosevelt's personally sponsored campaign forshadowed general gasoline rationing today after the Chief Executive expressed his disappointment and declared a 10-day extension of the drive.

Interior Secretary Ickes, with caustic belligerence, accused people of "hoarding rubber" and said "there may even be people in official life" who are holding out.

There seems little doubt in official circles that—in the event the 10-day period of grace does not produce a sizable scrap-pile for Uncle Sam to reclaim—the gasoline situation will get worse before it gets better.

Gneisenau Believed 'Out for Duration'

Out An Hour

JOAN TESCH

By the Associated Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 29.—An airplane with an unconscious girl pilot inside circled the Ann Arbor City Airport crazily for an hour last night while spectators below watched in frozen fright.

Miss Joan Tesh, 19, of Ann Arbor, an employe of the Willow Run bomber plane, took the ship aloft in the early evening and fainted while still in the air.

With the rudder and elevator so it would go in approximately level circles, the plane continued to fly. Robert Young, an airport instructor, took another ship up and saw that Miss Tresh was unconscius at the controls. Dwight Reynolds, airport manager, confirmed the fear, but was helpless.

For almost 60 minutes, Reynolds said, the plane continued its wild perambulations. Then the girl revived.

Two efforts at landing were unsuccessful, and as she was about to try a third her gasoline supply ran out. She glided the plane to a stop in a field at Ellsworth Road and State, striking a fence in the effort.

Miss Tesh stepped out of the cabin, uninjured, and fainted again. She was treated for shock in St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital today.

The plane was injured only slightly. The girl had four hours of solo flying time before last night.

Air Photos Show Turrets Dismantled, Deck Ripped Out

By the Associated Press

London, June 29.—Photographs made by reconnaissance planes showed tonight the German battleship Gneisenau was so badly damaged that three 11-inch gun main turrets had to be dismantled and 30 feet of forecastle deck removed, leading to the British belief that she "may be out for the duration."

The 26,000-ton Gneisenau has been removed from Kiel to Gdynia, former Polish port, where the air ministry said it would be impossible to make large-scale repairs required to put her back into service.

The damage was inflicted, the air ministry said, in R. A. F. attacks on Brest and during the dash of the Nazi fleet from that French port through the Channel.

The photographs were made in daylight after an attack on Kiel February 25.

Probably Hit Again

They showed the German depot ship Monte Olivia or a liner of the same class burned out. The Gneisenau was moored near this vessel and the air ministry said "it is most probable that she also was hit on that night."

The R. A. F.'s growing offensive against Germany centered today on the important railway junction of HTazebrouck in northern France following night raids in which the work shops and port facilities of the submarine base at St. Nazaire were bombed.

The British lost five planes over Hazebrouck, but shot down three German craft. A few dozen bombers were sent against St. Nazaire.

The British announced that two German planes were destroyed during the night, one by the Czech night fighter ace, Karel Kuttelwascher, who now has an official bag of 13 night bombers and 6 others.

One British bomber was missing after the St. Nazaire raid and sweep over German airfields and railways in northern France.

The Nazi air force, in retaliation, struck for 40 minutes at the southwest coast resort own of Weston-Super-Mare, causing a number of casualties.

It was the second straight night for raids on the British southwest coast, but the government indicated the raids were insignificant in comparison with the R. A. F.'s.

Two Nazi planes were reported shot down last night and one Saturday night.

British Leave Matruh to Axis Forces

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

U. S. ARMY AIR FORCES HELP WAVERING BRITISH—Axis forces (black arrows) under the generalship of Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel captured Matruh (1) yesterday, British outpost on the path to Alexandria (2) and the Suez Canal (3). Meanwhile more United States Army Air Force fliers and planes arrived to blast Rommel. Troop reinforcements from New Zealand were also reported to have joined the battle for Egypt

British Reinforced in Desert Battle

British Eighth Army.

Shortly afterward it was disclosed that fresh troops also had been thrown into the battle, including the New Zealand units.

Rommel's greatest problem now is his distance from supplies, especially gasoline for his tanks and armored vehicles. The Germans captured some food, vehicles and shells at Tobruk, but almost all the fuel there was set afire.

The German claim that they "stormed" Matruh caused amusement in Cairo, since the fort there was denuded of men and materials and was only a dummy to make him use up his supplies.

Ship Claim Also False

The two ships which the Axis claimed to have set afire in Matruh Harbor were disabled vessels which had been there for the last year for the express purpose of baiting bombers.

The decisive struggle churned and crashed over a wide expanse of the Egyptian desert with the chief prize Alexandria, Britain's naval base in the eastern Mediterranean and a keystone in the United Nations' defenses.

U. S. Army bombers and the R. A. F. attacked enemy tanks and supply columns throughout the day and night, while on land mobile British artillery pounded vigorously at the advancing Axis Africa corps in a desperate attempt to stem the tide.

Great fires of gasoline dumps, set aflame between Matruh and Salum flared as the Allied fliers strove mightily to cripple Marshal Rommel's tenuous supply lines.

The decisive battle ranged over a vast brown wasteland and it was apparent that both the Germans and British were more intent upon destroying each other than upon holding any particular point.

The bottleneck of hard desert floor, between the Mediterranean and the Quattara depression narrows to about 45 miles at a point some 50 miles east of Matruh and it appeared possible that the Eighth Army might attempt a stand there. Strong defense positions, too, were prepared at El Daba, 75 miles east of Matruh.

British Spar for Time

(It appeared to informed London observers that Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck was playing for all it was worth his best chance of saving Alexandria and the Nile—a gradual retirement of his main forces, using limited mobile groups to spar furiously with Nazi Marshal Rommel's advance columns until reinforcements can arrive.

(Possibly he can pull his strength together for a stand on the shortened line from El Daba to the Quattara depression. From El Daba to Alexandria it is some 100 miles around Arab's gulf.

(Axis communiques announced the capture of Matruh, with 6000 troops, 36 tanks and "numerous" guns and trucks. Berlin previously claimed the British suffered a heavy defeat south of Matruh.

[From Cario dispatches it was apparent that the battle, fought as it was beneath the full Egyptian moon as well as in the terrible heat of the day, was unlike any other yet joined.

[It has been going on without a break since 5 p. m. Saturday, Rommel's favorite hour for attack. Then the Axis commander, taking advantage of the glare of the sun in the defender's eyes, struck at the British positions southwest of Matruh.

[Swiftly the combat developed into fast moving fights between tanks and mobile artillery, the latter being shifted from position to position, the better to strike at opposing tanks.

[Mobile infantry has been used in the main to occupy points after rounding up prisoners.

[The full moon permitted the battle to go on throughout the night with scarcely any drop in intensity, but it produced curious shadow effects which offered baffling new problems to gunners and tank crews.

[One of the major encounters was a moonlight tank battle in the refreshing cool of the desert night, giving the exhausted combatants greater spirit and energy to carry on.

(Intense air activity continued day and night. The Germans appeared to have drawn a great part of their air strength from Europe for the attack.

(Alexandria was bombed by the Axis air force this morning, but with no decisive result.

(The Luftwaffe now has desert bases within 200 miles of Alexandria, but there is another more ominous threat—the German parachute corps training grounds in Crete. A spokesman for the Greek government in London said that thousands of air infantrymen had been moved into Crete this month and that aircraft stationed on the island had been considerably reinforced. The Crete air bases are within 400 miles of Alexandria.)

Russians Hold New Nazi Drive

The Nazis said nothing of the Kursk fighting.)

The new German drive at Kursk was pointed like a dagger at Voronezh on the west bank of the Don and about midway on the vital Moscow-to-Rostov Railway. Voronezh was 120 miles from the front and if Marshal Fedor von Bock could reach it, he would be in a position to drive either south toward the Caucasus or north toward the capital. A major advance would certainly outflank the Russian armies of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko deployed between Rostov and Kharkov.

Attesting to heavy German casualties in the Crimea, an earlier Russian communique declared 25 German field hospitals had been opened at Simferopol to handle "the heavy flow of wounded."

The latest word from the Kupyansk front, south of Kharkov, was that the Russians still were counterattacking with some success. The German drive there was reported definitely blunted.

Bribe Attempted To Halt Soldier's Transfer, Says FBI

Miami, Fla., June 29 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today announced the arrest of two Russian-born naturalized citizens at Miami Beach on charges of attempting to bribe an Army officer.

R. G. Danner, FBI agent in charge, said Nathan Gunsberg, 46, part owner of the Tides Hotel at Miami Beach, and Bernard Sharon, 34, beach garage owner, were arrested after Sharon paid $150 to an Army major.

The money, Danner said, was intended to obtain approval for an Army private to be kept permanently at the air forces school at Miami Beach and avoid transfer to another station.

The FBI said the private was to pay $500 to the men in exchange for getting his transfer deferred and they in turn planned to make $350 off the deal, paying only $150 to the officer who arranged it.

The major turned them in, Danner said.

Training Planes Crash In Midair; Two Killed

Columbus, Miss., June 29 (AP).—Two student pilots were killed and two others jumped to safety today when their Army training ships collided at 2000 feet.

Listed as dead were Cadet Raeburn F. Gordon, 26, Farmville, Va., and Cadet Forest J. Johnston, 20, North Hollywood, Calif. Occupants of the other plane, Cadet Hoover Edward, 27, Philadelphia, Miss., and Desmond N. Fairbairn, 20, Easton, Pa., bailed out and escaped unhurt.

tion was so excellent that it amazed me, and I would have said it couldn't be done when they hit the corner of the tiny island as they said they would."

(Wake is 2000 nautical miles due west of Hawaii.)

Meehan added:

"We were one minute out when the first burst of antiaircraft fire just beneath us rocked the squadron, this being the nearest shot the Japs got at us. I was over the targets for five minutes. It was a beautiful sight like the Fourth of July on Coney Island, only not so peaceful. They had plenty of fortifications but couldn't see us and missed their mark.

"When we came over the island it was the most beautiful sight I ever saw. There was perfect moonlight and it was clear, after being overcast all the way over. We hit all our targets, set the main building afire, leveled everything on the surface. One plane started to take off from Wake but didn't get far. Two others got into the air and one tailed us but didn't attempt to attack.

"I don't think they'll get any more planes off from there for some time, and I don't think we left any for them to take off with.

"I never saw such enthusiastic crews, all raring to go and ready to carry this offensive to all the Jap islands. We dropped our bombs from a medium level. There were no lights showing and the Japs seemed slow to go into antiaircraft action after the first burst, but when they did, everything lit up."

Lieut. T. N. Warren, Macon, Ga., one of the navigators, said: "I'm ready to start out again tonight."

Gen. Young to Act As Transport Liaison

The War Department announced yesterday that Brig. Gen. Charles D. Young, director of procurement and distribution, Services of Supply, has been relieved of active duty with the Army and will become assistant director of the Office of Defense Transportation.

General Young, a former vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has reached the Army statutory retirement age. In his new civilian job, it was said, he will act as liaison between the War Department and the OCD and the WPB.

Sidelights of the War

British Making Tommy Guns To Arm Europe's Patriots

London, June 29 (AP).—The British are producing an $8 sub-machine gun to arm saboteurs and patriots expected to help the Allies open a second front in Europe, it was disclosed today.

The weapon, which looks like a dime-store version of the tommy gun, can shoot 9-millimeter German, Italian and French ammunition and has already been tested in commando raids on the French coast.

Fitted with a magazine holding 32 rounds, the gun can fire at a rate above 500 rounds a minute, is effective up to 200 yards and has a useful life of more than 5000 rounds.

Eight magazines go with each gun and when loaded they weigh only 8 pounds. The guns will be easy to sow in occupied countries by parachute or by ordinary smuggling.

The gun is called the "Sten," a word used to conceal its designers' real names. One ordnance factory already is producing them at the rate of three a minute.

Nazis Show Fears

London, June 29 (AP).—Fearing an uprising in the event of an Allied invasion of the continent, the German government has been attempting to set up new and stable governments in the Netherlands and Belgium, but has been rebuffed by King Leopold of the Belgians and by Dutch leaders, Belgian government sources said today.

The Nazis proposed that King Leopold indorse Rexist Leader Leon Degrelle as head of a new government or, if he were not acceptable, some other person, it was said.

"Our information is that the King persisted in the attitude that he is a prisoner of war and declined to discuss or have anything to do with the proposition," this source said.

The Foe We Face

Chicago, June 29 (U.P.).—Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos of the exiled Greek government was on his way to Washington tonight after revealing here that more than 1000 Britons were slaughtered by the Nazis on Crete to terrify inhabitants after the German conquest.

Dutch Up

London, June 29 (INS).—Another contingent of Netherlands soldiers, trained in Canada, has arrived in England, it was announced today.

The group included Netherlands nationals from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Argentina and Netherlands East Indies.

Not Having Some

Stockholm, Sweden, June 29 (AP).—In the second anti-Nazi riot within a week in Sweden, more than 1000 persons broke up an attempt to hold a Nazi meeting yesterday in Raetvik, 150 miles northeast of Stockholm.

Their Master's Voice

San Francisco, June 29 (INS).—French Premier Pierre Laval and Admiral Darlan have been summoned to Paris for discussions with German officials, the Moscow radio declared tonight.

Quoting a report received from Geneva, the radio said the subject of the discussions is presumed to be the transfer of the French navy to Germany.

India Must Go As Britain Goes, Untouchable Says

Bombay, June 29 (INS).—India must stand or fall with Britain, Bhimrac Ramji Ambedkar, leader of India's estimated 70 million "untouchables," said today in an exclusive interview.

"Some say Japanese rule would be no worse than British rule," he said, "but we don't want to start all over with the Japs.

"With the help of America, our march toward independence might be accelerated. After the war I don't think Britain would need much pressure. Therefore Britain should be supported now."

Ambedkar was asked how he could rise to become a famous barrister and member of the National Assembly, having been born an "untouchable."

"Ordinarily an untouchable cannot rise," he replied. "I did by a series of purely lucky accidents. I am still 'untouchable' but that doesn't matter to Hindus when they're in trouble and know I am a good lawyer. But the same people wouldn't have me to their homes."

Ambedkar heads the Independent Labor Party.

Nazi Toll of Jews Put at Million

London, June 29 (AP).—The British section of the World Jewish Congress estimated today that more than one million Jews have been killed or died as the result of ill treatment in countries dominated by Germany.

Officials said that 700,000 Jews had lost their lives in Poland and Lithuania and 125,000 in Rumania, while additional deaths had been reported in other Nazi-controlled areas.

House Acts Today On Funds for OPA

Bill Cuts Request Of Henderson Agency To $75,000,000

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

In an emergency overtime session, the House last night heard the Office of Price Administration roundly criticized for "inefficiency" and "snooping," then voted to meet at 10 a. m. today to act on a 75 million dollar appropriation for the OPA, and other funds for the war work of Federal agencies totaling $1,735,487,615.47.

Before the night session closed at 9:10 o'clock, members described the OPA organization, variously, as a return to the prohibition type of control and a gigantic "commissar crowd." Earlier, the other side of the Capitol heard Senator Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina call for "repeal," while Senator George (Democrat) of Georgia warned that the price-fixing program will be "blown to smithereens" because wages and raw materials are not under price ceilings.

House discussion of the embattled OPA grew out of an Appropriations Committee report which cut the agency from 210 million dollars it had sought through the Budget Bureau to 75 million. The Budget Bureau had approved 161 million, and a House Appropriations Subcommittee had scaled it down to 95 million.

Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee said last night that he expected no further effort on the House floor to cut the agency more. Representative Taber (Republican) of New York said in the evening debate that in his opinion there would be better administration if the agency were given 30 million.

Warnings that the committee slashes in OPA funds endangered the national rent control program came from the office of Leon Henderson, OPA Administrator. Henderson said the problem of rent control and its "highly emphatic" relation to the cost of living "was not made evident to the committee." Paul A. Porter, deputy OPA chief in charge of rents, said the fund cut threatened to wreck the rent control program intended to save tenants up to a billion dollars a year.

Funds for 32,000 Employes

Cannon told the House that the reduced appropriation would give the OPA about 32,000 employes. Henderson's original estimate had called for 90,000. Cannon said, however, that much of the work could be done by volunteers.

Fear that the OPA might prove too great, and place on Congress the responsibility for failure of price control was expressed by Representative Patman (Democrat) of Texas, but Cannon said Congress could vote more funds if that danger developed.

Representative Taber charged that the OPA had been filled up with "derelicts from the war" and "leeches on the body politic" and declared the Administration was "very inefficient." He said that Henderson had sought to load the agency with lawyers, and criticized the rent administrator for picking employes "without any real estate experience or any experience whatever."

(Representative Ditter (Republican) of Pennsylvania described the OPA as made up of "master crackdown artists like so many commissars," while Representative Dworshak (Republican) of Idaho asked whether "the system of thousands of snoopers" would not retard the war effort.

BEW Included

Both Taber and Representative Wigglesworth (Republican) of Massachusetts included the Board of Economic Warfare and the President's emergency fund in their criticism, declaring the board operates in fields covered by other agencies, and urging stricter use of the President's fund for war items of confidential or emergency nature.

An additional 100 million for the President's fund is included in the bill, labeled the First Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Bill for 1943. Other funds in the measure include:

War Shipping Administration, 1100 million dollars; Smaller War Plants Corp. (capital stock), 150 million; Office of Scientific Research and Development, 73 million; War Relocation Authority, 70 million; War Production Board, $68,546,300; Civilian Pilot Training, $36,677,450; Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs $28,638,000; Office of Censorship, $26,500,000; Board of Economic Warfare, $13,818,000; Federal Bureau of Investigation, $9,200,00; Office of Civilian Defense, $7,447,075; Office of Defense Transportation, $7,216,515; flight strips, five million dollars; miscellaneous national war agencies, $20,594,000; other national defense items, $18,762,085.

British, Reds Sign Financial Accord

Moscow (Tuesday), June 30.—Great Britain and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement providing for financing of British military supplies sent to Russia, the Moscow radio announced today.

The agreement was signed June 27 in Moscow by the British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, and A. I. Mikoyan, Soviet foreign trade commissar.

Under the agreement British military supplies will be delivered to the Soviet Union on a lease-lend basis.

League of Nations Members Paid Up 100%

Wellesley, Mass., June 29 (AP).—Carl J. Hambro, president of the Assembly of the League of Nations and head of the Norwegian Parliament in exile, said today that all the countries in the League were "sticking to it and paying their annual contributions."

"This includes," he said in an interview, "not only Vichy France, which paid in full in 1940 and 1941, but even the occupied countries which have paid their dues without interruption."

Hambro is here to address the New England Institute of International Relations.

Plane, Tank and Ship Goals Will Be Met, Nelson Predicts

By the Associated Press

Congress received an optimistic report from Donald M. Nelson yesterday that plane, tank and ship objectives will be met, but that the outlook for the consumer "is very bad."

The chief of the War Production Board made those statements in reviewing the WPB's work before a House Appropriations Subcommittee.

"I believe that we are over the hump," he said, "and from now on it becomes a question of improvement in process, of getting better distribution of raw material and seeing that production is attuned to strategy."

Nelson told the subcommittee that President Roosevelt's goal of 18 million tons of shipping would be met, and added: "We can beat it, if we can get the steel plate." He said he was "certain we will meet the tank objective."

The Government currently is setting up facilities to meet the quota of 125,000 planes next year, he said, adding:

"If we can believe our statistics, we will have enough material to do it. The problem is to get that material in and sinchronize it with production, so that we do not have lags; high inventories in places where they are not needed and shortages where the materials are needed."

Saying that "the outlook for the consumer is very bad," Nelson said the Nation would have enough food and clothing and would be "incomparably better off" than England or Germany. He said that Great Britain's rationing system permitted one suit of clothes a year, along with one or two shirts and one or two suits of underwear.

"But you would have difficulty getting an overcoat, due to their method of rationing. We will not have to go anywhere nearly that far here," he predicted.

But, he added, it may not be possible to have all the kinds of shoes a person might want; new homes can not be built, and there may be insufficient rubber for other than essential auto driving, but "I believe that by some method we will be able to take care of their needs in essential driving; by that I mean getting them to and from work."

Army Speeds Plan to Enroll 20,000 Doctors

Further depletion of medical facilities for civilian communities was made necessary yesterday as the Army announced plans for enrolling 20,000 doctors before the end of the year.

To speed the recruiting of surgeons and physicians into the military service, the War Department has set up local boards to interview applicants, check credentials, hold physical examinations and issue or recommend commissions. It is expected that more than 100 new medical officers will be added to the Army daily under the new drive.

Applicants must be male citizens of the United States or a friendly nation and have graduated from an approved medical school. Those accepted normally are appointed first lieutenants or captains.

Federal Debt Rises 20 Billions in Year

Deficit Spending May Go Even Higher, Morgenthau Says

By Arthur F. DeGreve
United Press Staff Writer

The 1942 fiscal year ends tonight with the Government nearly 20 billions in the "red" for the last 12 months and with the Nation facing the highest taxes in history.

Astronomical figures painting a near-complete picture of the Government's financial operations challenge the imagination. They show:

An estimated public debt in excess of $76,500,000,000 with prospects that this obligation may rise to an unprecedented 130 billion dollars during the coming fiscal year.

Total expenditures of more than $32,560,000,000 of which about 26 billion dollars was war spending.

Receipts totaled about $12,700,000,000.

The deficit as of yesterday was placed at an estimated $19,800,000,000. It is the tenth continuous deficit of the Roosevelt Administration and the largest. It will, however, be dwarfed by the $43,223,000,000 deficit forecast in the budget message for the 1943 fiscal year.

This figure, too, may be revised upward. It is predicated upon the Treasury's original seven billion dollar war revenue program to which later was added another $1,700,000,000. The deficit will mount to the exact proportion of taxes which Congress refuses to impose in this election year.

A bill tentatively approved by the House Ways and Means Committee calls for an additional $5,924,000,000 in increased income, excess profits and excise taxes. It would raise the overall estimated yield from taxpayers to nearly $22,500,000,000.

But the measure falls nearly three billion short of the Treasury program and Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., indicated at a press conference yesterday that he is not satisfied with it.

"Nothing has happened to cause me to change my mind on our proposals—that is, nothing yet," he said.

Meantime, some members of Congress are showing increasing concern over the huge appropriations, notably the 48 billion dollar War Department appropriation bill which would bring to nearly $202,000,000,000 its war and defense commitments since June, 1940.

The magnitude of this single appropriation is brought into focus by War Department disbursements in other wars. In the conflict of 1812 it spent only $20,350,807; in the Mexican war, $38,305,520; in the Civil War, $1,031,323,361; in the Spanish-American War, $229,841,254, and in the first World War, $9,009,075,799.

The appropriation is one billion dollars more than the total cost of World War I.

Alien Discrimination Offensive—Margolius

"To discharge or refuse to hire alien labor is to offend against the stated policy of the Government," Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius told members of the War Law Institute at National University last night.

Condemning abridgment of the rights of aliens even in wartime, Margolius cited as an example of prevalent discrimination a recent announcement by the University of Missouri excluding aliens from its classrooms.

Panel Indorses 'Little Steel' Pay Increase

union shop originally demanded by the union. Frankensteen's dissent was regarded as a mere matter of form to balance Ching's dissent, since Murray had receded from his union shop demand during the hearings.

The steel companies are expected to make a bitter fight against any maintenance of membership plan. Long known as strongholds of the open shop, none has ever signed contracts with a union.

Inland Steel Co. issued a statement calling union maintenance a form of closed shop and indicating that it might challenge the power of the board to impose it. The company said it had filed a statement taking issue with the panel's reasoning on the wage issue. It also declared the panel's report did not contain the "findings of fact," to which the parties to the dispute were entitled.

Chance to Quit Union

With regard to many of the points at issue, it contained only "qualified statements, opinions, beliefs, doubts and argumentative conclusions," the company asserted.

Meyer's union security plan would give all union members an opportunity to withdraw from the union during a two weeks waiting period. Failure of an employe to withdraw during that time would bind him to remain a member of the union for the duration of the contract or lose his job. The 30 per cent of the steel workers who do not belong to the union would not be affected by a union maintenance plan, although they would be required to join under the union shop plan originally asked by the union.

The checkoff would be applied to those employes who have signified their intention of staying in the union. The panel reported that a checkoff would "make shop conditions more peaceful by diminishing friction and eliminating the solicitation of dues."

The decision of the board in this case—its most important—is being awaited as an indication of how the board interprets the wage stabilization plank of the President's seven-point program to hold down the cost of living.

It is expected to hint at the board's attitude toward similar requests for $1 a day wage increases from C. I. O. unions in General Motors, Ford, Aluminum Company of America and other large war industries.

Because the report makes no recommendations, WLB is left with considerable freedom to grant any amount from a token increase of a few cents to the full $1 a day. The board probably will face the steel workers' wrath if the increase is small. If the increase approaches the $1 a day, the board will probably have to defend itself against charges that it has injured the stabilization program.

A public hearing on the report, which may last two days, will start tomorrow in the Hall of Nations, Hotel Washington, at 10 a. m. Each company will receive an hour to present its case, with the union getting four hours. A final decision is expected by July 15.

The panel marshaled an impressive array of figures on the question of ability to pay, to show that the four companies could easily afford to pay the increase demanded. Most of the cost of the increase would be passed on to the Government in the form of reduced excess profits taxes, whether the tax proposals of the House Ways and Means Committee or the Treasury tax proposals are finally adopted, the panel stated.

1942 Earnings Are Cited

Combined 1942 profits of the four companies before payment of Federal taxes were estimated at 200 million dollars, with 90 million to be earned by Bethlehem, 50 million by Republic, 30 million by Youngstown and 30 million by Inland. The panel commented that "in each case the figure is substantially greater than in any year in the 1931 to 1940 decade, and is, in the case of Bethlehem, over six times; Republic, over 13 times; Youngstown, over 20 times, and Inland, over three times the average earnings for the period."

The full increase in labor costs of a $1-a-day advance would amount to 23 million dollars for Bethlehem; 16.5 millions for Republic; 4.7 millions for Youngstown and 3.3 millions for Inland—an aggregate of 47.5 million dollars, the panel reported. Under the Treasury plan, the increase would cost Bethlehem $2,590,000; Republic, $1,856,000; Youngstown, $529,000 and Inland, $371,000, an aggregate of $5,346,000. Under the Ways and Means plan the increase would cost Bethlehem $1,380,000; Republic, $990,000; Youngstown, $282,000, and Inland, $198,000, an aggregate of $2,850,000.

To a company claim that the proposed increase was bad because it would reduce governmental revenues, the panel reported: "The panel finds that if a wage increase, otherwise proper, is withheld because of its effect on governmental revenues perse, such withholdings would involve an unauthorized tax on workers."

Inflationary Aspects

The panel found that weekly earnings in durable goods had increased 12 per cent in relation to steel since March, 1941, moving from 4.2 per cent less than steel last year to 7.8 per cent above steel. Hourly earnings in durable goods shifted 4.1 per cent in relation to steel, from 12 per cent less last year to 7.9 per cent less this year.

This change in relative position was attributed to the increased overtime at time-and-a-half rates earned in durable goods. The panel pointed out that earnings in steel are relatively stable because the industry has been operating on a continuous basis, at capacity, with a basic 40-hour shift.

Treating at length the possible inflationary aspects of a wage increase, the panel denied that every wage increase in steel "spreads like wildfire throughout the other industries of the country," as Inland contended, but noted that "every wage increase has an inflationary effect proportionate to its own size and base."

The panel pointed out that labor's proportion of the national income has remained constant from 1939 through 1941, but that in 1942 national income would increase 21 per cent, while payrolls would increase 11 per cent, if wages remain constant.

Hint At Payment in Bonds

"It is clear that the national money income shares importance with the consumer's pie," the panel said, and that, though the latter will shrink, the former will grow. To ask labor to accept less than its proportionate share of the Nation's money income in order to prevent labor from acquiring too much pie leaves out of account that money has value, even when it must be saved."

This comment, a broad hint that any wage increase might come in the form of war bonds instead of in cash, was followed by a disavowal of support of a "technique of forced savings" in adjusting labor disputes.

Since the steel wage increase of April, 1941, the cost of living in steel towns rose 13.3 per cent, the panel found, while weekly earnings dropped a fraction of 1 per cent and hourly earnings advanced 3.2 per cent.

Union Claim Disputed

"The panel believes that weekly earnings are the proper criterion for measuring the impact of rising living costs and therefore finds that the buying power of the earnings of the steel worker has decreased approximately 13.3 per cent since the last general change of wage rates in the steel industry."

The panel disputed a union claim that steel wages were inadequate based on standards of health and decency, and called attention to the fact that the average annual income of steel workers was $1926.72 in 1941. The union based its claim on a report of the Heller Committee of the University of California, which found that wages of at least $2400 a year were needed to maintain a family of five. The panel pointed out that if each of the 43 million families and single consumers in the United States were to receive $2400 a year the aggregate would be 10 per cent greater than the total national income.

The panel also refused to "ground a demand for a wage increase on the reallocation of savings through increased productive efficiency in the steel industry."

Night Sessions Ease Fiscal Jam

ment bill, carrying 25 million dollars in Senate increases, was whittled down to 178 million dollars by a conference committee and finally approved by the House. On direct appeal of the President to Speaker Rayburn, the House adopted, 192 to 141, the Senate allotment of $3,723,000 for a transmission line for the Central Valley project in California and $200,000 for a steam standby plant.

In quick succession the House then approved conference reports on three more bills and sent them to the Senate. They were:

The $425,000,000 State, Justice and Commerce Department bill, carrying a compromise conference provision for Senate confirmation of Justice Department antitrust division attorneys and special attorneys paid $7500 or more annually.

A $280,000,000 WPA appropriation bill, limiting administrative expenses to 18 million dollars, but providing for maintenance of State administrative offices in each State.

The $32,500,000 war housing bill.

Leaders said it was not essential that the $1,810,487,615 first supplemental bill, carrying slashed OPA funds, clear Congress immediately. They were reasonably certain of final action today on the big war appropriation measure and the Labor-Federal Security bill. The farm appropriation bill alone, with its conflicting parity, FSA and farm tenant provisions, appeared hopelessly tangled.

House farm conferees, themselves divided 4 and 4 on major farm items, called a special meeting this morning to discuss a settlement, but were uniformly pessimistic.

Grain Surplus Is Crux

The House has twice refused to compromise its demand that only "deteriorated" stocks of Government-owned grain be released for sale below-parity for feed and industrial uses. The President favors a Senate compromise, permitting below-parity sales of 125 million bushels of surplus wheat at 85 per cent of the parity price for corn. It has been stated on reliable authority he will veto the bill unless such sales are permitted, to relieve the wheat surplus and provide feed for livestock.

One suggested compromise would accept the Senate parity formula in return for authorization of 100 per cent parity loans on corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco and rice, but this was expected to meet Administration opposition. Conferees were likewise far apart on 100 per cent increases voted by the Senate in FSA funds, farm security loans and grants, and farm tenant aid money.

Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee yesterday proposed that pending full settlement the department be voted a temporary extension, limited to items on which conferees are agreed. This was unacceptable to Senate conferees, who asked a resolution extending last year's appropriations.

In asking the Senate to put off passage of the 43-billion-dollar War Department bill until today Senator McNary criticized those in charge of the program for allowing appropriation bills to pile up at the end of the year and then to rush them to passage.

McNary said the Senate have at least 24 hours to study a measure that appropriates more than the cost of the last war. He declared that the War Department now has nearly 36 billion of the 75 billion dollars already appropriated for its activities and would not be hurt by the delay.

"I don't question the amounts," said McNary. "I am interested only in a display of a little coolness, a little calmness, so that some of us may have a chance to try to find time today or tonight to read this report and the hearings."

Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Oklahoma agreed to the postponement but asked that the measure be passed before midnight tonight. Thomas said his committee was unable to take up the bill until it was passed by the House, and pointed out the measure did not reach the Senate until last Wednesday. McNary said he was not criticizing Thomas but said someone in authority should be in a position to prevent eleventh-hour jams at the end of each fiscal year.

Fine Dispute Settled, Southern Coal Miners Go Back to Work

President's Request Ends Their Vacation

By the Associated Press

John L. Lewis directed 75,000 vacationing miners in West Virginia and Kentucky to resume work immediately last night after the Southern Coal Producers Association, at the request of President, agreed to return $200,000 in fines levied on the workers for taking part in the captive mine strike of last November.

The President's request was conveyed to the operators by Interior Secretary Ickes this morning, ending deadlocked discussions on the vacation issue between the producers and Lewis which extended over the past few weeks. The miners started their vacation today, expecting to be idle until July 6.

Modified Vacation Plan

Lewis and President Edward R. Burke of the Producers' Association, announced agreement on a modified vacation plan, by which the miners' vacation would be limited to July 3, 4 and 5—in reality giving them only one more working day off. Lewis said operations would resume tonight in mines which had a night shift.

The United Mine Workers president said the agreement brought the entire hard and soft coal industry into the modified vacation pact under the 1941 wage agreement, by which the miners receive $20 in lieu of the time off.

Burke said the $200,000 in fines was to be paid the miners before August 1.

He said prior to intervention by Ickes and the President, the discussions had bogged down because Lewis insisted "he did not care to enter into a modified vacation clause until we agreed to return the fines imposed last November after the captive mine strike, his contention being that the fines were illegally assessed."

Ickes Asked Return of Fines

"I took the position that the fines were an extraneous matter, so far as the shorter vacations clause was concerned, and I believed, and the operators believed, that the fines were properly assessed and ought to be distributed to charity, as provided in the wage agreement."

Burke said Ickes, on behalf of the President, requested that the fines be returned, if that was the only way the mines could be reopened. Since the Nation is at war, Burke said, "I took the request from the Commander in Chief as an order," and complied.

"Without attempting to determine the merits of the issue," Ickes wrote to the association, after the conference, "I have requested, on behalf of the President of the United States, that without establishing a precedent, you make the concession of principle that will enable the mines immediately to resume operations." He praised the "patriotic effort" of the producers to keep the mines open.

Allied Pilot Lures 2 Japanese Zeros Into Death Trap

Somewhere in Australia, June 29 (AP).—Destruction of two Japanese Zero (naval) planes in an antiaircraft barrage after an Allied pilot had lured them into point-blank range was described today by a member of the gun battery.

The pilot was on patrol when the Zeros swooped down on him from a cloudbank. Unable to shake them off, he started for home.

With the Zeros repeatedly firing at him, the pilot went into a power dive toward a clump of trees he knew concealed the battery.

The Zeros zoomed down for the kill and the antiaircraft gunners held their fire until the last moment.

"We ripped them wide open at 800 yards," a gunner said.

Senor Zuberbuhler, D. C. Wife Killed in Argentine Crash

FATE—Mr. and Mrs. Luis M. Zuberbuhler, shown in Washington on their wedding day, June 29, 1938, were killed in an Argentine airplane crash on the eve of the fourth anniversary of their marriage

Inter-continental telephone calls are piecing together details of a plane crash which killed Luis Mariano Zuberbuhler, 28, finance secretary of the City of Buenos Aires, Argentina, and his wife, the former Margot Garrett, on the eve of the fourth anniversary of their wedding, an outstanding social event of the 1938 season in Washington.

Mrs. Zuberbuhler is the daughter of George Garrett, president of the Metropolitan Club here. Her mother is now Mrs. George Gordon, wife of the former United States Minister to the Netherlands.

The Associated Press reported yesterday that four persons were killed and a fifth seriously injured in the crash which occurred in Santiago del Esten, a northern province of Argentina.

The injured man is Santiago Sanchez Elia. Mr. Zuberbuhler's brother-in-law and a well-known sportsman, according to information received by Mr. Garrett and the Argentine Embassy here. He is expected to recover.

Senor Sanchez Elia owned the plane which it is reported crashed into a tree just as it was taking off. Vincent Canas, 32, famed Republican ace in the Spanish Civil War, was at the plane's controls, the Associated Press reported.

Mrs. Gordon's last letter from her daughter received about a week ago said that they were planning to fly to the northern province to look over one of the Zuberbuhler "estancias." Mrs. Gordon believes that the crash happened as they were leaving the ranch.

The last time the young couple were in this country was in August, 1940, when they flew to New York to meet Mrs. Gordon and her husband, who were returning from his post in the Netherlands. Senor Zuberbuhler was secretary to the Argentine delegation at the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers at Havana, Cuba, the month before, and they came on from there.

Senor Zuberbuhler was secretary of the Argentine Embassy here in 1937 and 1938. At his marriage to the former Miss Garrett at fashionable St. Matthew's Cathedral June 29, 1938, Ambassador Espil was best man.

Senor Zuberbuhler's family has been prominent in political affairs in the Argentine for generations. His father, the late Senor Luis E. Zuberbuhler, was at one time president of the Bank of the Argentine and the Argentine Stock Exchange. His uncle is Carols S. Lamas, former Secretary of State for Argentine and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1937.

Mrs. Zuberbuhler, who was educated in England and Europe, to society here six years ago at a tea at her father's residence and later at a brilliant ball at the Sulgrave Club. A member of the Junior League here, she was a writer, artist and musician and musician and showed intense interest in the drama, being associated with the Civic Theater.

The funeral will be today at the Zuberbuhler estate, Mr. Garrett indicated.

Delegates Leave Today For Esperanto Conclave

Three Washingtonians prominent in the councils of the International Congress of the Esperanto Association of North America will lead a District delegation to Detroit today for the thirty-fifth conference of the language society. They are:

Deck Added to Navy Tankers for Dry Cargo

The Navy announced yesterday that it was adding another deck to its tankers to enable them to carry crated airplanes and other additional cargo.

In the past naval tankers have been carrying cargo lashed on top of the fuel tanks. The new deck will extend from the aft side of the bridge to the poop deck.

Jeep Driver Ends Life After Fatal Wreck

Keizer said Cropl. John McDonald, 27, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the driver, summoned help, then hitchhiked here. His body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found in a vacant lot.

Man Power Dislocations Called Critical

The House Appropriations Committee warned the Nation yesterday that it faces "a critical shortage of man power in industry, agriculture and the Government service which will reach a peak in approximately October of this year."

This can be met, the committee said in its report on a $1,810,487,615 defense appropriation bill, by training workers within and out of industry and by transferring workers from nonessential industries.

"The possibility of 4,500,000 men in the Army by the end of 1942, and six to seven million men in 1043," the committee said, coupled with a shifting of workers from farms and nonessential work to industry and the necessity of adequate farm labor to supply the food needs of the United Nations," require careful management of our man power resources."

The committee estimated a need for an additional 11 million workers in industry and 2,500,000 on the farms, and said from seven to eight million of these probably could be recruited from peacetime industry, one million from professional and other sources, 1,500,000 from the unemployed, and two million from among "housewives, youths and retired workers."

To enable the War Man Power Commission to recruit, train and place this vast army of workers, the committee approved an appropriation of $3,114,000 for the agency headed by Paul V. McNutt.

As much as possible, McNutt said, the commission hopes to keep the migration of workers "down to the lowest possible point" by taking war work to areas where the largest reserve pools of labor are to be found, instead of by moving the workers to the work areas.

Priorities May Be Established On Telephone Calls, FCC Warns

By the Associated Press

The possibility that the Government may have to impose priorities on telephone calls, particularly long distance ones, was hinted yesterday.

Chairman James L. Fly of the Communications Commission told a press conference that long distance calls had increased more than 50 per cent in the last 18 months and that unless telephone use was cut down voluntarily there might be no escape from "undesirable alternatives."

While he said he hesitated to speculate, he mentioned as possible steps to ease the burden on telephone lines: banning certain classes of businesses, shifting some types of business to certain hours, or a system of priorities.

The latter would be, in effect, rationing, with lines reserved for most important purposes.

Only last week the Board of War Communications asked telephone companies to do what they could to encourage a reduction in both local and loug-distance calls.

Important long-distance calls relating to the war effort, it said, had suffered long delays in some instances because of jammed circuits.

Fly said that during May 15 per cent of all toll calls were delayed by busy circuits.

Since January, 1941, toll calls on the longer distances have increased 78 per cent. Toll calls in the Norfolk, Va., area are up 245 per cent and in Washington they have increased 165 per cent.

30 Persons Hurt In Chilean Quake

Santiago, Chile, June 29 (AP).—A strong earthquake was felt at 1:35 a. m. (2:35 a. m., Eastern War Time) today in Santiago. Communications were interrupted and electric service was cut.

Cornices were toppled from buildings in the downtown sector, but no serious damage was reported. Communications were restored quickly. Thirty persons were injured here, some seriously, by falling masonry and in a panicky rush to the streets.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Orient Wants to See Real America on Screen

Pearl S. Buck Solicits List of Typical Films; A Midget Army Takes Over the Desk; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

AS PRESIDENT of the East and West Association, "a non-profit membership organization, devoted to mutual knowledge and understanding of the life of the Oriental and the American peoples," Pearl S. Buck, noted author, writes this desk in part as follows:

PEARL S. BUCK

"Dear Mr. Bell: I am writing to you with the hope that you will help in the making of a list of motion pictures which could be recommended to audiences across the Pacific as being really representative of life in America. Motion picture theaters have greatly increased in number in those countries in recent years and have become enormously popular. American films are shown more often than any others, and among them have been many, of course, which have not been a good sample of everyday American life. Gangster pictures, pictures full of Hollywood ideas of luxury, slapstick comedies and Westerns have done their share to puzzle the East. It would interest these people, few of whom will ever see America except in pictures, to know what Americans consider their good films.

"Will you therefore help us by making a list of 10 or more films which you would like to have shown to people who do not know America? . . . I should greatly appreciate your co-operation and would especially value your opinion."

Since we are only an infinitesimal 1/130,000,000th of America, and this is something a shade apart from the purely individual business of selecting the "Ten Best Pictures of the Year," for example, we should be glad to communicate to Mrs. Buck the opinions of as many others as care to write— NOT PHONE—their suggestions to this department. While it is not specifically stated, one imagines that promptness would be a shade on the advantageous side.

The East and West Association, incidentally, is an organization which numbers among its directors and advisory board such distinguished personages as James G. Blaine, Louis Bromfield, Henry R. Luce, Miguel Covarrubias, John Dewey, Thomas W. Lamont, Lin Yutang, Paul V. McNutt and a long list of others. Its purpose already has been briefly outlined above in the quoted passage from its New York letterhead.

A small army of 3¼-inch soldiers, all done up in their khaki-colored paint uniforms and shiny steel helmets, has begun marching across the drama desk. Wearing no insignia indicating their outfit, an advance guard of three already has taken up its position under the desk lamp. The presence of Master J. Raymond Bell—no relation—in town (so I hear) may have something to do with the sudden attack, which bears all the earmarks of one of his habitual picture publicity gags. If the former stentor of the locweal Loew interests, now attached to M.-G.-M. in New York, isn't responsible for the ambush, my apologies to whatever bright young mind is.

Dots and Dashes

Roy Rogers, Republic's singing cowboy, coming into the Earle with his famous Palomino, Trigger, to headline the stage bill opening Friday, crashed the screen via stage and radio . . . Snatched from the air with his "Sons of the Pioneers" for a spot in a Gene Autry fillum, he was promptly signed to star in "Under Western Stars" . . . In addition to Trigger, he is bringing his singing "Rhythm Rangers" along with him, too . . . Jessica Dragonette, scheduled to sing with the National Symphony at the Watergate tomorrow, will be honor guest at a press cocktail party—or vice versa—in the Raleigh Hotel this evening from 4 to 7 p. m. . . . If you and the youngsters missed yesterday's, Friday will be another "Kiddies Day" aboard the Wilson Streamliner Mount Vernon and at Marshall Hall, 'way off yonder, down the Potomac . . . Everything half price for junior and his girl friend . . . Those "Scrap Rubber Matinees" at Sidney Lust's six Maryland theaters brought in approximately five tons of old rubber—everything, and we quote, "from nipples and washers to girdles, rubber panties and old tires in various degrees of disintegration" . . . Defying all the midsummer bugaboos, Sonja Henie and her manager, Arthur Mr. Wirtz, are opening "Stars on Ice," a prodigious musical spectacle in the Center Theater, Rockefeller Center, New York, this Thursday . . . Should have asked Dan Topping about this when he was up at the Variety Club with George Marshall t'other day chinning with Carey Wilson, one of M. G. M.'s top fellows, making his first visit to Washington since 1912.

Call-of-the-Wild Note

Tires for the tired being as they are, we've abandoned Hains Point this year for a less remote vacation. Two rugged, outdoor weeks under the bridge across the Reflecting Pool, or something!

Almost a Reminder of Lincoln

GARY COOPER AND MARGARET WYCHERLY as they appear as son and mother in the early sequences of the Warner Brothers production of "Sergeant York," opening Friday on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater. This engagement will mark the picture's third Washington showing and its seventh downtown week—but its first under the "all-day-grind" and popular price policy

LEONARD LYONS

Departmental Memos

WAR DEPT.: An elderly London lady complained to the Archbishop of Canterbury about the drinking in cafes after midnight on Saturdays. "Don't you agree that such drinking should be banned," the lady suggested, "because drinking after midnight, on Saturday, really is drinking on Sunday?" . . . "My good woman," replied the Archbishop, "it all depends on whether the Good Lord is operating on Double British Summer Time, or Greenwich Mean Time."

REALTY DEPT.: Harold Ross, the New Yorker's editor, received front-page, but unfavorable publicity last week as the result of an undemocratic letter he had written to the Governor of Connecticut, complaining about the common people of Harlem and the Bronx. Ross was in the Barberry Room the other night, lamenting to Marc Connelly. "I even got a complaint from the Holy Name Society," Ross wailed, reviewing the deluge of criticism his letter had brought on. "Will you do me a favor, Marc? You're Irish. So will you speak to the Holy Name Society for me?" . . . "I'll write 'em a letter," Connelly replied, "if you'll teach me the knack."

POETRY DEPT.: Commander Grant, who brought the British cruiser Penelope here for repairs—after what he calls an "exasperating experience," in which the hundreds of holes in the vessel were plugged with wood—was at the Lambs Club. He spoke at the Lambs' dinner and show to the service men, which Sam Forrest arranges each week . . . Commander Grant told of the Italian planes which fled back to Tarranto after trying to bomb the Penelope. And each time the Fascist radio announced the ship's destruction. . . "We made up this poem about it," he confessed: "There were some young men from Tarranto, Who set out on an exploit gallanto . . . They just saw the views, Then concocted the news . . . To make up for their kick-in-the-panto."

ART DEPT.: Edward L. Bernays, the public relations man, dined at the home of Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador—who lives in a Washington house which he leased, furnished. On the wall was a painting of Napoleon at Helena . . . Bernays stared at the painting, which seemed out of place . . . "I know, I know," Dr. Hu told him. "At first I wanted to remove that picture. But then I felt it belonged there—just as a reminder of what happens to all dictators."

RADIO DEPT.: In preparation for the "Army Hour" broadcast, the producers of the program reached a mess-sergeant at the Army Cooks & Bakers School, at Fort Meade. They asked the sergeant to broadcast a tip to American housewives, on how to cook, Armystyle . . . "How would you tell the housewives to make applepie?" he was asked . . . "This is the way I learned it," the mess-sergeant replied: "'168 lbs. of flour, 84 lbs. of shortening, 28 lbs. of salt, 21 pints of water, 970 lbs. apples, 82 lbs. of sugar, 82 lemons, 21 ounces cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven and serve to 3,500 men.'"

DRAMA DEPT.: Charles Coburn, the veteran actor, starred in "The Better 'Ole," during the last war. And now, when anyone asks Coburn what he did in '17 and '18, he replies: "I went over the top 500 times, and blew up a bridge every day, 6 times a week—plus 2 matinees."

TRAVEL DEPT.: Saturday night Olsen & Johnson were the guests at a reuniop party with Brig. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle. It was at Olsen's home that Mrs. Doolittle stayed, while her husband went off to bomb Tokio. And on the Doolittle tablecloth, where Jimmy's wife crochets the autographs of all who dine there, the names of Olsen & Johnson are as prominent as those of Lindbergh and Knudsen . . . Once, in Chicago, when Olsen had to appear in a St. Louis theatre the next afternoon, Doolittle induced him to miss the overnight train, promising to get him there in ample time. Despite stormy weather, Doolittle flew Olsen to St. Louis in one hour and 43 minutes—including stunting and hedge-hopping.

HEDDA HOPPER

Col. Zanuck Grasps Opportunity

Hollywood, Calif., June 29. You've got to take off your hat to Col. Darryl Zanuck's patriotism, and his vision, for this industry is far ahead of many of our leaders. He considers it a great privilege to have been able to take a trip to England, and says the interchange of Russian and English training pictures and ours is already taking place.

LUPE VELEZ

With their limited production facilities, England can only make enough pictures for England, but we have to make them for the world. It's all right to send a troupe of people out to entertain and build up morale, but that troupe couldn't be in Midway, Ireland, and the Aleutian Islands at the same time—and a picture can.

This is our chance to give entertainment, relaxation, and information, and to raise this industry to a pinnacle it's never reached before.

Eddie Albert finally gets a break in "Bombardier" with Anne Shirley and Randolph Scott, with my old friend Dick Wallace directing. And when this is finished Eddie goes into "Ladies' Day" for an awful beating with Lupe Velez.

I asked Alan Ladd, who became a star in "This Gun for Hire," how he liked New York. He said, "I haven't seen it yet. I was so busy there I didn't have time for sightseeing."

He's only been out of Los Angeles County three times in his life. He has quite a career ahead of him: 'Cause why? 'Cause he can act—and he's a new type.

Well, well! Howard Hughes' picture, "The Outlaw," which has been in dry dock, lo these many months, will finally be launched in August, and you will see Jane Russell in action at last.

But the thing I like about Howard Hughes is the way he's launched his airplane factory. A friend of mine went to work there and says it's the happiest group of people he's ever met up with. The day before he started, he was taken thruout the plant by the head of each department. When he commented on the attitude of the workers, he was told that happiness was a requirement.

I'll be darned if W. C. Fields isn't writing a daily column on current topics, with plans to syndicate it. You know, it was Bill who first drew Will Rogers' attention to doing a column. Well, he has lots of time to write, because he suffers from insomnia. In fact, the only time he sleeps is when he can't find any one to talk to.

Gets up at the crack of dawn and goes prowling just to exchange views with the neighbors' night watchmen. "And," says Bill, "I get more common sense from them than I do from most of the people in Hollywood."

John Gambleton designed a dilly of a dress for Margaret Lindsay. It's a print, with "Slap the Japs," "A Slip of the Lip," and other slogans, while on each sleeve is a large "Shush." When Maggie wears it, she feels like a walking warning.

Comic Jenkins In 'Eyes in Night'

Allen Jenkins joins the cast of M-G-M's "Eyes in the Night," now in production. Cast is headed by Ann Harding, Edward Arnold, Donna Reed, and Reginald Denny. He will portray the companion of a blind detective, played by Arnold.

Breezy Comedy at Cross Roads

By Ernest L. Schier

Sophisticated penthouse society has moved with their customary ease and savoir faire into the remodeled barn where the Cross Roads Theater holds forth. "Separate Rooms" which ran with considerable success in New York and points West is an amusing bedroom comedy with some new twists and a high polish. Vitriolic phrases and caustic comedy high light this old formula of a newly married couple who face the difficulty of adjusting to their marital status.

The somewhat complicated plot concerns an actress who marries a playwright as a step to further her burning ambition. The poor author is so busy adoring her that he isn't even aware of her extra-curricular amours until his brother steps in. Now, big brother is a cynical, newspaper columnist who knows all about women, a sort of cross between Westbrook Pegler and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." He, therefore, proceeds to ameliorate his brother's connubial discomfort. Digging up all the dirt he can about his sister-in-law, he blackmails her into being a devoted wife, after having, of course, moved back into his apartment from which he has been ousted by the beautiful, but shrewish wife. He then proceeds to supervise the rehabilitation of his brother's love life.

All goes well until the wife realizes that she really loves her husband, at which point the supervising cynic become superfluous and the problem is how to rid their happy home of him. The ingenuity of a promising playwright and a first-rate actress is not to be denied, however, and the tables are turned on the scheming scribbler though he never even knows he's been done in.

One of the chief attributes of the play is its sparkling dialogue which is thrown back and forth between the players in a spirit of friendly hate, each trying to outdo the other in a continuous duel of sarcastic gibes.

The general tone and color may be found a little on the risque side by some, but the very cleverness of the lines makes them amusing rather than objectionable.

The cast is very much on its toes, making the most of every situation. Izett Jewel, jr., is attractive and convincing as the reformed actress, playing with energy and charm. Reginald Allen, who, the program states, performs through the courtesy of the Columbia Broadcasting System (whatever that may mean), is properly bitter and cynical as the meddling but likable columnist. A good sense of comedy and an ability to get the most out of his moments are displayed by Wayne Locklin as an informal butler with a philosophy all his own. Additional members of the cast who performed with competence were Alan Blaine, Warner Schreiner, Louis Loutz, Marion Sittler and Madeline Raven.

Paul Messink, the director, has been remarkably aware of the staging possibilities and done well with direction that shows excellent taste and judgment. The set is not too swanky or ostentatious, due to physical limitation, and blends in well with the surroundings. A good evening's entertainment.

New Taxi Strike Threatens Capital

Cab Union President Asks Congress To Take Back Control From PUC

Rumblings of a new taxi strike, supposedly quieted by intervention of the House District Committee in last Wednesday's "vacation," grew louder last night as relations between the cab union and the Public Utilities Commission became decidedly more strained.

So bitter is the feeling at present that Edward A. Glenn, president of the union, yesterday petitioned Congress to take the cab industry from the PUC jurisdiction and set up a permanent special cab board to supervise District cab drivers.

Following the executive session of the District Committee, at which the entire present problem of the drivers' dissatisfaction with the new rates ordered by the PUC was tossed back to the commission, rumors of an immediate new strike became increasingly persistent. PUC Chairman Gregory Hankin finally appealed to Police Chief Edward J. Kelly to remember the Commissioners' statement that no interruption with the District's transportation system could be allowed.

The rumors reportedly started from Glenn's statement that he couldn't be responsible for keeping a single cab on the street once the drivers learned the outcome of the morning's meeting.

When presidents of five cab companies went to the District Building late yesterday afternoon for advice on how to prevent a new strike, Glenn was reached at union headquarters and gave assurance that he had called no strike yesterday.

However, in a statement issued earlier in the day, Glenn scored the PUC for an order tentatively announced on Saturday, that all drivers must file with the PUC a statement of which rates—old or the controversial new ones—they intended to work under. Those who did not file such a statement, the PUC declared, would be held to operate under the new rates.

Declaring this to be a violation of the agreement with the congressional committee whereby the 18-hour strike last week was called off, Glenn said:

"We were a party to that temporary arrangement on a basis of absolute confidence in the House District Committee, and the taxicab drivers did go back to work. Now, just as you would expect, the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission is trying to force the drivers into a corner on the matter and force us to say what rate we will work under. At the time of the agreement, they agreed that we could work under either one we wanted, and we still can . . .

"Our further action on this matter will depend entirely upon the action of the Public Utilities Commission, and the public must know that this organization will not permit any violation of our agreement and will not put up with any more reference to the taxicab drivers as criminals or Nazi representatives or other such remarks."

Shortly after Glenn issued this statement, the PUC made official its order that the drivers must file notice of whichever rate they individually were going to use. Only one day's notice was given the drivers to file these orders, which must be in by tomorrow. Otherwise, said the PUC, they must drive under the new rate system.

"It's just a cheap publicity trick," was Glenn's comment. "Hankin knows that all the drivers can't get these notices in on one day's notice, and he then can count up all the ones who didn't get their notices in and claim that they indorsed his rates.

Three-Man Board

The taxi board for which the union petitioned Congress would be made up of three persons: one of the civilian members of the Board of Commissioners, a representative appointed by the Commissioners upon recommendation of the citizens' associations, and a member elected by the taxi industry. These latter two would be paid $6000 per year, for a four-year appointment.

Officers of taxi companies or associations would not be eligible for membership on this board, which would have all the powers of taxi jurisdiction now divided among the PUC, the Board of Revocation and Review, and the hack inspector.

Apartment for Government Girls Shown; Luxurious Rooms for 718—$7 to $9.50

Comfortable rooms, sun deck, library and gleaming swimming pool designed for the oft-pitied girl defense worker were previewed yesterday at the Meridian Hill Apartments, Sixteenth and Euclid Streets Northwest, by Jesse Jones, Reconstruction Finance Corporation head, and the press.

Although they will not be ready for occupancy until around July 15, the quarters for 718 Government women are nearing completion and now require only the finishing touches to corridors and lobby.

Rents vary from $7 to $9.50 per week, and rooms are available either singly or by twos. Double rooms are equipped with baths and all have lavatory facilities.

The solid maple furniture immediately caught the attention of the handful of women, who poked into corners while more official eyes were looking over the situation. Twin beds (with mattresses that ARE comfortable), dressing tables, a bureau with adequate drawer space, and roomy closets were the main attractions.

The swimming pool is in the basement and is ready for use, although the building still is unoccupied except for a horde of carpenters and painters.

And as for the sun deck, even Jesse M. Jones himself was captivated by the unusually fine view of the city, including a long sweep of Meridian Park next door.

Although the Meridian Hill was built with funds lent by the RFC, it is not Government operated. It is owned by the Defense Homes Corp., a private organization, but it is self-dedicated to the purpose of relieving the housing shortage for feminine workers, with the accent on those in defense branches.

Neighborhood Serenade Opens Snow's Court, 'Alley' Playfield

The third annual opening of the Snow's Court playground was held yesterday with Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, expressing a wish to the assembled 400 Negro children that every section of the city would do as much with what it has.

Snow's Court is really a wide alley, lying between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets and I and K Streets Northwest. Inhabiting the alley are 51 families while an additional 400 families dwell in the block. In the center of the alley are eight satisfactory shade trees, a swing, a bar to muscle up on and a sand box.

Over this setting the 400 Negroes yesterday raised an American Flag, sang "God Bless America" and opened the 1942 summer season. The windows of worn-out houses overlooking the court filled when the music started and the people there sang too. The Police Boys' Band accompanied them.

The nearest playground is two and a half blocks away and the wish was expressed by Wender for a solution to the small-child playground problem.

Dr. E. F. Harris, president of the Lincoln Civic Association, which sponsors the court playground, announced that religious services would be held for an hour each Sunday, beginning at 5 p. m.

Check-Off Cards Assign Union Bargaining Right, Court Holds

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that union checkoff cards signed by employes constitute evidence that the workers, by signing them, authorized the union to act as their collective bargaining agent.

The case arose out of a labor controversy between the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, C. I. O., and the Lebanon Steel Foundry, Inc., of Pennsylvania.

Entrance of the National Labor Relations Board into the dispute January 14, 1941, resulted in an NLRB order holding that the company must deal with the union in view of the signing of checkoff cards by 358 Lebanon employes, constituting a majority.

Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner handed down the decision with Justice Harold M. Stephens dissenting.

While the court conceded, by implication, that the checkoff cards were not in themselves requests to the union that it represent the workers, the decision stated that the cards, regarded as applications for union membership, actually signified recognition of S. W. O. C. by the workers.

"The Wagner Act requires no specific form of authority to bargain collectively," the court said. "An application for union membership implies authority to bargain."

In overruling the company's contention that the cards did not, on their face, state that the signer designated the union as their agents, the appellate tribunal said:

"Labor has its own usages, customs, and practices. Other persons are not always familiar with them. Unions are no longer in the amorphous stage in which they have no tradition or mores for doing things. They now have a vocabulary or language of their own, in some instances unintelligible as Gaelic to a Greek."

"The institution of the check-off card is itself a badge of membership, and a check-off card evidence of intention to be a member," the court said in summary.

Garfield to Graduate 19 Gray Ladies Today

Nineteen women will be graduated from a Garfield Hospital course today as Gray Ladies, members of the Hospital and Recreation Corps of the District Red Cross, in ceremonies at 11:30 a. m. at the hospital.

Comprising the last Gray Ladies class to be conducted this summer, they will be addressed by Clarence Aspinwall, chairman of the hospital's board of directors.

Thief Takes Sleeper's Cover, Adjusts Light to Spot Loot

The telegraph news wires carried these briefs yesterday:

A bold thief walked into the Goldsboro (N. C.) room in which John Cotten was sleeping and stole the spread from Cotten's bed.

Then, Deputy Sheriff Roy Percise said, the thief moved a floor lamp from another room into the bedroom to aid him in locating Cotten's trousers—which he also took without awakening his victim.

Love and the law don't mix, Paul Hoffman, 24, of New York found out yesterday.

Hoffman told Magistrate Bromberger that he parked to ask his girl to marry him. He explained he enlisted in the Naval Reserve, subject to early call.

"But," he said, "before I could pop the question the cop popped a ticket into my hands."

The magistrate, unmoved, said: "Two dollars please."

Kansas City Pawnbroker Ben Hurst began to notice a striking similarity between articles being pawned and those he already had accepted.

Police arrested an employe who admitted taking articles from the shop, and pedaling them to his friends who would bring them back to Hurst and place them in hock again.

There wasn't much left of County Judge William Schepman's automobile after fire destroyed a barn where the machine was stored in Tecumseh, Nebr. But he was not completely dejected.

By playing streams of water on the car's tires, firemen succeeded in saving them.

Eklund was convicted of first degree murder a little more than a year ago and was sentenced to die in the electric chair. Perjury by a Government witness during the first trial, however, won a new trial for him.

McClaine's death followed a series of murders in the fall of 1940 attributed to a mysterious "sniper" who shot his victims—all Negroes—from behind at close range. Eklund was identified by Mildred V. Washington, 17, as the man who shot at McClaine while the couple was walking on Rock Creek Parkway near the K Street Bridge October 15, 1940.

Defending Eklund are Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and Albert Graham. Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray and John W. Fihelly are prosecuting the case.

Reduce Fuel Consumption ... and Keep Cooler this Summer too ... with INSULATION

Owners of the thousands of homes we have insulated have found that having this work done has lowered their fuel bills 20 to 35 per cent without decreasing their comfort. In fact, in most cases, insulation has increased their comfort, for it has eliminated the cold, drafty areas that consume so much fuel and cause great discomfort. Incidentally, an insulated home is a cooler home in summer, too.

If you're planning a TRAIN TRIP ... here are some hints that will help you—and also help your country's war effort

V.....Travel during mid-week, rather than on congested week-ends.
V.....Plan your trip in advance; purchase your railroad and Pullman tickets in advance, preferably at our city ticket office, and avoid delay at station.
V.....If your trip is postponed, immediate cancellation of your reservation will make room for someone else.
V.....When your customary Pullman space is not available, accept other accommodation or use coach service.
V.....Take your vacation either before or after the heavily traveled summer months.
V.....Travel "light"; there's no room on crowded trains for superfluous luggage.
V.....Buy round-trip tickets—save time for yourself and the ticket seller.
V.....Skip your convention. Special troop trains are more important than special convention trains.
V.....Avoid unnecessary travel—buy War Bonds instead.

Rail travel in wartime is definitely not "as usual." Like all railroads, Chesapeake and Ohio Lines are engaged in the biggest double-barrelled job in their history . . . handling increased civilian travel at the same time they carry the military traffic of total war.

People in war industries are traveling more . . . on necessary business. More folks are riding trains since war denied them new cars and tires. Troops are moving in greater and greater numbers. Increased war tempo demands increased essential travel. So, sometimes you won't find a railroad journey as simple and comfortable as it used to be . . . or as we should like it to be, as war needs come first. By following these suggestions, you'll be making travel easier for yourself . . . and, at the same time, you'll be serving your Uncle Sam.

D. C. Budget

In finally approving the District appropriations bill for the fiscal year beginning Wednesday, Congress made a real effort to meet most of the city's requirements. Both Senator O'Mahoney and Representative Mahon, chairmen, respectively, of the Senate and House subcommittees which handled the bill, are entitled to commendation for their extensive and conscientious work on this measure. Of course, it falls short of meeting the expectations of local citizens in various particulars. But it does show evidence of sympathetic and thoughtful consideration.

Perhaps the most glaring defect in the act—it was signed by the President yesterday—is the series of ceilings on relief funds administered by the Board of Public Welfare. Even in ordinary times a flat limitation on the amount that may be allowed to a family without a breadwinner was a serious mistake. Under present conditions, with the cost of living fluctuating erratically, it is particularly inexcusable to deny welfare officials the right of using relief funds where they are needed most.

Some items in the Health Department's budget are also substantially smaller than they ought to be. On the other hand, Congress has made it possible to reopen the old Tuberculosis Hospital on Upshur Street; an excellent program of checking physical defects in the schools has been authorized; and salaries for some additional sanitary inspectors and a considerable number of nurses have been granted. There is evidence of real progress in these items.

The solution of many problems calling for new construction had to be postponed because of the scarcity of materials. That will throw an especially heavy burden on the community after the war is over. It is doubtful, moreover, whether the $56,311,851 budget will supply all the city's essential requirements during the coming year. A community growing at the dizzy pace that Washington has set cannot possibly foresee all its needs a year in advance. And since the Commissioners have no control over the city's purse strings, Congress will doubtless have to give time and energy to the enactment of deficiency bills for the Capital before the end of fiscal 1943.

Odell Waller

John Dewey and other Americans who have taken up the case of Odell Waller, the Negro sharecropper who is under sentence in Virginia to die July 2 for the murder of his landlord, seem to think that their case is improved by trying to deny Waller's record. Mr. Dewey, in a letter to this paper last week, casts doubt on our statement that Waller "is a bad man with a bad record." But we went by the evidence. That evidence was summed up by the judge in Pittsylvania County, Judge Clement, who said, "The evidence in the case and his general reputation disclosed that he was a vicious, lawless, and dangerous Negro, with whom the officers had had considerable trouble, and that on one occasion he had attempted to shoot one of the officers." That seems to have been a fair conclusion about Waller. The condemned man had been convicted of reckless driving and transporting illegal whisky, of carrying a concealed weapon and of threatening an officer, of violating the State game laws, of transporting illegal whisky a second time, twice for driving an automobile after his license had been revoked.

The case for a commutation of the sentence which is now under consideration by the Virginia Governor rests upon two arguments. One is that the evidence does not justify the electric chair. That is to say, the murder was not premeditated. As to this, the evidence is not holeproof, but it is nearly so. There had been a difference of opinion on the wages in kind that Waller got from his landlord, who, incidentally, was a sharecropper himself. Two Negroes testified that on the day before the murder Waller had told him that he was going to get his wheat or kill Davis, the landlord. To one of the men he said that another man had gotten away with it—that is, had taken the law into his own hands. Waller went fully armed to the Davis home. Testimony was offered by an 18-year-old Negro boy that Davis gave no provocation; on the contrary, Davis told Waller that the wheat would be threshed the next day, and that he would then send Waller his share. Then he turned to go into the house for breakfast, whereupon Waller fired four shots into Davis, two of them into his back after he had fallen to the ground. Still, as Mr. Dewey says, that testimony was different in material respects at the Trial Justice Court previously.

That is why we raised the question whether willful murder had been proved. The other argument in favor of Waller revolves around the old question of the composition of the jury. Mr. Dewey is correct in questioning our statement that there had been no trial objection that the jury was not composed of representative citizens. The truth is that an objection was made, but that Waller's trial counsel failed to offer evidence of the facts as to the nonrepresentative character of the jury. Specifically nonpayers of poll tax were excluded, but no proof was given. And, since no proof was given, a stay of execution has again been denied by the Supreme Court. In all the circumstances it is to be hoped that Governor Darden, who must act before Thursday, will commute the death sentence on Waller, as has been petitioned by many notable Virginians. But no good will be accomplished by Mr. Dewey and his friends in going beyond the plain facts—in the manner of the Scottsboro case—to strengthen their own appeal.

Egypt In Peril

There is no disguising the fact that the latest news from North Africa tends to call into question the value of Mr. Churchill's assurance last week to members of Congress that Egypt would be held. For the fall of Matruh deprives the British of their principal Egyptian base west of Alexandria and Suez. It brings Marshal Rommel's mechanized columns and his air force within extremely dangerous proximity to Egypt's greatest cities and the Suez Canal. Despite the fact that the fighting of the past week has involved a very considerable extension of Rommel's lines and a distinct shortening in the British lines, the march of the Nazi panzers to the east has gone ahead relentlessly. Thus the threat of Egypt steadily mounts, and the danger can no longer be minimized that the Axis may break through the remaining British defenses and sweep across to the Red Sea.

When the present fighting in North Africa began—a little over a month ago—a rough equality obtained between the opposing sides. Rommel, on the one hand, had the advantage of superior artillery and possibly tanks. The British, on the other hand, claimed and probably had superiority of air power. Neither side enjoyed any preponderant numerical advantage in man power. The fall of Tobruk, involving as it did the loss of several tens of thousands of seasoned British troops and vast quantities of materiel, gave the Axis preponderance in numbers and weight of armaments. Rommel was quick to capitalize his advantage. It is for this reason that no effort was made by the British to carry out a prolonged defense of Solum and Sidi Omar, but took their stand at Matruh instead. But Rommel, master tactician that he is, gave them no time to reform their lines, strengthen their defenses and pour into the threatened sector sufficient additional man power to right the balance. Now, it would seem, the road to Alexandria is open by land and by air. That great naval base, the only one in the eastern Mediterranean equipped to handle the major British fleet units, is practically within range of Axis fighter planes, and may be made untenable even if Rommel's columns are slowed down or halted.

The disaster which has befallen the United Nations forces in North Africa thus threatens to develop into one of catastrophic proportions. What for so many months was one of the quietest fronts of the war—a front which the British, with their plans for a second land front in Europe, may have planned on keeping a quiet front—has become the scene of a defeat the consequences of which will be felt throughout the Mediterranean area, from Vichy France to Turkey and deep into the Middle East. With Great Britain safe, with Russia holding out, and with the United States getting into its stride as a producer of war material, the fall of Egypt would not be fatal to the Allies. It would be a sorry mistake to assume, however, that its loss would not considerably prolong the war and enormously complicate the task of the United Nations.

Russian Relief

It is axiomatic that at present the No. 1 job of the United Nations is to keep the Red army in being. And a contribution to that end is to sustain Russian morale. That is the reason we draw particular attention of Washingtonians to the work of the District Chapter of the Russian War Relief. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman that body is sponsoring a concert and festival which is to be held at the Watergate tonight. The proceeds are to be used for the purchase of medical supplies, clothing and other items of relief to be sent to the Soviet Union. The people of that great allied nation have made a magnificent contribution to the ultimate defeat of the Axis. They have done so at enormous cost. Millions of Russian soldiers have been killed, wounded or taken prisoner. Vast stretches of the finest agricultural areas of the U. S. S. R. and much of its raw material resources and industrial equipment are in the hands of the enemy. Anything the people of the District can do that would ease the suffering of the Russian people and carry on the fight would be a contribution to the common effort. The festival deserves the support of all residents.

Scrap Nonsense

It is inevitable, we suppose, that idiotic ideas should crop out during the campaigns to save scrap. One is the notion arising out of an offhand remark a while ago by the President that we should tear the rubber mats out of our automobiles and give them to the scrap collectors. The fact is that the rubber mat is made of residue rubber, and the amount of usable material that could be obtained from the mats would be negligible. And the price we might have to pay in a higher accident record would be totally out of proportion to the rubber collected. Why is it, do you think, that the regulations covering taxicabs provide for a rubber mat and no other material? Because even a substitute is not guaranteed to ward off an electric shock during the actual operation of a car. And even a slight shock might cause a driver at the wheel to swerve out of line and into an accident.

All this is evident enough from an elementary knowledge of an automobile. It must be just as evident that the latest suggestion is equally ridiculous, namely, that the statues in our cities ought to be torn down for the salvage of their copper content. To be sure, we are short of copper. But the possibilities of salvaging old metal in a country that for long years has been given over to waste have scarcely been tapped. There is plenty of junk still available before we are reduced to the demolition of the art works in our public places. It often happens, indeed, that an excess of zeal is inclined to make our officials overlook the "scrap" under their noses, as, for instance, the new and used cars in dealers' hands numbering over three million, which would yield an abundance of rubber, copper and steel. But, since this seems to be the open season for catchy ideas, here is one that seems to have some merit in it: ask the people to hand over their spare tires in return for recapped tires. The idea might be launched as a "spare the spare" campaign.

Sales Tax

There is a very simple reason for the agitation for passage of a general sales tax. It is that no other feasible method has been suggested for raising the two and a half billion dollars required to satisfy the Administration's demands for revenue. The House Ways and Means Committee will have another opportunity to consider this proposal before reporting out the completed tax bill. If it should fail to act, the Rules Committee could open the bill to revenue-producing amendments, including the sales tax. Certainly a showdown on this important issue cannot come too soon, since delay in levying a general sales tax means loss of much-needed revenue. Such a tax would likewise act as a check upon consumer spending and thus aid the fight against inflation. If Congress marks time until after election for fear of reprisals at the polls, the effectiveness of the sales tax as an anti-inflationary device will be greatly diminished.

From the strictly revenue standpoint, the arguments in favor of a general sales tax grow stronger every day. The tax bill now being drafted has tapped customary sources of revenue to the limit. The burden on medium and large incomes is already disproportionately heavy. In any case, the huge sum required to finance a war cannot be obtained from these upper-income groups, because they simply do not have it. Corporate taxes, moreover, have already reached levels so high as to create doubts about the capacity of industry to carry them. In short, the additional billions needed can only be raised by taxes laid on wage earners and salaried workers in the lower-income groups. They control the great bulk of the national income—and are now receiving most of the additional income resulting from war spending. A general sales tax provides the easiest method of "getting at" this income. Even a 5 per cent general retail sales levy would be a prolific revenue producer—probably sufficient to make up for the deficiencies of the new tax bill. Finally, every dollar of these taxes collected by the Treasury would act as a curb upon spending and would therefore be an antidote to inflation. Why wait, then?

DEPARTURE OF A DIPLOMAT

He who loved motion, the rhythm of train
And ship, and throats of cheering flesh and bone,

Who saw his country from a chartered plane,

From his four walls it was his part to go,
Minus the courtesy of flag and cheer,
Without credential or portfolio,
On this, the furthest trek of his career.
How out of character, that with no purse,
And pocket empty, he should fare so far
Upon the vapors of the universe,
Into the neighborhood of sun and star!
Gently Death pressed, as frost enfolds and kills,

And swiftly as October dooms the hills.

Know The Rules

I have just finished reading the Manuals of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States. These Manuals present in thorough fashion the legislative machinery of our great democracy. A thorough understanding of this machinery, coupled with high ideals and great intellect, are necessary for the proper functioning of our Government and for the ultimate plenty and prosperity of our people. Too often men with small ideals and weazened intelligence have become adept at legislative rules to the detriment of great ideals. Too often men with great ideals have not familiarized themselves with the intricacies of legislative machinery. One without the other leads but to negation of action.

Never before have we been in need of men who combine in their person all the attributes for greatness—broad vision with complete thoroughness in intricate matters. For if we would preserve and make to flourish our democratic way of life, we must have such men. A return to the political fundamentals of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe et al. will not be without fruit even in this advanced age. Finally, a people do become passionate either over one form of government or another. Finally, we are either all democrats or either all dictators. This world cannot be half free, half slave. We, the American people, have dedicated ourselves to the task to make it free. Let us study the fruits of the intellectual masters who first made us free. Let us call ourselves only democrats, not capitalists, individualists, or what have you. What a man thinketh, so is he. If we would have a democratic world, we ourselves must be democrats, must be free!

Get Tough With Italy

The bombing of Malta for six months has been incessant. A large part of Valetta with its great architectural monuments has been destroyed. The loss, including the Church of St. John, which contains the tombs of the Grand Masters of the White Cross, is an irreparable break with a glorious past. The Maltese demand the bombing of Rome in reprisal for their sufferings. Why Rome should enjoy immunity from the sufferings they have inflicted on others, is one of the mysteries of the war. It is time to get tough and put an end to all this pussyfooting around Italy.

Scrapman, Save That Statue

This morning's paper, in speaking of Donald Nelson's statement to Congress that statuary may yet have to be melted down for its metal, mentions that Mr. Gutterson of WPB puts the Jackson statue in Lafayette Park at the head of the list.

I do not question the principle of all this, but I would like to call attention to the fact that the Jackson statue with all of its failings was the first equestrian bronze cast in this country and is entitled to considerable respect on historical grounds. Well known as this is, the fact might easily be overlooked in the hurry of things, and I would suggest if there is any danger of this that Jackson be moved over to the White House grounds at once for safe keeping.

LAURENCE VAIL COLEMAN,
Director, American Association of Museums.
Washington, June 26.

As a reader of The Post, I should like to utter, through your paper, a protest against the suggestion which appeared in a local paper that the statue of General Grant in the Botanic Garden be taken down and used for war purposes in the way of securing copper. Such action would be considered by millions of our people not only as unpatriotic, but as sacrilegious in the full meaning of the word.

Those who would resort to such a course should remember that this statue was erected to the memory of a great American who had served his country as a military leader in a time of stress.

This memorial should not be disturbed, and those in authority should see to it that it is not disturbed. There is not so great a dearth of copper as to make necessary the destruction of this memorial.

A CITIZEN.
Washington, June 26.

In spite of the fact that War Production Chief Donald Nelson seems to find it necessary to "scrap" some of Washington's famous historical statuary, landmarks an inspiration to many generations, it is my humble opinion that it is uncalled for, at least for the present. While it may be comparatively easy to replace such things as ornamental fences, decorative metal work and the like, once you toss time-honored statues in the melting pot of metal salvage, they are gone forever, unless you'd go to the costly procedure of having molds or similar forms made. And how much would they add to the total "production?" I'd say very little unless you'd scrap statues in other cities, towns and villages.

Besides, we haven't really "tapped" the possibilities of scrap metal resources in spite of junk dealers' activities. If there were a concerted effort such as in the aluminum and rubber drives, it's a safe bet to say that hundreds of tons of scrap metal could be uncovered and contributed in place of ruining historical emblems—not for their intrinsic value alone, but for their historical value, beauty and also to show that we don't yet have to resort to such tactics, which would be a tip-off to the enemy that we have to toss in the reserves of the last resort now—so let's have a save our statuary drive.

CARL OSCAR ARNBERG.
Washington, June 26.

As it has been proposed that we destroy our bronze statues, please let us begin with the one that is hidden down at the War College, the one of King Frederick II of Prussia, of whom the encyclopedia says: "He earned the title of Great though his people suffered and his country was utterly exhausted when peace was made in 1763 after the Seven Years War."

L. B. WOODWARD.
Washington, June 28.

There are, it's safe to say, thousands of tons of iron in the shape of steps in front of our private homes here in Washington which, if torn down and replaced by wooden steps, could be put into defense production and leave each house with an improved front and a better general appearance.

Of course we may have to take Grant Monument and the others, but Washington would look much better getting rid of the old iron steps. Not much beauty in them from an architectural standpoint.

Navy Cafeteria

Where does this Welfare Association get this title, "Welfare?" They certainly do not have the welfare of the Government employes in mind. The cafeteria at the Arlington Annex of the Navy Department, for example, is still charging 6c for milk. And now they have posted a notice that beginning July 1 eggs for breakfast will be 8 cents each and 15 cents for scrambled eggs.

Their lunches are 25 cents for a small portion of meat and a small portion of one vegetable, bread, butter and beverage. They sell you a fruit salad for 25 cents—no crackers or bread with it, no beverage. While the salads are very nicely made they overcharge about 5 cents on all of them. And as for potatoes, it is sinful. People buy them and can't eat them. I have bought (but not eaten) plain boiled potatoes that were not only cold but raw in the centers.

We are practically forced to eat in this cafeteria because of the isolated position of the Arlington Annex. And most of the new clerks, making $1440, and living in a room, are forced to eat breakfast there because of the uncertainty of the traffic situation you must get a bus at the Lincoln Memorial by 7:30 in order to be sure of getting to work at 8 a. m. So if you eat breakfast elsewhere you must eat around 6:30 a. m., and there are not many places open at that hour of the morning.

A well cooked, reasonably priced meal for the many would be a far greater contribution to "welfare" than tennis courts for the few who have the money to buy tennis rackets and the time and energy to play.

Whose "welfare" is this association looking after?

DOROTHEA SWAN.
Washington, June 26.

Propaganda Masterpiece

The Axis' greatest propaganda victory on us was in keeping Americans 80 per cent "against war" even when they weren't 80 per cent "for surrender." Had we been 80 per cent "for surrender" it wouldn't have been such a feat to keep us 80 per cent "against war." But to fool us into thinking we could go on being overwhelmingly against a declaration of war, and at the same time be able to cope with the Axis without such gigantic, absolutely drastic, mobilized effort as we are now having to make, against fearful odds, was a masterpiece.

If Americans could be so fooled once, it goes without saying that they can be fooled again. And it is to be hoped that they will sometime begin to learn to catch on to Axis propaganda of the moment, before the battle has been won. We are excellent at post-mortems; but like every other country on earth we refuse to discuss, or even to recognize the new propaganda drive, whatever it is, while it is upon us. Right at this moment there are new propaganda waves heading toward us, and engulfing us.

One of them is the idea that democracies are "war-mongers" and worship "war, force and destruction!" Another is that the democracies are "godless" and "materialistic" and "secular," and that it is a sin to fight for the continuance of such a society. Another is that the first 1500 years A. D. were a time of peace, holiness, order, unity, happiness, well-being and Christian fellowship; and that the modern "scientific era" has nearly killed Christian fellowship.

Americans should look all this sort of talk carefully in the face; and if need be, they had better get out some of their histories. They had better read John Milton's pamphlets, and Voltaire's pamphlets again; they had better brush off their Motley's "Rise of the Dutch Republic" and Buckle's "Civilization in England"—which might serve as lifebelts.

The Post Impressionist

Something Worth Fighting For

Recently, upon a specially arranged (write your Congressman) trip through The National Archives, one of Washington's supercolossal structures, I saw evidence of American creative genius.

Approaching from Constitution Avenue, whose beautiful trees have shadowed many passing Presidents, I beheld what seemed a monumental mausoleum, looming through a sudden morning shower. Myriad fierce raindrops pitched battle against streets, sidewalks, and cement steps leading to the vast windowless edifice. On this particular spring morning, magnolias enhanced the beauty of the colonnaded exterior. On the right, from a tall flagpole, a flag drooped. Higher, partially concealed by an enormous sculptured gable, is inscribed:

"The ties that bind the lives of our people in one indissoluble Union are perpetuated in the archives of our Government and to their custody this building is dedicated."

On the Seventh Street front, I had stood blocking the way of a woman attractive enough to start men of old fighting for her favors (with women today 10 to 1 man in Washington, gallantry doesn't flourish), peering upward from dripping umbrella, beyond Parthenon-like columns to read over and over:

"The glory and romance of our history are here preserved in the chronicles of those who conceived and builded the structure of our Nation." I wanted some idea of what archives are before meeting my appointment.

Outside the largest bronze doors in the world, I was welcomed by my guide, an archivist I had met in a Government office where I work, and where no class distinction prevented, as in European countries, chatting on equal terms.

Other doors inside the bronze ones open into Exhibition Hall, high ceilinged and rather somber. A few feet ahead, up low marble steps, are still other doors in low relief. Beyond is a circular room. Along its wall, waist high, is a semicircle of display cases, each a magnificent jewel box, more or less hermetically sealed, with glass lid, secret lock, and individual lights inside.

On display within these cases were census records dating back to 1790. I wished to look up the record of my birth, but didn't like to admit my age (no woman is that old). The National Archives, like the Census Bureau, is forced by pressure of war work to confine research on these records to war-related requests, such as those involving birth data needed for enlistments or by orders for war industries. Census records through the year 1870 are not considered confidential.

Turning from "Domesday books" of the Nation's early history, looking past Spanish American records, we searched for President Roosevelt's letter appointing baby Colin Kelly, jr. to West Point, commemorating his father's sacrifice of life at Pearl Harbor.

Next we admired the murals above our heads. Based on authentic pictures and busts, the portraiture, in bright colors and flowing costumes of the period (all men) were first painted on canvas and then affixed to the wall. Entitled "The Constitution of the United States," (on the right), and "The Declaration of Independence" (on the left), each is 13 feet 10 inches high and 34 feet 10 inches long. One almost hears a gentleman in "The Constitution" group stamping his wooden leg in protest against being mistaken for Peter Stuyvesant.

United States Government, functioning under the constitution for over 150 years, has accumulated incalculable volumes of records indispensable to the American people—particularly officials and scholars. To take care of this accumulation and have records available for use, after the fashion of other great nations, United States Government established in 1934 the National Archives, providing that "All archives or records belonging to the Government of the United States (legislative, executive, judicial and other) shall be under the charge and superintendence of the Archivist to this extent: He shall have full power to inspect personally or by deputy the records of any agency of the United States Government whatsoever and wheresoever located and shall have the full cooperation of any and all persons in charge of such records in such inspection."

From a dome is shed upon Exhibition Hall the finest example of indirect lighting in the world. A seeing eye light beam for burglar protection taxed my credulity the way superman does not that of children.

The building consists of two huge cubes, one inside of and projecting above the other. The inner cube is a gigantic concrete vault containing 21 levels of stacks, subdivided by numerous smaller vaults or stack fire walls and concrete floors, into rooms, and equipped throughout with every protective device known for records.

Among motion picture films stored in the archives is Margaret Mitchell's historic "Gone With the Wind," history within history, a gift to the Government by the producer. Recording of a Negro prayer meeting down in Georgia was something I wished to hear.

In contrast with modern seafare, old lighthouse records and ships' logs date back to days when pirates lured ships onto the rocks off Nags Head Bay. A complete list of all passengers entering the Port of New York between 1820 and 1919 is arranged in chronological order. For purposes of investigation and establishment of citizenship, these customs records are of inestimable value.

I bade my charming guide goodby within those great doors and noted the rain had retreated, and the sky was bright. My spirits soared, as did the flag in a light breeze. Suddenly, my faith in the triumph of America's way of life, as revealed by the National Archives visit, was as strong as the bronze doors.

For a moment I stood looking out over the Nation's beautiful unbombed Capital. A guard eyed me up and down in a way that would flatter a Mata Hari, his look seeming to shout, "Eternal vigilance is the price."

The Case Of Professor R

SOME TIME ago Collier's weekly published an article and maps by the professor of geography at Teachers College, Columbia University. It was called "Maps for a New World." It was an astounding performance. Much the most important aspect of it is not what Professor Renner thinks our war aims ought to be but how he thinks about them. For while he has no political influence, he is a teacher in an institution which trains teachers who go to all parts of the country. He is a professor in an institution which exercises immense influence upon American education.

The outlook for American civilization would be, I submit, very dark indeed if Professor Renner's habits of mind were to become at all general in American colleges. For they are the habits of mind which have caused the deepest concern to lawmakers and to teachers and to the doctors of religion in all ages and in all places. They are the habit of thinking of others as if they were inanimate objects, and the habit of thinking of oneself as above all human standards of good and evil. Professor Renner is no doubt a man of blameless life. But when his ways of thinking are found in a man of violent and active character, it may take a world war to subdue him.

IN THIS WAY of thinking we find always an overwhelming conviction that the man is appointed by destiny to improve the human race, to solve its ancient problems, to inaugurate a new order. The man is always convinced that he has heard voices, or that he has intuition, or that he has "scientific knowledge" available only to himself and a few of the specially initiated.

These warning symptoms are present in what, speaking "scientifically," we may now call the case of Professor R. His special knowledge is what he calls "political geography;" his appointed mission is the "designing of a new world map to meet democratic specifications." So he clears the ground for his task by dismissing all "the amateurs of the state departments of the various nations of the world" and goes on to say that "every map or blueprint for peace so far has been drawn by self-appointed amateurs."

PROFESSOR R's new world map to meet democratic specifications confirms the clinical picture which these preliminary warning symptoms would lead a student of of the human mind to anticipate. In those maps we behold a mind unconsciously conceiving a series of atrocious and irreparable crimes in order to make a more perfect world. Thus it is Professor R's view, arrived at by special geographical insight, that in a perfect world there would be "a Europe consisting of nine strong nations, any one of which would be strong enough to discourage aggression." Therefore, in order to make the nine strong nations Professor R advises the United States to murder the small nations and feed them to the bigger nations.

He believes, for example, that "to meet democratic specifications," we should exterminate the Swiss Republic, and then divide up its territory and its citizens among Germany, Italy and France. The reader must bear with me: I know this is revolting, but I must repeat that Professor R wishes to found a democratic peace on the political murder of the most ancient republic in the western world. After more than six centuries of Swiss independence, he wishes us to celebrate our victory over Hitler by dismembering the Swiss nation and placing the Swiss people under the domination of three strong foreign powers.

We may note in passing that Professor R has not specified whether the destruction of Switzerland is to be done by American troops, or whether we are to incite German, Italian and French troops to do the political murder for us. In any event, Switzerland is to be murdered.

WE ARE now no longer astonished at anything that Professor R may propose. Portugal, which has been an independent state for seven centuries must also die, says the professor because he likes only big strong states. Belgium too must die, and the carcass of the Belgium nation is then to be devoured by France, Germany and the Netherlands.

For the Netherlands, Professor R, in his fine scientific geographical spirit, has conceived a more subtly refined and masterly end. Having invited it to commit cannibalism on Belgium, thus ensuring it the everlasting hatred of the Belgians, Professor R wishes the Netherlands to incorporate itself within the British Commonwealth of Nations and end its days in the enjoyment of "full dominion status."

HIS OBJECT is, as we have seen, to have Europe made up only of big strong states. Therefore, Professor R proceeds to work out a plan by which Germany, which is already big and strong, may be made still bigger and stronger. Now Professor R is no Nazi. In fact, he is different from the Nazis, as any one must see from his proposal to make a somewhat bigger Pan-Germany than the Nazis used to claim.

Thus, in addition to most of Switzerland, Professor R gives to Pan-Germany Alsace-Lorraine, Luxemburg, some of Belgium, some of the Netherlands, all the Sudetenland, a large part of Poland, all of Austria, all of Hungary and a good fat slice of Rumania. Professor R seems to feel that if the United Nations defeat Hitler, they may be able to compel the Germans to accept the responsibility of becoming the biggest and strongest of the big strong nations of Europe.

ITALY MAKES an equally fat profit out of the war, which Professor R says we are fighting for democracy and to prevent aggression. As a reward for having been defeated, Professor R gives Italy the whole coast of Dalmatia and most of the coast of Albania, a cut out of Switzerland, a bite of France, Corsica, most of Tunis, Malta, and a greatly enlarged Libya.

On his ruling principle that the strong should devour the weak, France does badly as against Germany and Italy. France also loses Calais to England. But against smaller states France does very well indeed. Professor R gives France a cut of Belgium, Switzerland and Spain, thus making it certain that France will be hated by all her smaller neighbors and that France will hate all her large neighbors.

THAT WILL do for the present as evidence that Professor Renner is a case worth some more study, and so in the next installment of this fascinating story (which, being a serial, enables me to take a few days vacation) we must try to find out how Professor R got to be the way he is.

Wilson's Foresight

By Denys P. Myers

League Covenant

SAID Woodrow Wilson at Indianapolis on the first day of his Western tour on behalf of the League of Nations in September, 1919:

"For, my fellow citizens, if Germany should ever attempt that again, whether we are in the League of Nations or not, we will join to prevent it.

"We do not stand off and see murder done. We do not profess to be the champions of liberty and then consent to see liberty destroyed. We are not the friends and advocates of free government and then willing to stand by and see free government die before our eyes.

"IF A POWER such as Germany was, but thank God no longer is, were to do this thing upon the fields of Europe, then America would have to look to it that she did not do it also upon the fields of the Western Hemisphere, and we should at least be face to face with a power which at the outset we could have crushed, and which now it is within our choice to keep within the harness of civilization."

Wilson's words were not a stray remark. In the three weeks in which the President's health came to ruin, he uttered 150,000 words to 37 audiences, and the half dozen different forms of treatment of his matter all added up to the same thing. The quoted passage was rephrased again and again.

Wilson was no hero of the present writer, who had two chances to vote for him and took neither. But perhaps on that account my testimony that Wilson knew what the League of Nations could do, and how, may be the more convincing.

Wilson's foresight was even more accurate in what Germany was capable of attempting in Eastern Europe, "the tract of country between Germany and Persia," as he put it. Unless, he said, we remained in the concert of which the spending of American treasure and lives had made us a part, we have done a futile thing and the safety of the world established by the Covenant would be "undone at the leisure of those who are masters of intrigue, at the leisure of those who are masters in combining wrong influences to overcome right influences, of those who are masters of the very things that we hate and mean always to fight."

It was the political scientist in Wilson that made him see the Peace Conference results in those terms. He saw the League of Nations as the first step in establishing a responsibly interdependent world of states bound by the provisions of the Covenant; he anticipated a system of international relations which could be kept up to its standards by cooperative and concerted action. The important principles of the Covenant to insure peace in this system were to him three in number, Articles 10, 11 and 16.

At times Wilson called them all the "heart of the Covenant," and that rhetorical trick was made a joke in the Senate that did not help the serious consideration of the ideas. It was also true that Wilson, who made fluently popular instead of carefully phrased speeches, used language that was legally imprecise, and the opposing Senators made the most of that. But the troubles that those of us who were supporting the Covenant in Washington at the time had on that account are long since past, and what Wilson really meant can now be examined without partisan distortion.

"The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and exisiting political independence of all members of the League," says Artical 10. That is the only sentence in the Covenant that was exclusively Wilson's, and it was not an original idea with him. It was made the center of the treaty fight in the Senate, for the Republicans saw clearly enough that they had to score against the Democrat Wilson whatever else they did. In the Senate there were 30 or 40 versions of the effort to dissociate the United States from the Council's advice "upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

WILSON said the provision was essential and clear and that the United States could not afford to tolerate the types of aggression mentioned. He was so right 20 years or more before the fact that ever since 1937 the Government of the United States has been standing against aggressors of exactly the Article 10 type, was finally catapulted into war by them and is one of the leaders of the United Nations who are pledged to reestablish territorial integrity and political independence as fundamental principles of international life.

Article 11, always with Wilson a coheart of the covenant, says: "Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the members of the league or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole league, and the league shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations." The Senate paid no attention to it; to Wilson it was "the favorite article" because it established "that the peace of the world transcends all the susceptibilities of nations and governments." Our present war is Exhibit A of the truth of the principle. The way we tried to avoid its operation for two years goes far to prove its inevitability for the United Nations. And with all the American republics the United States now asserts that any act of aggression on the part of a non-American state against one of them is an act of aggression against all of them."

Lastly, Wilson thoroughly believed in Article 16, which originated with the League to Enforce Peace. Previous articles provide for the consideration of "disputes likely to lead to a rupture" by various pacific methods and obligate states not to go to war until after the result is known. Then, "should any member resort to war in disregard of its covenants," all undertake to sever all intercourse with it, since "it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the league." Military measures may follow.

The United States is at least as responsible as any other country for that plan not having contributed its full share in maintaining peace in the last decade. Wilson supported the article on the score "that any nation that attempts to do what Germany did will certainly have the world combined against it." The United States stayed out, at least a concentrated third or more of the economic power in the world.

Now the United States has finally come around to Wilson's way of thinking on the matter. The Export Control Act of July 2, 1940, made it possible to divert supplies from disturbers of the peace. The Lend-Lease Act of March 11, 1941, carried discriminating support of the law abiding beyond Article 16 of the covenant. The United Nations under the declaration of January 1, 1942, are fighting for the principles of the Atlantic Charter, which are consistent with if not repetitions of the things Wilson stood for.

Wilson claimed in 1919 that the principles here reviewed struck "at the taproot of war." On September 25, 1919, his last speaking day, he told his audience that "nobody can give you an insurance against human passion, but if you can get a little insurance against an infinite catastrophe, is it not better than getting none at all?" He added: "My calm judgment is that it is 99 per cent insurance against war."

Where would this war be if Wilson had had his way?

Wartime Washington

By Merlo Pusey

A Challenge To Voteless Citizens

LAST WEEK a member of Congress threw down a challenge to Washington. Some lackadaisical half-citizens of this voteless city may have interpreted Representative Paddock's proposal as a magnanimous offer from Capitol Hill to relieve them of their disfranchisement. But it was nothing of the sort. It was merely a gauntlet flung down in front of a community which, politically speaking, is still half asleep.

PUSEY

To be sure, Mr. Paddock has taken up the cause of the District of Columbia, as many Congressmen before him have done. After proposing that Congress forthwith set up machinery through which the District can elect a delegate to the House of Representatives, he is drafting a bill to carry out that purpose. But Mr. Paddock has no illusions about handing this voteless city a gift on a silver platter. He knows perfectly well that his bill will not be worth the paper it is written on unless apathetic Washington rises up and demands that Congress give the measure favorable attention.

In short, Mr. Paddock has merely opened the door of opportunity. Whether Washingtonians ever enter that door will depend almost wholly upon themselves. For the history of the 68 years since suffrage was abolished here has amply proved that Congress will do nothing about restoring this first right of democracy until a united community demands action.

THERE IS ONLY one voice that really moves a democratic government to action. That is the voice of the people. Countries with popular governments often permit atrocious abuses to exist until the people become aroused and demand the adoption of reforms. In other words, there is nothing about democracy that gives any assurance of good government or fair treatment of citizens. Democracy merely makes it possible for citizens to demand the adherence of public officials to the principles which the community wishes to uphold.

Now, of course, Washingtonians are under a great handicap in making their demands effective. Since the community is disfranchised there is no one to speak for it. There is no effective agency to mobilize public opinion. Undoubtedly this vicious circle works to the city's disadvantage. The people have no voice because they remain disfranchised because there is no voice of the people.

If progress is to be made, therefore, this vicious circle must be broken. We have to start from where we are. Since there is no official machinery for the mobilization of public opinion, unofficial machinery will have to be improvised. Since the community has no elected leaders, it will have to single out from its host of civic leaders a group that will become a spearhead for a community-wide movement. If the community does not have sufficient civic spirit to put over such a simple undertaking, all the talking we can do about home rule in the District will make very little impression.

MANY EXCUSES can be found, of course, for yawning and settling back into apathy. For one thing, all movements to restore the franchise have failed for nearly seven decades. The current proposal, moreover, would give the District only a voteless delegate whereas Americans living in the Capital are certainly entitled to as much representation in the National Legislature as those living in Philadelphia or Los Angeles. The proposal thus offers much less than many patriotic and enthusiastic Washingtonians have worked for over a period of years. Why should anyone get excited over the prospect of electing a voteless delegate?

When all the excuses for ignoring this challenge have been made, however, Washington must still choose between advancement and retreat. Failure to accept the challenge would virtually cut off hope that the city may regain a place within the circle of democracy in the near future. For the Summers-Capper resolution to give the District national representation has been turned down and numerous plans for reorganization of the local government have been thrown into the ash can. It is unmistakably evident that the community's best chance of making progress is to concentrate its energy behind this shorter step in the direction of the goal we wish to reach.

The most significant fact about the proposed election of a District Delegate is that it would give the city an acknowledged leader, which it now lacks. An energetic and intelligent citizen in that position could be of inestimable service to the District. He could focus public opinion upon disgraceful conditions that ought to be cleaned up. He could interpret the wishes of the city to Congress in a way that no official can now do. And, of course, he would notably minimize the burden of Congress in legislating for the District.

NO DOUBT the mere act of going to the polls to vote for a District spokesman would have an electrifying effect upon this disfranchised city. Civic and political interests that have been dormant since the days of Ulysses S. Grant would suddenly be revived. The present feeling of hopelessness because the community can do nothing officially to make its influence felt would at least be mitigated. Washington would once more be able to make its voice heard. And that is the beginning of all reforms and public improvements in a democracy.

There is every indication that the congressional sponsor of this idea is sincere in his desire to help the District emerge from its present hapless position. The effect would be much the same, however, if he had acted with a cynical desire to put the District on the spot. That is to say, he is putting our professed interest in a restoration of voting rights to the test. If the community decides to pick up the challenge, he and many other members of Congress will do their utmost to take Washingtonians out of the voteless category which they now occupy along with the insane, the illiterate and convicted felons. But if Washingtonians are not sufficiently concerned about the political company they keep to join in united support of this movement, our suffrage appeals are likely to fall upon deaf ears for a long time to come. What are we going to do about it?

Fair Enough

C. I. O. And The Press

New York, June 29.—Regarding the attempt of the C. I. O. Council of Fort Wayne, Ind., to muzzle the News-Sentinel of that city by intimidating the local advertisers, I think it should be pointed out that those advertisers and all other advertisers have as much at stake in any such fight as the proprietors of the newspapers. If they withdraw their business from our daily press under threats of boycott, the press will go broke. But it will not go out of existence. It will just cease to be a free press and will blossom forth as a subsidized press, of which Germany and Italy provide many alarming examples. The subsidized press can be very attractive, for it doesn't have to count costs, but the truth is not in it and, under a dictatorship advertisers are not solicited to buy space but ordered to do so and told how much they must pay. Not only that, however, but the people are told what they must believe, and I earnestly suggest that if the rank and file of the C. I. O. in Fort Wayne comply with a boycott order from their council, thus forcing the advertisers to slay the News-Sentinel, they will strike a blow against their own freedom of belief and expression. It seems unlikely that they will comply, but the threat is there, and it should be considered in all its ugly implications.

The wise American businessman who spends money to advertise should always realize that it is to his own interest and the interest of American freedom that he refrain from interfering with the editorial policy or the news judgment of papers in which he buys space. The press should be as independent of his judgment or prejudice in such matters as it is independent of pressure from political parties or agencies of the Government, and advertising should be placed with an eye only to advertising value. And the people, in their turn, ill serve themselves if they punish a business firm by withdrawing their trade because the firm buys space in a paper whose editorial and news judgment offends the political beliefs or personalities of men in control of their unions.

I can hear the C. I. O. Council of Fort Wayne now saying that I am pleading for my special interest as a newspaper writer operating under the freedom of the press. But my fundamental interest is no greater than the interest of any other American. George Spelvin, American, the rank and file machinist or toolmaker in a C. I. O. factory, has as much to lose as I have and should be wary just now because the unions, combined, by the exercise of their power to tax him, are in a position to try to set up their own press everywhere and compel the advertisers to play ball with them. In return for advertising revenue they surely would undertake to reverse the boycott process initiated in Fort Wayne and compel George Spelvin to trade only with approved stores, meaning those which buy space in the union press.

Some of them have done this already. It would be foolish to believe that any such power over news and opinion would be in innocent hands. Most of our big and powerful unioneers are dictatorial and intolerant and, by the exercise of union discipline, they would inevitably try to control through their press not only the whole trade of the business community but the news and opinion, too.

For a pattern, or, as we say in our trade, a dummy of the subsidized press, we have to look no further than some specimens which exist already. Charles E. Coughlin's paper was supported by a subsidy or rake-off from a large political following. We don't need to discuss its character, for we know it well. Another example, a paper published largely for the personal and political glorification of Henry Van Arsdale, of the New York Electricians' Union, purported to tell his 20,000 members the whole story of a shooting case in which he was convicted but finally released from accusation entirely by recantation of the wounded men. But, in telling the "whole story" to the members, his paper thought it unnecessary to tell them that the wounded men had been paid $15,000 out of the union treasury. The Nazi government gave support to some publications in its effort to organize Hitlerism here and Mussolini, by subtle but effective means, acquired a vociferous Italian language press in our midst.

But our daily free press, the commercial press, if you will, is cleaner than any other, and its independence has been maintained by the advertisers and the people who buy their wares. It will lose that independence and a subsidized press will take its place if the policy of the C. I. O. Council of Fort Wayne is executed generally over the country. That is a communist policy which, in the press, is exactly the same as the Nazi and Fascist policy and the Fort Wayne American rank and file will be extending their hands for the chains of totalitarian slavery if they permit their union bosses to use them to enforce this boycott.

Farm Cash Income At 22-Year High

The Nation's farmers received $11,830,000,000 in cash income from farm marketings, including Government payments, during 1941, the highest amount in any year since 1920, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

On the basis of revised figures, livestock and livestock products accounted for $6,450,000,000 of the 1941 total, while $4,794,000,000 came from crops and $586,000,000 from Government payments.

D. C. Attorney Joins Coast Guard

The District lost its second assistant corporation counsel in two weeks yesterday with the induction of William C. Martin, jr., in the Coast Guard as a junior grade lieutenant.

Martin, who is 31, joined the corporation counsel's staff on July 1, 1940, and was assigned to Juvenile Court. In November, 1941, he was transferred to Police Court, where he was serving up to yesterday. He lives at 1101 Fifteenth Street Northeast.

The first assistant corporation counsel to leave for the armed forces was Glen A. Wilkinson, also 31, who was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army about two weeks ago.

Wildcat Strike Halts Production In War Factory

Monroe, Mich., June 29 (AP).—Spokesmen for the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) announced that 800 employes of the Monroe Auto Equipment plant stopped work today without union authorization.

The plant manufactures war materials, according to William McIntyre, vice president and general manager, who said the stoppage started "when a small group of men who have been agitating for pay increases persuaded several hundred others to join them."

Approximately 200 employes remained at their machines and 100 others returned at the request of U. A. W. officials to keep two key departments open so that other plants which the company supplies would not be forced to close, McIntyre said.

Ads to Push Salvage Drive

By the Associated Press

New York, June 29.—The Advertising Council announced today that a national advertising campaign to promote a national salvage program in cooperation with the Government would be started July 13 through more than 11,000 newspapers.

The council, a volunteer group composed of newspaper, magazine, radio and advertising representatives, said the petroleum, rubber and automotive industries would set up receiving centers to collect junk—such as old rubber, rags, rope, burlap bags and waste fats—needed by the Government.

In addition to newspaper advertising, magazine pages and radio announcements would be used to "sell" the idea of salvage as a continuing effort for the duration of the war.

The council said a two-million-dollar appropriation had been obtained from 362 industrial leaders who compose the American Industries Salvage Committee to finance the program as a patriotic contribution to the war.

President's Aide Sees a Happy World

Atlantic City, N. J., June 29 (AP).—Eugene Casey, special executive assistant to President Roosevelt, predicted today that after the war "Government and business will walk hand-in-hand toward the building of a better world."

He told the National Industrial Advertisers Association that "in the post-war we will do away with dogmas that cause distrust and ridicule."

"Business," Casey predicted, "will accept legitimate enlightened guidance by intelligent, public-minded Government agencies in the same spirit that the people of the world will accept a policing of the world after a new peace has been born.

"We will build a new assembly line to replace the assembly line of war. This will be a dual Government-industry line; one of harmony, goodwill and understanding . . .

"We are destined to build a world whose air will be free, whose land will be free and whose seas will be free; a world without force or subjugation. . . ."

Youths, 18-20, Register for Draft Today

District will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. There will be no specific place for transient registrations, as provided in the other four calls, so that transients may register at the nearest point convenient to them.

For those jailed at Police Precinct Stations, precinct officers will conduct registration. Supt. Edward J. Kelly instructed the commanders yesterday to make a "careful check" of the cells and register all men in the enrollment age group.

Today's registration will not get numbers by a lottery as was the case of the earlier drafts, but will be called into service in the order of their birthdays, the oldest coming first.

The youngsters who register will be given the same set of questions already answered by their elders. They will be asked their name, residence and mailing addresses, date and place of birth and their employer's name and address.

The District Commissioners have urged all employers to give those working for them sufficient time to register.

Married Men Face Draft Here

those with wives and no children, it was reported.

Some local boards have just begun the task of classifying those who registered in the third registration February 16, so that 20-year-olds who register today will be called at varying times, depending upon individual boards.

Sixty days is the approximate time it takes to process a registrant, so that young men in the 20-year-old group need not expect a call before fall.

Class 1-A already is filled with enough men out of the first, second and third registrations to meet the July, August and part of September calls.

Forty-one selectees inducted at Fort Myer, Va., on June 16 and granted 14-day furloughs to arrange their affairs will report today to various Army camps.

their major objectives in their present drive in east China—the tungsten fields of Kiangsi—a government statement declared today.

The tungsten deposits are still far from the most advanced Japanese spearheads.

"The Chinese produce from 60 to 70 per cent of the world's tungsten, of which a good portion is drawn from Kiangsi, whose annual output is estimated at 5000 tons," the statement said. "Contributions from other provinces of China are: Kwangtung, 4000 tons; Kwangsi, 2500 tons; Hunan, 1200, and Yunnan, 1000.

Jap Sinking Verified

Allied Headquarters, Australia (Tuesday), June 30 (AP).—Allied reconnaissance crews reported today that a 4000-ton Japanese ship attacked last Friday in the harbor of Lae, New Guinea, by Australian airmen was now known to have been sunk.

Four More Vessels Sunk in Atlantic had sufficient time to abandon the ship in leisurely fashion.

William Holmes, first assistant engineer, and Willis Camp, oiler, were believed to have been killed in the explosion and F. Diez, wiper, also was lost.

The Norwegian ship was torpedoed at 9:30 a. m., June 14, off the northern coast of South America. Two torpedoes were fired, killing two men. The remaining 31 left the ship in two lifeboats and were picked up at 10:30 the following morning. Both crew and lifeboats were picked up.

Five hours later a torpedo hit the Yugoslav ship. The Norwegian men got back into their lifeboats and took to the sea again, nonchalantly remarking "here we go again."

The 11 men in one boat drifted for nine days before being picked up and taken to a South American port and then to a Gulf port. The other 20 were picked up and taken to a West Indies port.

Yugoslav survivors were reported to have landed in a Caribbean port, and Norwegian survivors understood two men were killed and 39 rescued from the crew of the second ship.

Frugal U-Boat Captain Salvages Ship's Supplies

A Gulf Coast Port, June 29 (AP).—Survivors of a double sinking of foreign freighters in the Atlantic May 14 finally have made port with the story of a frugal enemy submarine commander who reprovisioned his undersea craft with supplies salvaged after one of their ships went down.

The Axis submarine first sank a Norwegian freighter at night with loss of two of the crew of 33, and the following afternoon sank a Yugoslavian frienghter, which had picked up the Norwegian survivors, only 25 miles distant.

Survivors of the second sinking said that a large amount of ship's supplies floated out on the water when the ship sank, and a door was opened in the side of the U-boat and the crew raked in everything worth salvage. The commander gave the survivors in the lifeboat a few provisions.

captured Nazi bomber Pilot Hans Peter Krug in Texas after his escape from a Canadian prison camp are expected to be called as the first witnesses tomorrow in the treason trial of Max Stephan, restaurant owner, charged in Federal Court with sheltering and aiding Krug in his flight through Detroit.

Stephan, German-born naturalized citizen, sat unemotional, sometimes yawning, today as a jury of six men and six women was impaneled to hear the case, said by U. S. District Attorney John C. Lehr to be the first treason trial in this country since the United States entered the war.

Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle is hearing the case and Stephan is defended by Attorney Vern C. Amberson.

Lehr and Assistant United States District Attorney John W. Babcock said FBI agents who captured Krug in San Antonio, Tex., May 1, would be among the first witnesses to testify.

Krug, himself, also will be a witness, as will Mrs. Margarita Bertelmann, now held as an alien and also accused of harboring the German officer during his stay in Detroit April 18 and 19 after rowing across the Detroit River from Windsor, Ontario.

Stephan, 49 years old, is charged with 13 overt acts of treason related to Krug's flight. Penalty for conviction ranges from $1000 fine to death.

D. C. Suburb Rent Control Effective Tomorrow

In the largest single step yet taken "to bring relief from inflated rents," the Office of Price Administration yesterday ordered maximum rent regulations into effect tomorrow in Washington's Maryland and Virginia suburbs and 52 other war rental areas in the Nation.

For suburban Washington, the order means that, starting with rents for July, rates generally will be turned back to the level of January 1, 1941, a reduction affecting tenants by the tens of thousands living in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland and Alexandria City and Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Virginia.

OPA told tenants in this area that they could not be evicted for failure to pay more rent for their homes, apartments or rooms than was charged for those quarters on January 1, 1941.

Landlords were warned that, after a probationary period, violation of regulations might make them subject to suit for triple damages and criminal penalties up to a year's imprisonment and $5000 fine.

Named to administer the regulations as area rent director in the Maryland suburbs was James W. Woogerd, 1113 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park, Md. His area rent office will be at 816 Carroll Avenue, Takoma Park.

I. Chance Buchanan, 1421 North Fillmore Street, Arlington, was appointed to a similar post for the Virginia area. He will have an office in Clarendon.

The 54 areas in which rents were ordered reduced and stabilized contain one-fifth of the country's population, or approximately 26 million persons, OPA announced. Rents in 20 other areas are already under regulation, bringing to 35 million the total number of persons under the first Federal control of rents in the Nation's history. Ten of the 20 areas were enlarged June 1 and yesterday's regulations cover this new territory also.

The average rent reduction for the new areas, it was said, would be at least 10 per cent.

The Budget Bureau asked for 161 million dollars for OPA. An appropriations subcommittee cut this to 95 million dollars, while the full committee cut this figure down to 75 million. If the lowest figure is written into law, OPA will be able to employ approximately one-third of the employes it believed would be necessary to administer rent control. Paul A. Porter, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rents, yesterday told reporters it was expected that about 4000 paid employes would be required for this purpose.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson presented OPA's rent-control aims in broad outline in a joint press conference with Porter. Henderson emphasized that OPA is not "overeager" or "overambitious to bring the power of the Federal Government to bear in rent regulation."

"This is the largest move taken yet to bring relief from inflated rents," Henderson stated. "But I want to say this at once. We have not stopped yet.

"We will make rent control effective in any one of those areas as soon as conditions warrent, and as soon as we can recruit sufficient personnel and open offices to administer Federal rent regulation. How soon this will be I cannot say. However, I want to say to the people in those areas that we will get to your rents just as fast as you need us."

The rent order affects landlord and tenant in all maner of rented quarters — rooming house, apartment house, home or hotel. In general, rents are "rolled back" to some past date—such as January 1, 1941, for the Washington metropolitan area. Exceptions to this general principle will be made when the quarters either were constructed after the maximum rent date or when they have been substantially changed by some major capital improvement.

Landlords will be required to register all properties either rented or offered for rent by midnight, August 15.

A Pleasant And Practical 3-Room Home

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

BY RIGHTS this story of charm in a three-room home should be written for brides blithely settling down after the wedding. But not many brides of this war June will be so lucky as to be setting up housekeeping seriously . . . they will be kissing the boys good-by for the duration and staying with the folks, or else parking in a bachelor quarters in easy reach of jobs. Or else they'll be moving around with young husbands on defense jobs.

Unsettled?

But we hope an even wider audience will be interested in this story of a pleasant, practical small home. Those who are unsettled by the war, transferred into a new area by war changes in their firms, and those who have to curtail and so are moving from houses to small apartments will find ideas here.

The menage of the Harry Horners certainly makes the most of three rooms. Part of Mr. Horner's success here is due to the fact that he's a stage designer who knows a lot of tricks about arrangement, moving furniture, sliding panels and other theatrical abracadabra.

So then a curtain, quite a dramatic one of textural fabric, swishes back across the entrance hall to reveal the dining end of the foyer. The whole space can be one big room when the curtains are opened, but they provide privacy through to the living room when the table is being arranged. This dining spot is modern, with a table that opens out to seat six for sociable occasions but closes up into console size between meals. The chairs set together along one wall between meals to make a useful bench. The partition between this room and the kitchen is of glass blocks, which makes it a light and cheerful place at mealtime.

China Partition

The hall leading from this foyer into the living room is made to seem larger than it is by mirrows and the longest wall has a built-in book shelf arrangement with the lower part enclosed behind sliding doors to provide a lot of useful extra storage space. The guest closet doubles for storage by having part of the space partitioned with chintz . . . behind the chintz, off-season clothes are kept, leaving the space for guest coats as impersonal as you please with its chintz walls that zip open and shut.

The living room is spacious—done mostly in beiges with furniture in bleached finishes and highlight of green and terra cotta. Lots of books . . . a grand piano . . . a collection of theatrical costumed figurines displayed on shelves behind sliding glass panels . . . a long sofa made of sectional upholstered chairs . . . book shelves with the lower parts enclosed by sliding doors for extra storage—these are the things that make the room.

The bedroom has been arranged as a sitting room, which adds to the feeling of spaciousness in the small layout. But just because the whole floor space is not swallowed up by beds, none of the bedroom comfort has been sacrificed.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride's Untidy Person and Grimy Apartment Force Her to Face Fact That She Can't Cope With Work of Keeping House and Holding Job

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you give me any suggestions about budgeting of time? I have been married for about three months and try as I will, I seem unable to keep abreast of my workaday schedule. This conclusion struck me forcibly the other day, when I suddenly stopped to realize that my hair needed washing, my shoes needed cleaning, the windows were grimy, there were spots on the hardwood floor, and I was wearing an un-ironed slip.

To sketch in the background, I have an office job,—40 hours a week. I have a very large, one-room apartment, which has 10 windows in all. The chore of keeping them clean is beginning to get me down. I don't attempt too much cooking,—just breakfast and supper every day; and a real dinner twice a week (on weekends). So far, I have been unable to get hired help; but still, I have managed to keep the place clean and neat.

However, I have some unpainted furniture that I have been meaning to paint ever since we married. I have material for drapes, still untouched. And I would like to get a certain amount of essential reading done,—including the newspapers every day and maybe one good book a week. None of these things am I able to do. My husband says he just doesn't see where all my time goes. We do spend a good deal of time together of evenings, just sitting at home, talking and relaxing; but not a disproportionate amount, I think.

I have tried budgeting my time very strictly, assigning myself certain duties for each day of the week; but the plan doesn't work out practicably. I frankly feel that keeping the apartment, doing the cooking I do, washing the dishes, holding down my job, and trying to keep up my own appearance all add up to a bit more than a full time program. But on the other hand, I am sure there are women who handle an equal amount of responsibility with great efficiency. What is the secret? (Incidentally, I do resent having to cope with housework, while my husband has time to sit and read). JANE B.

Solve Problem in Terms Of Being Good Wife

DEAR JANE B.: All arguments of the so-called feminists to the contrary, I believe it is humanly impossible for a woman to be,—at one and the same time; and by modern standards,—a companionable, satisfying wife, a first-rate housekeeper and a well-groomed, efficient, clock-punching office worker. Homemaking and wifehood are still compatible occupations. Given a well trained servant (or as many servants as her scale of living requires) an exceptional woman might function successfully as a wife and careerist. And a professional woman of tireless energy, sans husband, might do a bang-up job in her special field and still keep a maidless household in superficially presentable order, with odd hours of time left over, for recreation and informal entertaining.

But any woman who undertakes these three projects simultaneously in this day and age,—when, by general consensus, pleasing appearance and comfortable efficiency at established tasks are taken for granted as rudimentary aspects of personal excellence,—that woman is heading for failure; probably on all fronts, to some extent; and likely to a catastrophic extent on the most exacting front.

Take your own case, for instance. Which is your most taxing assignment today: Holding your office position? Dispatching the house work? Or making a real success of the marriage? Whether or not you realize it, the business of keeping the marriage on an even keel,—by taking the initiative in establishing and maintaining a reciprocally satisfying relationship with your husband,—is the biggest job of the three. And already your natural incapacity to take the triple assignment in stride is having an adverse effect on that relationship.

You say you resent having to struggle with the housework of evenings, while your husband takes his ease. That is simply another way of saying that your husband has become the butt of your indignant displeasure. And it is clear that your husband senses your attitude, and is already on the defensive against it, with a counter-accusation of his own. In saying that he doesn't know what you do with your time, he is indirectly acquitting himself of blame for your exasperating predicament. He implies if you were a better manager or more efficient, you would have adequate leisure. It were idle to try to justify one attitude against the other. It were better to recognize that the conflict in viewpoint symbolizes the storm cloud on the horizon: the cloud as yet no bigger than a man's hand; the trouble spot brought into being by your doomed efforts to double in brass.

If you were an out-and-out extrovert, never so bored as when physically inactive, you might tear through your housework with the avidity of a greyhound chasing a rabbit, and thus find time-and-to-spare of weekends, for painting the furniture with slapdash enthusiasm; throwing together and hanging the drapes, polishing the window panes (at least on the inside) to a diamond sparkle, etc. But the fact is, you tend toward the leisurely, contemplative, discursive reaction to life; and therefore, in any case, would have more psychic need than another for systematic leisure in which to restore perspective. You have not only undertaken the impossible, but likewise the distasteful;—and it is this demoralizing combination that paralyzes your initiative and leaves you suffering quite as much from nervous confusion as from physical fatigue.

Your problem must be solved in terms of promoting successful wifehood. To this end, I believe it is essential for you to choose, forthwith and finally, between office work and house work. If your earned income is financially indispensable to the marriage, you must hire help at home. And you must learn how to "put first things first:"—by philosophically refusing to fret about less-than-perfection in the hireling's performance. By way of pulling yourself together, get the furniture painted and the drapes finished and hung immediately. If you haven't time to paint the furniture (and your husband won't; or you don't trust his competence) find a handyman to do the job; and have a seamstress in to sew up the drapes.

Ideally, you should get a half-time maid to come every afternoon to put the apartment in order, prepare and serve dinner and do the dishes; and, also do your personal laundry and the floor-polishing weekly, and clean the windows fortnightly. When and if you turn your hand to "getting a real dinner," it should be on cheerful impulse, as a form of recreation;—and not as a boring duty, grimly discharged. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

'Gleam' in the House

Bonita Granville, movie actress, says you can add "gleam" to your rooms—the priceless touch of well-kept, shining things — by merely arranging fresh flowers in low bowls, placing them on tables with mirrors or highly polished surfaces such as silver or brass plates behind the blooms. Incidentally, such mirror arrangements make small entrance halls look larger, can be worked out with the smallest of wall tables.

Smart Simplicity in Style Is Hollywood's New Code

Actress Marlene Dietrich, who was in Washington last weekend, is seen, above, wearing a navy blue faille suit designed after WPB victory regulations.

By Jane Driscoll

The Post Fashion Editor

HOLLYWOOD glamour and old time chi-chi are taking a back seat for that "just right look" of today's star. This was revealed last weekend when Marlene ("Million dollar legs") Dietrich appeared at Jelleffs to autograph war bonds and stamp books.

Wearing a navy blue and white suit Miss Dietrich put to shame the old Hollywood criterion that women must wear color and plenty of it to be smart. When asked how she managed to look so cool and fresh on such a damp, rainy day, she just waved her hands in the inimitable Dietrich manner as if to say, "Simple." (Easy, if you know how.)

Miss Dietrich's suit was fine blue faille, simply tailored with a stand-up notched collar on the medium length, one button jacket. Both the slit pockets on the jacket and the slim skirt showed evidences of WPB regulations. A matching faille beret contrasted with her blonde hair. The white blouse was a neat bit of draping, giving the appearance of two crisscrossed folds of fabric. Her gloves were white, worn with matching navy pumps and corde bag. The actress' hose were a light gunmetal color, making her famous legs look even more slim and curvaceous. From the top of penciled eyebrows (her only make-up with the exception of lipstick) to the tip of her pale pink fingernails she delineated simplicity of detail—once the secret of Parisian gowns; now the adopted creed of New York designers.

The star's low sonorous voice was as appealing as her attire, and did not fail in getting a rousing response from the crowd that had gathered. Women were packed like sardines in the store from stem to stern. Outside the store spectators were gathered for almost an entire block. A curiosity among the spectators was the woman who worked her way from the front doors to the bond desk waving her money in her hand.

Saving Ways

Electric Range Now Should Be Cherished.

June brides will be furnishing modern kitchens without electric ranges this year, according to the consumer division of the Office of Price Administration. The War Production Board recently froze electric kitchen ranges in the hands of dealers. Present stocks of electric ranges will be allocated only for new war housing, Army and Navy orders and lend-lease orders, but replacement parts will continue to be available for ranges now in civilian homes.

The lesson for home-makers is obvious: Electric ranges must be made to last as long as possible, and this can be done only if ranges are properly cared for and kept in good repair. Here are few suggestions.

Daily Cleaning

Give your range daily cleaning care, including outside surfaces, burners and units, broiler and oven. When the range is cool, wash the porcelain outside with warm soapy water. (If cleaned when hot, there is danger of cracking the porcelain finish.) Do not let spilled food dry or harden on range; it may cause discoloration. Be sure to clean acid, lemon juice, or vinegar, immediately, as it will remove the glaze from enamel. Nickel trim may be washed and polished with metal polish. Chromium trim may be washed with soap and water, dried, and rubbed with a soft cloth.

Food spilled on the open surface units should be burned off; cleaning the units with a stiff brush or sharp instrument may damage the heating coils. Salt spilled on the coils is particularly injurious.

Most closed units can be raised and the pan beneath removed for cleaning. Check your manufacturer's cleaning recommendations on this. Or use a mild abrasive to clean stubborn spots.

Weekly Overhauling

Wipe the oven with a damp cloth after use. Spilled food should be removed as soon as the oven has cooled. Use a mild abrasive, if necessary. Once a week remove all parts and clean the porcelain enamel lining of the oven with warm water and soap. Removable shelves can be washed with soap and water, and the wire racks can be cleaned with fine steel wool.

If your stove has a deep-well cooker, wipe out the lining with a damp cloth after using, and then dry it. An insulated lid should never be immersed in water. The deep-well should be allowed to cool thoroughly before the kettle is replaced.

A few other suggestions:

Do not use the oven as a storage place for food.

Keep in Trim and Avoid Illness As Patriotic Duty for Duration

By Ida Jean Kain

A lot of our minor aches and pains are our own fool fault—and we know it! And now that thousands of doctors are needed by our armed forces, it is up to us civilians to keep in such good physical condition that we won't be susceptible to every puny germ that comes along.

Under the present circumstances, the role of the homemaker is vitally important. It is the right food—coupled with a few commonsense rules for living—that builds up the resistance and endurance of the family unit and makes for a tough America.

The only way you can be sure that your menus supply the foods necessary to a high level of health is to check up. Take a look at your market list. It will tell the story.

Check Market List

How many eggs do you buy? Try to stretch your food dollars so that each child over three years old and each adult can have one egg every day. Each child under three years needs four eggs per week. When your purse feels the pinch, allow four eggs per week for each adult and each child over three.

And how much milk do you order each day? Enough so that the adults each get a pint and each of the children a quart? If you cannot afford to buy the entire amount in fresh whole milk, make use of canned and dried milk in cooking. The milk and eggs that are used in cooking count toward meeting the day's requirement.

Do you plan for a green leafy and a yellow vegetable every day in addition to potatoes? And what about fruits? Every member of the family needs two fruits a day. One of these should be citrus, such as oranges or grapefruit, or it can be tomatoes. The other can be prunes, apples, or whatever strikes the family fancy.

A Food Must

Both children and adults need a whole grain cereal every day. And all bread should be either the 100 per cent whole grain kind, or the enriched white bread. The cereals and bread must furnish the B vitamins that are so essential to steady nerves and high morale.

Everyone needs some fat and that which contributes most nutritionally is better—or one of the substitutes which has been reinforced with the butter equivalent in Vitamin A.

Adults and children over eight should have a serving of lean meat, fish or fowl every day and children under eight need from two to four servings of meat during the week. Meat organs have a high nutritional value and should be used as the meat course twice a week.

Don't just check your list once and forget it—go over the week's purchases every once in a while to make sure that you are buying health with the money you spend.

Fall Fashion Forecast

Clothes are going to have a more wholesome quality this fall, predicts Milo Anderson, Warner Brothers designer. "The lovely American girl will be dressed simply but tastefully," he says. "Clothes will complement the individual woman, rather than steal the limelight. That is what I had in mind in designing the clothes for Brenda Marshall to wear in "You Can't Escape Forever," which will have a fall release.

"They are extremely simple, have a pencil-slim silhouette, with square shoulders and fitted waistlines. They show very little trim. When they do, the trim is also a useful part of the costume.

"I really welcome many of the changes we must make to conform to the wartime limitations. For one thing, skirts in the past have had too much fullness. I feel that the trim, tubular skirt is more chic and flattering to the figure. Along with this type of skirt, I like the square-shouldered top.

"We will see a number of fitted coats this fall, the princess line being particularly adaptable to different figures. The boxy coat, too, will be popular. But there will be no swagger lines. For California wear, a sleeveless, tubular coat, to be worn over wool dresses, will give a flatteringly slim line to most women.

"Slacks will be more in evidence than ever before. They will replace the house frock in many instances, and even be seen in the home for casual dinner entertaining. In the case of slacks, Government priorities are a boon to the person who wears them and the person who sees them. In my opinion, Government priorities should have affected the cut of slacks long before this. I always disliked the loose, baggy, voluminous trousers that were prevalent last year. The newer, tailored, straight lines that conform to restrictions are very smart and trim.

"By no means must women fear that the glamour of clothes will disappear because of the wartime material restrictions. The trend will be toward greater simplicity, true, but line and cut will make them as lovely as ever they were."

IT'S ABOUT TIME to use theatrical materials for party place mats. A very good one looks like plio-film on a gauze base. Pink the edges of these. Paste on cutouts to suit occasion. We like red and white striped cotton candy canes on blue mats

Want to Know More About America? Ask Chinese Envoy Hu Shih, Who Has Covered 35,000 American Miles in Past Six Months

COVERING 35,000 American miles in the past six months, the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, has piled up what is probably the most stupendous travel record ever made by a foreign diplomat in the United States.

Dr. Hu Shih

Furthermore, he has received more honorary degrees than President Roosevelt; has made more speeches than Mrs. Roosevelt, and has received more invitations to address large gatherings than any other member of the Diplomatic Corps.

This week, for a change, he is staying in Washington. And, perhaps, if he can find any free time from conferences at the embassy, he may take off a few hours to look over the ten honorary degrees for himself, and the three for Mme. Chiang Kai-shek that have been handed over to him the past six months.

Almost every week since January, Dr. Hu has been enroute to some distant spot to fill a speaking engagement. He has appeared before innumerable United China Relief meetings; has addressed countless luncheon and dinner clubs and has appeared as principal speaker at as many commencement ceremonies as it has been possible to work onto his crowded calendar.

Nine times out of ten—exactly that—he has come away from a graduation exercise with still another honorary degree to add to a list so long that even the envoy himself has to refer to a well-kept memorandum in order to know the what, when and where of every degree presented to him in the past year.

Dr. Hu adores traveling; doesn't mind making speeches, and frankly admits that he gets a thrill each time another honorary degree comes his way. He never turns down an invitation to address a China Relief gathering unless, of course, he is already engaged for the time set. And he passes up few opportunities to meet and mingle with Americans no matter what the occasion may be . . . "I like people," he says with a smile, and as anybody in Washington will tell you, they like him . . . No diplomat here, in fact, is more popular than the dapper little envoy from China, who is a center of attention wherever he goes . . . and he goes everywhere.

"My only regret," he observed, wistfully, at a dinner party the other evening, "is that in my busy life now, I have no time to write poetry."

Flashback on Fashion Notes . . .

A Backward Glance: My vote for the three loveliest gowns worn to the Yugoslav reception Saturday evening go to (1) the flowing pink chiffon frock chosen by Mme. Loudon, who set off her costume with a filmy black lace mantilla; (2) the pale blue taffeta, styled on Edwardian lines, worn by Mrs. Francis Biddle; and (3) the blue, full-skirted mousseline de soie that had everyone looking admiringly in Mrs. Joseph Davies' direction.

Mme. Loudon

I won't vouch for the truth of the report, but practically everybody at the party had seen "someone who saw with his very own eyes" a well-known guest who had to have assistance to get back to her feet after she had curtsied to His Majesty King Peter . . . Several gate-crashers tried to get past the door during the opening hour of the party—but to no avail. One, a newspaper reporter, presented his police pass instead of an admission card. "But this gets me in anywhere!" he wailed . . . "Not here," he was told, as two aides showed him to the door . . . Having greeted more than 500 guests, King Peter took leave of the party shortly before midnight. An hour later, several hundred guests were still enjoying the party.

HITHER AND YON: King George of Greece, who is now in Montreal, will go to Ottawa tomorrow for a brief stay before returning to England . . . Venezuelan Foreign Minister, Caracciolo Parra-Perez, is back in Caracas after his extended visit in the United States and Mexico . . . Count and Countess Jean Pierre de Chambrun, who visited here recently, have taken a cottage in the Bayville colony at Oyster Bay, Long Island, for the season. They are planning to be back in Washington in the autumn . . . Mme. Espil, who has been in Hot Springs, Va., for several days, expects to remain there until the middle of next month. The Ambassador joins her there as often as he can get away from his duties here. Incidentally, the Argentine Embassy staff down to the last man declines to know "anything at all about" the report that the envoy is scheduled for a change of post and that a few months from now he and his American-born wife will be in Madrid. One staff member went a bit further. Said he, "The report has no foundation whatsoever."

Macardle Book Eagerly Awaited . . .

Washingtonians who remember meeting Miss Dorothy Macardle when she visited at the Irish Legation a few years ago are looking forward to reading her new book, "The Uninvited," a Literary Guild selection for August.

It was at a small, informal tea given by Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Irish Minister, that I first saw Miss Macardle. She had just arrived in this country (that was 1939) on a lecture tour, and was bent on telling the American public about the literature and folklore of her homeland.

A tall, slender woman with a windblown bob, quick gestures and a rapier-like wit, she turned out to be one of the most stimulating persons I have ever met. Somebody mentioned her book, "The Irish Republic," and conversation immediately got off on Irish politics. Suddenly, she called a halt. "Let's talk about something else," she said with a smile. "I always get into trouble when I talk politics."

Once, that "trouble" was a six-months sojourn in jail where she was committed on a charge of "quoting Shakespeare against the government."

Following her visit in Washington, Miss Macardle traveled extensively in this country and then settled down in New York for a few months. Then she returned home, and more recently she has been conducting broadcasts to North America from London.

Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds

ALREADY proficient in cooking, sewing, swimming, first-aid, salvaging and nature lore, the D. C. Girl Scouts are about to take a fling at aviation.

In fact, Mrs. Harry Thomas Jordan of Philadelphia, National Junior Air Reserve Wing Commander for Girls, National Aeronautic Association, outlined the program for Wing Scouts at a preliminary meeting last night at Girl Scout Headquarters, 1906 M Street Northwest.

Mrs. Jordan, who organized the first course for Wing Scouts in Philadelphia, told the Senior Scouts and their leaders, that while Wing Scouts will not take to the air actually, they will cover those aspects of aviation that will make them "air-conditioned."

Emphasizing the need for aviation training for girls, she said: "The deciding factor of the security of America rests in the successes of the air force. And the youth of today will be the air leaders of tomorrow."

"Volunteers when trained are an asset to the Government," declared Mrs. Jordan, "but untrained workers are a detriment."

Vocational Training Course

The vocational training course will include the construction of model planes, aerodynamics, meterology and navigation. Physical fitness will be stressed in the training course. This course will be available next week through the Girl Scout organization. The local Girl Scout Council will also send an adult representative to attend the Wing Scout training in Philadelphia, July 13 and 25. This representative then will help train Wing Scouts in the District.

Mrs. O'Neal Johnson introduced the speaker. Also, she explained that the Wing Scout program is a major feature of the 1942-43 National Girl Scout program for Senior Scouts. It will be correlated with the Junior Air Reserve of the National Aeronautic Association.

D. C. Federation Assists Drive For Rubber

The D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs went on a rampage yesterday. Purpose of the terrific push was to aid the Women's Division of the D. C. Salvage Committee to remind the public to bring in the much needed rubber, now being collected throughout the city for the war program.

Initiating a week's exhibit of salvaged rubber objects by the Women's Division of the D. C. Salvage Committee, Mrs. Arthur Charles Watkins, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, held sway yesterday at 1420 H Street Northwest. Other federation representatives on hand were: Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, first vice president; Mrs. Charles H. Pierce, second vice president; Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Housekeepers' Alliance.

Not only is Mrs. Newton Cordis Wing chairman of the Salvage Division's Central Committee of the District but she also serves in the same capacity for the federation, of which she is a member.

Teething Ring to Plane Tire

Rubber ranging from a baby's teething ring to a 400-pound airplane tire, as well as metals, from bottle caps to a radiator, were on display yesterday to prod the members to look into closets and kitchen drawers.

Today Mrs. Harry C. Cramer and the Girl Scouts will preside over the exhibit. Tomorrow the woman's voluntary division of the OCD, with Mrs. H. A. Rochester in charge, will preside over the salvage exposition. Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the D. C. Parent-Teacher Association, will represent her organization Thursday. And on Friday the Business and Professional Woman's Club will take over.

The exhibit closes Saturday. The D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs will hold a big rubber party, 4 to 6 p. m., that day at the home of Mrs. Henry F. Sawtelle, 6200 Connecticut Avenue.

Price of admission to the rubber party, which will carry out a patriotic motif in program, decorations and refreshments, is something made of rubber. The rubber collected will be turned over to the Y. W. C. A. committee of the United Service Organizations.

Committees Chosen

Member clubs of the federation through the conservation chairman will stage the celebration. Mrs. Wing, general conservation chairman, will have assisting her Mrs. Lee Ritter, Pro Bonata Club; Mrs. Lee Ashcraft, Housekeepers' Alliance.

On the refreshment committee are Mrs. John J. Darby of Political Study Club, chairman, with Mrs. Justin Macklin, vice chairman.

Other club representatives serving on committees include Mrs. George E. Fuller, Petworth Woman's Club; Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Women's City Club; Mrs. F. D. Ashburn, Park View Woman's Club, and Mrs. William C. Dulin, Junior Alliance.

Mrs. Watkins will introduce the speaker and then preside at the punch where also the eight past presidents of the federation will pour. All club presidents in the federation will be presented with badges.

Rubber Campaign Extended 10 Days

President, Told Drive to Date Has Been 'Disappointing,' Orders Continuation

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

Confronted by what was described to him as a "disappointing" total of 219,000 tons of scrap rubber in the campaign he personally started, the President yesterday extended the drive another ten days. It would have closed at midnight today.

The recommendation for extension was made by Interior Secretary Ickes in his capacity as Petroleum Coordinator, and William R. Boyd, jr., director of the Petroleum Industry War Council, which conducted the drive, opened nationally June 15.

Speaking for Mr. Roosevelt, Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, said: "In the face of the very serious needs for rubber, the total collections as reported today are disappointing. Hence, the continuation of the drive."

Second-Rate Showing Here

Washington made a second-rate showing. Boyd said that New York had the lowest per capita contributions and Nevada the highest. From bottom up, he listed the lowest per capita areas as New York, New Jersey, Alabama and the District of Columbia. The highest were Nevada, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and North Dakota.

Nevada produced 20.09 pounds per person, the District of Columbia, 1.24.

The campaign lags, Ickes stated, "particularly in the sense that latest figures do not indicate there is enough rubber coming in to provide the Army with what it needs and make possible any allowance for civilian use."

Should the extended campaign fail, Nation-wide gasoline rationing, suggested as a tire conservation measure, as coming nearer.

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday received an estimate that the Nation's rubber resources might drop 250,000 tons short of supplying military and public transportation requirements by the close of 1943.

Army's Requirements

Brig. Gen. L. D. Clay, of the Army Services of Supply, reported that rubber now on hand and to be accumulated before December 31, 1943, in this country and Great Britain was estimated at 1,276,000 tons. Testifying on the $42,820,000,000 military supply bill, the supply officer said that Army, Navy and lend-lease requirements for that period would total 866,500 tons. In addition, he said 226,000 tons were needed for buses and trucks and 150,000 tons must be set aside for use in reclaiming rubber. No allowance had been made for tires for private automobiles, he said.

The War Department, he said, had arranged with Price Administrator Leon Henderson to buy from private dealers soon approximately 21,000 tires it would need for its passenger cars and other light vehicles until 1944.

In belligerent mood, Ickes told reporters at the White House yesterday that "We suspect that there are people hoarding rubber, and there may even be people in official life who are doing a little hoarding." This he amplified to mean that considerable rubber could be found in public buildings.

Last week, Ickes tried to donate rubber mats in the Interior Department Building to the scrap pile, but the Public Buildings Administration locked them up. It was explained by the PBA that the mats were required to keep people from slipping on the tiled floor in rainy weather.

Yesterday he acted boldly. Emerging from the White House conference and espying a rubber mat at the Executive offices doorway, the coordinator rolled it up, called his chauffeur, had the mat tossed into his car and drove away—to a scrap pile.

It was O. K. with the White House.

No Goal Had Been Set

Early asked: "Why shouldn't he take it? I'll tell you that no one from the White House is going to try to reclaim it."

Immediately following the extension, taking the drive through July 10, Horace Walker, executive secretary of the District Salvage Committee, said the committee's activities would dovetail with the extended campaign in every respect concerning the collection of scrap collection.

Although Ickes and Boyd described the total of 219,000 tons, a total exclusive of rubber turned in since Saturday, as disappointing, no goal had been set because no one knew exactly how much scrap rubber existed. The speculation ranged between 25,000 tons and 10 million tons. The total, further, is exclusive of rubber held by junk dealers. A survey of their holdings will begin July 1, Walker stated. Figures on the contributions to the drive in Washington, to date, will be announced today.

Boyd reported the rubber collections by States, in tons, as follows, the figures covering the period June 15-27 except for Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Hawaii, where the reporting period is June 15-26:

Alabama, 4540; Arizona, 2205; Arkansas, 2555; California, 21,596; Colorado, 3267; Connecticut, 3926; Delaware, 269; District of Columbia, 410; Florida, 4319; Georgia, 2750; Idaho, 2816; Illinois, 10,000; Indiana, 7502; Iowa, 6100; Kansas, 5200; Kentucky, 3981; Louisiana, 1970; Maine, 920; Maryland, 1307; Massachusetts, 5094; Michigan, 8500; Minnesota, 8153; Mississippi, 1500; Missouri, 5602; Montana, 3750; Nebraska, 3855; Nevada, 1105; New Hampshire, 906; New Jersey, 2106; New Mexico, 1353; New York, 7163; North Carolina, 3070; North Dakota, 3224; Ohio, 10,000; Oklahoma, 9001; Oregon, 5689; Pennsylvania, 5500; Rhode Island, 834; South Carolina, 2011; South Dakota, 2125; Tennessee, 4364; Texas, 15,212; Utah, 1653; Vermont, 1120; Virginia, 2285; Washington, 7350; West Virginia, 2163; Wisconsin, 7881; Wyoming, 717; Hawaii, 541.

Nelson's Friend

T. J. Carney, Sears' Head, Dies at 56

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 29.—Thomas J. Carney, 56, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., died at St. Luke's Hospital tonight. He had been sufffering from heart disease.

His sons, Thomas, jr., 15, and Mel, 13, were at his bedside. His wife died last December. A daughter, Marcia Ellyn, 4, also survives.

Carney was a close friend and long time associate of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, who was executive vice president of the mail order house when given the Federal appointment.

Carney was named head of the concern in January, 1939, in a general promotion of officers brought about by the resignation of Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board. He succeeded Gen. Robert E. Wood, who became board chairman.

Carney was known as a self-made man, starting with the firm in 1902 with a temporary job as a clerk in the shipping department. He remained to become foreman of the department, director of operations in the Dallas store, general manager at Philadelphia and operating vice president.

After making a reputation for himself in establishing shipping routines for the company, Carney, as operating vice president, was charged with reorganizing for the depression years, when collapse of farm purchasing power threatened the business. Only in one depression year did the company sustain a net loss.

Glenn Dale Complaints Probed

Complaints about the quality of food served patients at Glenn Dale Sanatorium are being investigated personally by Commissioner Guy Mason, it was learned yesterday.

Mason announced that he believed the sanatorium's problem, which last week was called to the attention of the Senate District Committee by more than 80 patients, was due probably either to a personnel shortage or poor organization.

He said that he planned to ask Dr. Daniel Finucane, the hospital's superintendent, to visit the wards and discuss complaints with patients at least once a week. Mason also said he would propose that an inspection visit to the institution be made at least once every two or three months by Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

Navy Dept. Cited as Foe Of Pipeline

By the Associated Press

Criticism of both the Navy Department and the Office of Petroleum Coordinator in connection with the East Coast oil shortage came today from two witnesses testifying before the Senate Commerce Committee in support of the proposed Florida Barge Canal and pipeline.

Henry H. Buckman of Jacksonville, consulting engineer representing the Ship Canal Authority of Florida, told the Senate committee that in 1939, during conferences at the Navy Department, he had warned that additional pipelines should be constructed to move oil from Southwestern fields to the East Coast in the event submarines cut off the use of tankers.

His suggestion was passed off with assurances that there were sufficient pipeline facilities existing then to take care of any emergency, declared Buckman. He did not name naval officials with whom he had talked.

Nation-wide Benefits Cited

The Floridian urged approval of the Florida barge canal and pipeline as a general aid to transportation facilities for the entire country, declaring that it could be put into operation in 24 months on a scale adequate to carry all the oil and dry cargo tonnage normally carried in peacetime by coastwise vessels from the Gulf Coast to the Atlantic seaboard.

The committee had under consideration a House-passed bill (H. R. 6899) to authorize the canal and pipeline.

E. B. Germany of Dallas, representing a group of independent oil producers in Texas, told the committee that six months ago the Office of Petroleum Coordinator had been given a detailed program for relieving the Eastern oil shortage by laying of a 10-inch pipe across Florida.

Companies "Going Broke"

"We've waited since February and are going broke just as fast as we can because we can't get our oil moved," he said.

He declared that if the recommendation had been followed by the coordinator's office, oil could have been moving through the line within 90 days and that a minimum of new materials would have been consumed. He said that unused pipes in Texas and Louisiana would have been relaid.

Enough steel plates for 100 ships... turned out in 1 month

BUT WE ARE STILL NOT SATISFIED

UNITED STATES STEEL alone in the month of May turned out enough plates for 100 ships—more than enough for three ships a day.

March was a previous big month; but the increased production in May over March was enough for 12 extra ships.

That's the way the production is spurting in every United States Steel plant.

A few more examples:

More than twenty months used to be the normal time for building a destroyer from keel to delivery. Now we build one in less than eight months.

In May we shipped our millionth bomb shell, and had by that time delivered over five million pieces of ordnance.

One of our companies erected the steel work for a huge new aircraft plant in only 53 days. It also launched four coal-carrying barges a week for 13 weeks.

No matter how many records we break—how fast schedules are pushed ahead—the men of steel will not be satisfied until they've delivered more than enough steel for every war need—enough for total victory.

All this is bad news for Hitler and the Japs. The news for them will get worse.

WPB to Have 18,672 Employes in D. C.

War Production Board will have 18,672 employes here under the terms of the appropriation bill reported to the House yesterday. More than 5000 others will be located in the field . . . Donald Nelson has sent his WPB reorganization plan to the President for an okay. The plan proposes the abolition of the WPB materials, purchases, and production divisions and the creation of small units. For all practical purposes the production and purchasing functions already have been transferred to the War Department. However, the aircraft and machine tool production units will remain at WPB. The Army-Navy Munitions Board will be abolished and its functions moved over to WPB.

Justice lawyers yesterday were searching for laws which would give the Government legal grounds for shooting the German spies captured over the weekend by the FBI . . . Paul McNutt has left it up to his division heads in War Man Power and Federal Security whether to work July 4. Most of the offices are expected to close. Attorney General Biddle also has left the decision up to division heads. About half of Justice employes will be ordered to work.

The latest line-up at the ffice of War Information oposes that Bob Sherwood placed in charge of foreign ws, Bob Horton would be rector of the press division, well Mellett in charge of dio, motion pictures and aphic arts, and Archibald cLeish would head the inligence division. MacLeish's b would be to take polls of public opinion to find out what the people were thinking and talking about. Both Office of Facts and Figures and the Office of Government Reports have been doing some of the intelligence work and the two would be merged under his direction.

Hinckley May Resign

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert Hinckley is expected to resign soon to enter private industry. He'll be difficult to replace. He displayed great foresight when he started the student pilot training program . . . John Lord O'Brian, WPB general counsel, is one official who won't have a dollar-a-year man on his staff. He doesn't believe in the dollar-a-year principle . . . Clyde Aitchison will become chairman of Interstate Commerce tomorrow . . . The appointment of Office of Civilian Defense Boss Jim Landis to a little cabinet spot in Treasury is being rumored again. Senator Walsh of Massachusetts threatened to block confirmation some time ago. Incidentally, OCD enjoyed a new experience yesterday. It was given a pat on the back by the House Appropriations Committee. OCD's work, the committee reported, has "been thoroughly reorganized. . . . and the House will be gratified that the basis for criticism which formerly existed has been removed."

The committee suggested that the 1650 Army and Navy officers assigned to the Office of Censorship could be of a greater service to the country if they were ordered to active military service. Censorship's budget was cut a million dollars. It asked for a staff of 16,240 civilians and 1650 military and naval people, a total of 17,890 . . . The new Office of War Information will be financed temporarily from the President's fund. The House committee warned, however, that it expects the new agency to economize and that it "looks forward to a budget constructed on that basis."

Bonus Still Sought

The postal workers are still opposing action on the Administration's bill that would pay overtime to all employes paid less than $2000. They want a bonus and that's that. They're now accusing the President of all sorts of things. Apparently they are naive enough to believe that Congress would pass the $200 bonus bill that would cost more than half a billion dollars . . . Hard-working Joseph Eastman's Office of Defense Transportation will have a staff of 1956 employes under funds approved by the House committee . . . Harold Ickes' Office of Petroleum Conservation will build its staff here to 266 employes and its field staff to 357 workers under the House bill.

Record D. C. Supply Bill Is Signed

$56,313,851 Grant Only Slightly Below Original Estimates Of City Officials

By Roger Young
Post Staff Writer

The District's record appropriation bill was signed by President Roosevelt yesterday, authorizing the Commissioners to spend $56,313,851 to run the District government during 1942-43.

Trimmed by but a few hundred thousand dollars from the original estimates submitted to Congress, the final bill was regarded by District officials as "highly satisfactory." "As a matter of fact," said one budget official, "it was an excellent bill even when it left the House, which had cut out some items the Senate later restored."

Priorities Cause Cuts

Most of the items cut were for projects, such as new schoolhouses, for which priorities on materials could not be obtained anyway. The increase most pleasing to District budget officials was one raising the payment on the PWA debt from a one million dollar installment in 1942-43 to one of $2,500,000.

New items in the appropriations were: For the new Municipal Court, $222,845; for the new Municipal Court of Appeals, $44,600; for the new fringe parking board, $16,200, and for the new Recreation Board, $384,894.

There were substantial increases in the appropriations for the Health Department for new inspectors and for a school physical education program, to the Police Department for 195 new policemen (most of whom have already been employed under deficiency appropriations) and to the Fire Department for erection of a new firehouse at North Capitol and Crittenden Streets.

There were slashes in the Welfare appropriation, which didn't particularly bother District officials as the relief rolls have dropped anyway. What they did object to was the retention of ceilings on amounts payable to relief clients.

Traffic Funds Denied

Another disappointment was the disallowance of funds asked to reorganize the Traffic Department. The general revamping announced some months ago was contingent upon ability to hire more persons and to pay them better.

The bill did not allow the 115 per cent increase in water rates petitioned in the original estimates. However it provided for a 10 per cent penalty on water bills more than 10 days overdue. Previously the District's only recourse against delinquent accounts was to cut off the water supply, which inconvenienced the consumer, but brought no revenue to the District.

A million dollar allotment for beginning the new South Capitol Street bridge was included, but will probably not be used, as Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst said Saturday that it would probably be impossible to get the materials for this construction this year, if for the duration of the war.

Rally Today Opens Retail Bond Drive

Band, Stage Stars, 32 Beautiful Girls To Start Campaign In Post Square

Step right up folks—for the big war bond rally at 9:45 a. m. today when music, flags and 32 beautiful girls from the Earle and Capitol stage shows will launch the retailer-for-victory drive in a giant 15-minute pep session on the steps of the District Building.

Cheerleader will be Jay C. Flippen, well-known master of ceremonies, who is famous for being half the fun of "Hellzapoppin." Jessica Dragonette, popular singing star, has also volunteered her talents to add impetus to the show, and Post Square will resound with martial music of one of Washington's service bands.

If it rains, the rally will be held in the Capitol Theater.

All of this is to prepare Washington for the retailers' July War Bond drive, a part of the billion dollars a month national drive America begins tomorrow. July War bond quotas announced yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau put the District goal at $6,250,000 of the billion dollar total. July is the first billion dollar quota month since the quota system was inaugurated in May with a goal of $800,000,000.

Washington will experience its first "white-out" tomorrow noon, when the retailers officially begin their drive. During the 15 minute "white out," which is nation-wide, only war bonds and stamps will be sold in the stores. On the stroke of noon, strains of the national anthem will stop shoppers in the District stores. Guy Mason, District Commissioner, will speak briefly over the public address systems many stores have set up.

Bruce R. Allen is chairman of the retailers' campaign in the District and is being assisted by H. L. Rust, jr., John Clifford Folger, Martin T. Wiegand, Leroy Herron, Mack L. Langford, Edward Shaw, Kirk Miller, O. F. Ballou, Don H. Bernard, Harvey Cheston, Mrs. Lawrence T. Dewhurst, Arthur H. Hahn, James Hardey, Joseph R. Harris, sr., Lawrence Heller, C. R. Gas Price Boost Draws Fire in Senate

Outbursts of criticism in Congress marked the first day of the 2½-cent increase in gasoline prices ordered by the OPA to go into effect along the Eastern seaboard yesterday.

The attack was led by Senators Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina, and George (Democrat) of Georgia, both directing the weight of their arguments against the discriminatory nature of the order.

Leon Henderson, OPA chief who ordered the increase, meanwhile was testifying before the House Appropriations Committee that he had no intention of changing his decision not to allow a higher price for crude oil. Henderson also told the committee that there had been more violations of gas rationing noted in the East than of any other kind of rationing.

Henderson reported more cheerfully that the production of 100 per cent octane gasoline has shot 50 per cent above early estimates.

Attack Entire System

In his outburst against the gas charge, which was expanded to include the entire rationing system, Smith complained that small filling stations were going broke while producers were to receive a higher price for gasoline. He said that Congress should recall some of the power it had delegated to "miserable misfits."

Sugar rationing was unnecessary, Smith said, citing cases of producers allegedly having to store their sugar stocks in the open because there was no more room in the warehouses. He called on Congress to declare the entire sugar rationing program "null and void."

George, declaring the gas price increase to be "iniquitous," demanded that rationing and the higher charge be spread over the entire country, instead of confined to the East Coast States.

Gas Famine Continues

The increase, ordered to reimburse the oil producers for increased cost, especially in transportation, has been a source of contention between Henderson and Congress ever since it was first proposed. In announcing it last week Henderson said that it could have been averted had Congress approved subsidy legislation whereby the Government would pay the producers for the extra trouble and expense.

Even motorists who did not mind paying the extra pennies for gas were not able to do it in very many places in the East, however, as the worst gasoline drought to date continued yesterday.

Not half the District gasoline stations were reported to be open yesterday, following a Sunday on which there was but one station in Washington open and that for only 25 minutes.

While the price of gas was boosted and the East Coast supplies seemed dwindling, the OPA announced revisions in its ruling that the reproduction of a war bond seal on "A" and "B" gasoline cards might be used to purchase gasoline.

Seal Good July 15-21 Only

The latest word is that these seals may be used to buy gasoline only between July 15 and July 21. Previously they had simply been announced as good for one portion of gas, as an expedient to get motorists over the interval between July 1, original expiration date of the temporary rationing program, and July 22, when the permanent plan becomes effective.

The value of the bond seal will vary with the type of card, it was also announced. A seal on an "A" card will be good for only three gallons of gas, on the "B-1," for four gallons; "B-2," five gallons, and "B-3," six gallons. For motorcycles, the seal on the "A" card will permit the purchase of 1.2 gallons, the "B-1," 1.6 gallons; the "B-2," two gallons, and the "B-3," 2.4 gallons.

Uncancelled units on the ration card, now good for six gallons each, may be used until midnight, July 21. Any new card issued between now and July 15 must have six units torn off, and those between July 15 and July 21 must have all units removed, leaving only the ration position provided by the seal.

Pro Arte Quartet Plays Season's 4th Starlight Concert

C. C. Cappel and Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress present the Pro Arte String Quartet (Antonio Brosa, Laurent Halleux, Germain Prevost and George Sopkin) on Monday night in Meridian Hill Park. Program: Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5 (Haydn), Quartet in A minor, Op. 29 (Schubert), Quartet in F major, Op. 96 (Dvorak).

Starlight in fact as well as in name was the fourth concert in the second summer series of chamber music programs in Meridian Hill Park last evening. Since its inception in 1941, this enterprise has been fortunate in the number of fair nights and in the infrequency of postponements because of inclement weather. While the Pro Arte Quartet's second concert began in the twilight hour under a pale and cloudless sky, it was not long before the deeping blue of space was pricked here and there by the brilliant points which have stirred many more minds than Immanuel Kant's to awe at the wonders of the stellar universe. In the large audience there must have been habitual concert-goers who felt the indefinable charm in the combination of nocturnal peace and significant music.

BROWN

A listener could simultaneously withdraw into himself and expand his spiritual sphere in a way impossible within the walls of a concert hall where the presence of others is a patent oppression. He could become conscious of a freedom of the spirit in communion with art which has been well expressed by Evelyn Underhill in one of her lectures: "In moments of heightened sensitiveness, and especially under the peculiar influence of esthetic feeling, the psyche loosens its frenzied grip on the obvious world and becomes aware, dimly yet most vividly, of deeper, richer, more universalized realities than the logical reason can reach."

One could experience this release from materiality the more readily last night because the visiting artists did not offer any unfamiliar compositions which require mental concentration for their understanding. All three works on the program were old friends whom one greeted once again with the kind of pleasure stimulated by excellent performance. The first was Haydn's D major quartet, which was long ago provided with two nicknames, "The Lark," from the trilling bird-like principal theme of the first movement, and "The Hornpipe," from the tapping and rapid rhythm of the finale.

The second composition was Schubert's A minor quartet, that melodically lovely work in which he either consciously or instinctively took revenge upon the citizens of Vienna. The quartet was written not long after the conspicuous failure of his opera, "Rosamunde," and from it he salvaged certain ingratiating themes and immortalized them by weaving them into the andante. The closing work was Dvorak's F major quartet composed immediately after the "New World" symphony and, like it, filled with the deepest nostalgia for his native Bohemia.

For the novice in chamber music, both concerts by the Pro Arte Quartet have had educational value, for they provided admirable expositions of standard compositions; for the seasoned listener, they have been very disappointing in the absence of novelties, and particularly of American works. The ensemble is no longer "of Brussels," but "of the University of Wisconsin," and the players are Americans. They could be of invaluable service to native art by building up a repertoire of quartets by American composers. Their consultation of "Living American Composers" by Mrs. Claire Reis would put them on the track of at least 165 quartets by contemporary writers, and there are plenty more not listed in that book.

Columbus Students Refused Ouster Of Trustees

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue of District Court yesterday dismissed a petition of students in the Columbus University Junior College asking that the board of trustees be ousted and that it be restrained from permanently closing the school at the end of this semester.

In granting the trustees' motion to dismiss the students' petition, Justice O'Donoghue upheld the contention that no contract existed between the student body and the university. Hence, the students had failed to present a legal basis upon which relief could be granted.

The students, in seeking an injunction against the board, had alleged that closing of the school would have resulted in "serious and irreparable injury" to them.

U. S. Opens Tire Rationing Case Against Hundley

Government testimony in the trial of Hiram Ben Hundley, Washington tire merchant charged with violation of an OPA rationing order, began yesterday before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough in District Court.

Hundley, whose business headquarters are at 3446 Fourteenth Street Northwest, is accused of selling tires to the Star Publishing Co., the Diamond Service Co. and the Premier Purchasing Co. in violation of OPA regulations.

Although the jury was selected Friday, three seats in the box had to be filled yesterday following dismissal of three jurors. The reconstituted jury, excluding the two alternates, who are men, is divided equally between the sexes.

Twelve Guards Voted for Airport

A supplemental appropriation of $28,500 additional for maintenance at the Washington National Airport was approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

The item provides for 12 additional guards and the purchasing, repairing and cleaning of their uniforms, and other necessary national defense activities. The salaries of the new guards will be $20,740, and the allotment for the purchase and maintenance of their uniforms was increased from the original $750 to $1570.

John Groves, manager of the airport told the committee the additional guards were necessary for the protection of four additional posts: The airway traffic control tower, the Weather Bureau, the Terminal Building ramp, and the access to the downstairs working offices.

300 of Capital's Boys Off to Camp For Two Weeks

Nearly 300 Washington boys began free two-week vacations yesterday at camps sponsored by the Boys Club of Washington and the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and 200 more looked forward to July 10 when they will begin a similar holiday at the camp sponsored by the Volunteers of America.

At the Metropolitan Police Camp near Suitland, Md., 180 city-bound youngsters will shake free the summer heat shackles—to be succeeded in a fortnight by a new batch of 180. Sergeant Forrest Binswanger is the director.

Boys Club of Washington sent 100 boys to Camp Reeder, under direction of Arthur Fyfe. The same two-week rotation schedule will be followed by this organization.

On July 10, Maj. Walter O. Urley will lead his 200 charges to the Volunteers' Camp Brandon, near Annapolis. This group is made up largely of undernourished children and provision is made for those who do not respond to the health regimen in the allotted time to remain for the entire eight-week session.

Army to Take Over W. Va. Guard Camp

Representative Randolph (Democrat), West Virginia, stated yesterday the War Department had authorized him to announce that about August 1 the National Guard camp at Camp Dawson, near Kingwood, W. Va., would be taken over by the Army as a military police training camp.

The number of men to be trained at the camp and other details were not announced.

Subcommittee Sets Hearing On Blackouts

With opposition developing from the Federation of Citizens Association, consideration of the District blackout bill was referred yesterday to a House subcommittee on national defense for a hearing tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Following a meeting of the full committee, Chairman Jennings Randolph appointed Representative Hunter (Democrat) of Ohio as chairman. Serving with him are Representatives Russell of Texas and D'Alesandro of Maryland, Democrats; Bates of Massachusetts and Shafer of Michigan, Republicans. Chairman Randolph said he would be an ex-officio member.

Harry Wender, executive vice president of the Federation of Citizens Association, said his group approves the broad principles of the bill, but protested against certain "strong language," which he averred gave the Commissioners greater authority than that in other communities. One of the bill's provisions empowers the Commissioners to confiscate private property in an emergency.

Wender wanted additional money from the public funds, so that all of the 66 local civilian defense committees would be able to have sufficient equipment without digging into their own pockets, "or passing the hat," in their respective sectors. He maintained it was the duty of the Government to finance civilian defense activities. He added, whether the appropriation was increased to one million or two million dollars, his organization would be willing to stand the increase in taxes, provided the 66 committees did not have to beg for private funds.

Noting Wender's argument, Chairman Randolph appointed the subcommittee, adding that it would be advisable to take more time in molding a bill that would be more acceptable to citizens and the Government alike.

Those invited to appear at tomorrow's hearing include Corporation Counsel Richmond Keech, Col. Earl S. Patterson, representing the War Department; Col. Lemuel Bolles, Director of Civilian Defense; Hugh H. Obear, chairman of the committee on blackouts, District Bar Association, and Wender.

Tool Engineers Elect

Potomac Chapter No. 48, American Society of Tool Engineers, last night announced election of officers for 1942. They are Raymond C. Harbst, U. S. Naval Gun Factory, chairman; Ernest M. Seifert, U. S. Naval Torpedo Station, first vice chairman; Harold P. Berry, Naval Gun Factory, second vice chairman; Frank J. Rawson, Bureau of Standards, secretary, and Edward A. Peterson, Naval Torpedo Station, treasurer.

Girl, 3, Injured By Car; 3 Other Persons Hurt

Darting into the street from the front of a parked automobile, a 3-year-old girl was hit by a car and critically hurt at the Glen Echo-Cabin John School in nearby Maryland late yesterday.

The child, Patricia Dunford, of 20 McKay Circle, Cabin John, was brought to Georgetown Hospital with possible internal injuries and brain concussion by Hilary B. Witt, 42, of Main Street, Cabin John, listed by police as driver of the automobile. The car's wheels passed over the girl's body.

Earlier, two persons were hurt in traffic crashes in the District.

John J. Jones, 27, of 1405 Columbia Road Northwest, a Government messenger riding a motorcycle, collided with a station wagon at Constitution Avenue and Tenth Street Northwest. The driver of the station wagon failed to stop and was being sought last night by police. Jones was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Mary Newman, 47, and her 3-year-old son, John, of 1701 Ninth Street Northwest, were struck by a Capital Transit Streetcar at the intersection of Seventh and P Streets Northwest and were treated for bruises and sprains at Freedmen's Hospital.

Verdict in Robbery Slaying Is Upheld

William T. Mumforde, 20-year-old Negro cook, lost a plea in U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday for reversal of his conviction of first degree murder in the fatal shooting February 15, 1941, of Fanny Cohen, 62, in her dress shop at 1512 U Street Northwest.

Attorneys for Mumforde contended that the youth had entered the shop intending to rob, but had changed his mind. The gun went off accidentally, they claimed, after he had tried to frighten Mrs. Cohen so that he could escape.

The court based its opinion on the testimony of an eyewitness who had said Mumforde's entry into the store and the shooting were virtually "simultaneous."

New Life Flows Into Bosox Hopes

Boston, June 29.—All of a sudden Boston has been re-struck with the notion that its Red Sox can win the American League pennant. Hope once abandoned has been fanned anew by the slump of the supposedly invincible Yankees and some right fair baseball by the Red Sox themselves.

POVICH

Two weeks ago pennant talk in Boston was dead as Paul Revere. The Red Sox were stumbling around in third and fourth place and the Yankees were breezing along 10½ games in front of Joe Cronin's club. The town was apprehensive lest the Red Sox might not finish second, the pennant seemed as far away as Shangri-La. But that was two weeks ago.

Now look at 'em. The Yankees have sort of come back to the Red Sox with a disastrous Western trip while Cronin's club was getting an edge in every city of the tour. The Yanks lost 9 of their 14 games in the West, the worst Yankees' expedition in recent history, and the Red Sox chipped five games off New York's lead. Today the Red Sox are only 5½ games out of the lead.

It's a new face in the pennant race Boston thinks and it may be. The Red Sox after all their travel are finally getting some good pitching. Charley Wagner pitched two shutouts in a row on the Western tour. Young Oscar Judd has been winning. Tex Hughson and Heber Newsome, a pair of young righthanders, have given the club a lift. And the other day Cronin dusted off Ken Chase, the old Washington southpaw, and he held Cleveland to five hits and a run.

Lupien's Play Is Big Factor in Rise

The Red Sox always could hit, and with their new found pitching strength they've got to be tabbed as dangerous. Particularly with the Yankees now having a rough time of it. A factor in the rise of the Red Sox has been the play of Ulysses Lupien, the young first baseman who took over after Jimmy Foxx was sold to the Cubs. Lupien has caught the Red Sox hitting fever, and he always represented more defensive skill than the aging Foxx.

The Red Sox have weaknesses. Their pitching is not yet thoroughly tested and their catchers, Conroy and Wagner are no great shucks. But a team containing Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Johnny Pesky and Dominic DiMaggio is not to be underrated. Those fellows can right a lot of pitching sins by the Red Sox, what with Williams leading the league in batting in runs, Doerr pounding the ball for the second best league average, Pesky hitting a very neat .320 in addition to his clever shortstopping, and DiMaggio a threat whenever he is on base.

The whole Red Sox boom could collapse, of course at a nod from Uncle Sam. Ted Williams and Johnny Pesky have enlisted in the Naval Air Corps but thus far they haven't been called for training because training facilities are far behind enlistments. If Uncle Sam steps in before the end of the season and calls them up, the Red Sox can kiss off their pennant notions. In fact, they may be lucky to hang in the first division. Cronin's club is battling both the Yankees and time.

This would seem to be the Red Sox last chance to win the pennant for several years. Before another season starts, Williams, Pesky and DiMaggio will be in the armed services and without that trio the Red Sox would be sunk for the duration, presuming of course, that there would be baseball for the duration.

The Yanks Are Hardly Laughing

The slump of the Yankees, incidentally seems to be no joke. When a New York team loses nine games on a 14 game road trip, they aren't the Yankees the league has known. Joe McCarthy has begun to have pitching troubles in addition to the mysterious batting slumps of Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller. Yesterday at Chicago, for example, the light hitting White Sox licked both Charley Ruffing and Ernie Bonham in the same afternoon in a double-header. When the Yankees lose a twin bill with that pair pitching, the Yankees are not the same old Yankees.

And by this time it is apparent that both Joe DiMaggio and Keller who used to terrorize enemy pitching simply by stepping into the batter's box, are having indescribably bad seasons and no joke. Their slump seems to have passed from a mere transient to a somewhat permanent stage, what with DiMaggio hitting only .265 and Keller somewhere in the .240's. Without Joe Gordon hitting a lofty .370, the Yanks would be in a sorry mess indeed this year.

It has been presumed that when DiMaggio and Keller started hitting the Yankees would make a runaway of the race certainly but there seems to be no guaranty now that they are going to hit. Their slump has been going on for three months now.

A Red Sox pennant victory would be popular of course. Any team that ended the Yankee domination of the league would, perforce, be a popular pennant winner. The whole league would be indebted to the Red Sox for rescuing what has been for too long a drab race. You gotta wish 'em luck.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 29.—Baseball faced two great threats through the first half of its 1942 season. One was total extinction, for the duration. The other was the prospect that the Yanks and Dodgers would made a dismal runaway of things and thus deprive the big leagues of their best chance of attracting the attention of war-distracted fans—tight pennant races.

CONSIDINE

With the nod of President Roosevelt, baseball was granted special immunity. And now it would seem that we're going to have a couple of races after all. The Yanks are foundering and the Red Sox are coming fast. The Indians and Tigers aren't licked. The Dodgers are going to have a tougher time than anyone expected a month ago. The competition may not come from the Cards, as was unanimously predicted at the start of the season. It may come from the Reds. The millenium may be said to have been reached on the Cincinnati team Sunday when the Reds gave Paul Derringer 16 hits while he was beating Wyatt, Casey and Kimball.

The Yanks and Dodgers should still win. But we suspect that before the last week in September both teams will have been put through the meat-grinders. The Tigers have done a good job this year of breaking the bubble of Yankee invincibility.

As for the National League, there isn't a team in there which wouldn't give every other right arm on the roster to beat Brooklyn. We cannot quite understand it, but the Dodgers seem to represent a personal affront to all National League clubs.

Anyway, baseball has overcome the threat of being closed down, and the players themselves seem to be overcoming the almost equally sinister threat of having the public yawn at the crushing superiority of the Yanks and Dodgers and turn their harried attention away from the pastime.

Alsab After a Seldom-Equaled Mark

Alsab is back in training. The great little bag of bones was "fired" in Chicago recently, but for the benefit of racing neophytes who think the trainer and owner of the much-worked Alsab should be fired, the firing in question was humane. It removed a boney growth on one of his legs and it is hoped that he'll be as good as ever.

Alsab is entered in the rich Arlington classic, July 25. A victory therein would make him one of the few horses ever to win $100,000 or more in each of two seasons. The only ones who have done it are Sun Beau in 1930 and 1931, Equipoise in 1930 and 1932 (Ekky ran only three times in 1931 and won only $3000 that year), Seabiscuit in 1937 and 1938 and Bimelech in 1939 and 1940. Alsab won $110,600 as a 2-year-old last season.

Billy Southworth—"It can be said that pitchers are doing a better job this season."

Whereupon the Senators and Browns set the art of pitching back to the sandlot stage by playing an abysmal 14-13 game right in Billy's St. Louis before the ink was dry on Billy's statement.

Kovacs Does Pro Tennis No Favors

Proponents of the "Let's call off sports for the duration," set seemed to have considerable sense on their side of the debate Sunday at Forest Hills. Frank Kovacs, playing Bobby Riggs in the semifinal round of the National Professional Tennis Championship, acted so much like the pampered child he is that the galleries overrode the horrified objection of the umpire and gave Kovacs a good moist Brooklyn blast.

Kovacs appeared on the verge of walking off the court several times during the match, after adolescent rages induced by what he called bad decisons by the linemen. He was the only player in the field of 32 whose expenses were paid by the Professional Tennis Association. He turned and bit the hand that fed him, however, by giving the antipro clique at Forest Hills another reason for keeping the pros out of the big net stadium for another 10 years.

5-Under-Par Score Best By 2 Strokes

Les Kennedy 2d As 74 Golfers Pass 36-Hole Point in Annual Tournament

By the Associated Press

Osterville, Mass., June 29.—After missing six putts from 8 feet, little Ben Loving of Longmeadow, the New England P. G. A. titlist, today gained a two-stroke lead on 74 rivals in the Massachusetts Open Golf championship by 71-68—139, five under par, for his first half of the 72-holes competition at Oyster Harbors.

The smooth-playing Loving's closest pursuer was Les Kennedy, the 24-year-old Cambridge professional, who turned in 70-71. Lanky Harry Nettleblatt, the veteran Avon, Conn., pro, reached the halfway mark in third place with 70-72, three strokes behind the leader.

Ted Bishop of Newton, the New England amateur champion and one of the Tourney's favorites, put together rounds of 74 and 70 for an even-par total of 144, finishing the opening day's competition in fourth place, a stroke ahead of such an outstanding favorite as Paul Runyon of White Plains, N. Y., who posted rounds of 73-72.

Bishop was three strokes ahead of the defending champion and four-time winner, Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, who, with 147, was locked in a three-way tie for sixth honors with Gene Anderson, the home professional, and Mal Demaris, a Beverly amateur star.

Loving, who missed only two fairways during his 36 holes, lost some of his deadly accuracy when he reached the greens.

Among the other first day scores were Ed Burke, the seasoned Hamden (Conn.) professional, with 149; Tom Mahan of Beverly, one of the pre-tourney favorites, with 151; Eddie Shore, the former Boston Bruins hockey star and now owner-player of the Springfield American League team, who had a pair of 81s, and Jim Nichols, the one-armed professional from Portsmouth, R. I., who put together two 80 cards.

Costantino Loses Verdict To Hernandez

By the Associated Press

New York, June 29.—Pedro Hernandez, a 4-to-1 underdog, handed Charles (Lulu) Costantino, New York featherweight, his second defeat in 62 starts tonight in an 8-round bout at Dexter Park. There were no knockdowns.

Hernandez, 126½-pound Puerto Rican, was the aggressor throughout and won because of superior infighting.

Constantino recently was named as the No. 1 challenger for Chalky Wright's world featherweight crown, New York version. He weighed 128.

In the 6-round semiwindup Lou Miller, 150¾, New York, outpointed Felix Morales, 146, Puerto Rico.

Billy Banks Loses To Allie Stoltz In Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 29.—Outclassed but game, Billy Banks of Washington lost a decision tonight to Allie Stoltz, top-ranking Baltimore lightweight.

The Washington Negro was outboxed and outpunched by Stoltz, who lost only one round—the fourth—which Referee Charley Baum took away from him for a low blow.

Banks, who weighed 137 pounds to 131 for Stoltz, was in distress in only one round, the eighth, when Allie peppered him with rights and lefts to the body and head.

Scotland Light Takes Feature At Empire City

By the Associated Press

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., June 29.—Scotland Light, running one of his typical races, made up many lengths to earn opening day honors for Thomas Howell's Barrington Stable in the Pebbles Purse here today. A $4.10 for two choice in the field of five 3-year-olds, the gelded son of Hollyrood completed the 5¾ furlongs a half length on top, his time of 1:07 4-5 falling only two-fifths of a second short of Fighting Fox's track record.

Mrs. L. J. Lepper's Song o' War was second by a length, with River Edge farm's Ben Gray third in front of Natomas and Burgaway.

The Hilltop meeting, which runs four weeks, got off to a fine start. Pending official count, it was estimated that close to 14,000 fans were on hand and that they would wager considerably more than the $570,033 of the 1941 opening, which came on a Thursday. Attendance last year on the first day was 9654.

Ex-Harvard Grid Star Can't Join Army—Too Heavy

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, June 29.—The 310 pounds which Vern Miller, jr., used for three years to turn back plays directed against his side of the Harvard University football line has turned against him.

Miller, who played tackle, appeared today at the Army recruiting office here and told Maj. J. J. Goffard he had tried to enlist "all over the East" and had been turned down.

"I hoped I might have better luck in my home town," he said.

Regretfully, Major Goffard told Miller the office would not accept him. He said the weight Miller sported on his 6 foot 3 inch frame was 90 pounds over Army standards.

"Wait for your draft board to call you up," he advised.

Baseball Men Against World Series 'On Tour'

Some Circles Consider It Financially Bad, Claim Player, Fan Interest Couldn't Be Kept

By the Associated Press

New York, June 29.—The cause would be a splendid one, but it is doubtful that the 1942 World Series will be taken "on tour" for the benefit of service charities.

The movement to have the two league champions fight things out from coast to coast—possibly playing best 8 out of 15 games for the championship—has received a cool reception in some baseball circles, for a variety of reasons.

Mainly, it is contended by these circles that there are no ball parks outside the big leagues with sufficient seating capacity to do much more than pay the cost of transporting and feeding the two pennant winning clubs. They think the whole thing would be a financial failure.

"Not a Good Idea"

Secondly, and of equal importance to baseball in general, they feel that any sort of tour or extension of the number of games ot be played would take the "edge" right off the World Series and turn it into a "carnival attraction." Those were the words employed by one influential official.

"We're in favor of doing everything we possibly can to help the war charities," he said. "But I'm afraid this isn't a good idea. If the fans knew the series were going to last indefinitely and maybe not be decided until the middle of winter out in San Francisco I don't think they would be greatly interested in the opening games here, or wherever they are played.

"That, of course, would ruin our receipts. And then, when the teams go on tour, where could they draw any crowds? Certainly not in other major league cities. And as soon as you go into the minor leagues you run into ball parks of between 10,000 and 15,000 seating capacity. Only Jersey City, Los Angeles and San Francisco can seat 25,000.

More Reasons

"To clear any real money the two teams would have to draw capacity crowds for every game—at World Series prices. I don't think they would be that interested out in Kansas City. Baseball fans are interested mostly in seeing their own clubs play, and they won't pay $4.40 to watch a couple of strange teams play an exhibition.

"Another angle is this. The players would not feel like it was a real World Series, jumped from town to

Post Trophy Golf Carded For July 17

With the cancellation of the Bannockburn Women's Invitation Tournament, scheduled for July 7, the next event for both Class A and B players of the District Women's Golf Association will be the annual competition for The Washington Post trophies, July 17 at Columbia and Kenwood.

The Columbia Broadcasting System Cup play falls on July 10 but that is restricted to Class B players, with handicaps of 19 and over.

The Post will award War Saving Stamps and bonds instead of silver this year, in line with the association's policy which has already resulted in more than $500 in stamps and bonds being distributed among the prize winners in tournaments thus far.

The Class A golfers, competing for the original Post Cup which was donated in 1933 when it was then a match play affair, will play at Columbia while the Class B players will compete at Kenwood for a trophy donated three years ago when the fields became too large for one course and were divided in handicap divisions.

Mrs. R. S. Butler won the Class A trophy last year at Manor and Mrs. H. H. Goodman the Class B cup at Congressional. Entries close July 13 with Mrs. C. P. Magruder, tournament chairman of the women's association.

Durocher Fined, Set Down 3 Days

New York, June 29 (AP).—President Ford Frick of the National League, in Chicago for a conference with Commissioner Landis, today notified his office he had fined Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn $50 and suspended him for three days for his flare-up in yesterday's double-header with Cincinnati at Ebbets Field.

Durocher was ordered off the bench by Umpire Tom Dunn in the first inning of the opening game after protesting a decision at first base. Before leaving, the Dodgers manager kicked a little dust on the umpire's shoes and tossed a towel in his face.

6-Run Ninth Helps Dodgers Defeat Phils

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 29.—Scoring six runs in the ninth the Brooklyn Dodgers turned a close game into a runaway tonight to wallop the last-place Phils, 10 to 3, before 8066 at Shibe Park.

Until the ninth, when the league champions batted around, the Phils were in the thick of the game. They trailed by only 4-to-3, having knocked Brooklyn's starting pitcher, Ed Head, out of the box in the seventh.

The victory increased Brooklyn's lead over the St. Louis Cardinals to 9½ games.

Head was constantly in trouble, but with the exception of the fourth and seventh left the Phil runners stranded. He fanned Pinch Hitter Ron Northey with the bases loaded in the second.

In the fourth the Phils scored twice on doubles by Al Glossop and Nicke Etten and Mickey Livingston's single.

Two errors by Danny Murtaugh and Lloyd Waner coupled with Lew Riggs' single gave the Dodgers a run in the first. They got two more tallies in the second on Head's infield hit, an infield out, Billy Herman's double and Riggs' single.

In the sixth Pee Wee Reese singled, moved up on Head's sacrifice and Augie Galan's infield out and scored what proved to be the winning run on Herman's bunt that went through Murtaugh for a single.

The Phils knocked Head out in the seventh. Waner tripled and scored on Danny Litwhiler's single. When Glossop's single sent Litwhiler to third Jimmy Allen relieved Head and got Merrill May on a grounder to short. Allen held the Phils in check the rest of the way.

Milnar Settles Down After Rough Start, Gives No Hits in Last Four Innings

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 29.—Roughly treated at the start, Al Milnar, veteran Cleveland lift-hander, steadied in the late innings today to take advantage of the Indians' 17-hit attack and beat the White Sox, 11 to 5. The victory enabled the Indians to remain in third place.

Jim Hegan, with a perfect day of four singles and a pass, and Roy Weatherly, with a triple and two singles, led the attack on Lee Ross and Joe Haynes.

The Indians scored their edge run in the seventh when Shortstop Luke Appling threw wildly attempting to complete a double play after Jeff Heath and Les Fleming singled and then banged home four clinching runs on triples by Milnar and Weatherly and two singles in the eighth.

Jersey City Pilot Freed In Assault

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 29.—Charges of assault against Frank E. (Pancho) Snyder, manager of the Jersey City Giants of the International League, were dismissed in Northern District Police Court today by Magistrate Samuel Campanaro.

Snyder, 47, was taken from Oriole Park in a police car yesterday when a large crowd of fans gathered at the Jersey City dressing room after the Giants split a twin bill with the Baltimore Orioles.

Police Sergt. Leroy Meyers testified he was summoned to the dressing room where an altercation had started between Snyder and three fans, Stevens J. Izdebski, his brother, Leo J. Izdebski, and Stevens' son, Robert. The three were arrested on disorderly conduct charges, but Magistrate Campanaro also dismissed these cases.

Meyers said a crowd of about 200 fans was attempting to storm the dressing room when he arrived, but that he didn't know what started the disturbance.

The sergeant said the crowd left the dressing room and gathered at the Twenty-ninth Street gate, where a patrol wagon was waiting. However, Meyers explained, he walked with Snyder across the diamond to the Thirtieth Street gate.

Nats Limp Into Boston For Series of 5 Games

Disastrous Western Trip Ends; Hudson and Wynn to Pitch Today

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Boston, June 29.—The Nats hove into Boston tonight after a glorious retreat from the West in which they didn't lose a man. They won only a few of their 12 battles in the West, though—four to be exact.

Tomorrow they commence playing the Boston Red Sox five games, starting with a double-header, and Manager Bucky Harris has little reason to be enthusiastic at the prospects.

There is nothing wrong with the Nats currently except that their pitching has gone pretty sour, they aren't hitting much, and their infield apparently doesn't know how to make a double play. They have been behaving like the worst Washington team Harris has managed in his 14 years with the club.

On the Western trip, Harris' supposedly best pitchers, Buck Newsom, Sid Hudson and Early Wynn, managed to collect only one victory among them—Wynn's triumph over the Cleveland Indians. Newsom and Hudson failed to win a game, and the victories scored by Bill Zuber and Walter Masterson were high-scoring affairs.

Bobby Restored

In desperation Harris has restored Bobby Estalella to third base, chancing the risk of hits and bunts falling where they may. The little Cuban at least has power, a rare commodity on the Nats, and Harris counts his bunglesome presence on third as the lesser evil.

In great anguish Harris has been watching his infield butcher dou-

Bensinger Routs Baker, Retains Net Crown

Texan Bows, 6-1, 6-2, in Junior Final

Champion Pairs With Waits to Take Doubles; Bucknell Wins Boys Crown

Bobby Bensinger retained his City of Washington tennis title yesterday by defeating W. Browne Baker, former high ranking Texas junior, with surprising ease in the finals at Friends School. The scores were 6—1, 6—2.

Bensinger also kept his share of the doubles crown by teaming with John Waits, jr., to trounce Baker and Ed Sachs, 6—3, 6—1.

Steady stroking John Bucknell won the boys' singles championship with a 1—6, 6—2, 6—0 victory over LeRoy Morgan, and then teamed with Morgan to take the doubles diadem by beating Billy Bernard and Bobby Smith, 6—2, 7—5.

Bensinger, bouncing back strongly following his lopsided loss to Frank Willett of Alabama in a recent invitation tournament at Columbia, played smart tennis in routing Baker, who had been given a good chance to upset him. The drop shot which had backfired on Bensinger against Willett worked to perfection against Baker, and this, together with a newly perfected lob, wrought havoc with Baker's game.

Bucknell, playing his usual steady brand of tennis, simply allowed Morgan to beat himself through many errors.

The doubles matches were decided as expected, for the winners in both cases had been decided favorites.

College Sports Must Continue, Director Says

By the Associated Press

East Lansing, Mich., June 29.—Ralph H. Young, athletic director of Michigan State College, believes intercollegiate athletics should be continued because they instill the kind of "competitive spirit" that American boys must have to win the war.

Intramural athletics, on the other hand, are nothing better than "playful fun," he declared today.

Criticizing what he said was a "marked trend" among larger colleges to turn athletics to intramurals, Young said:

"Financially troubled small schools may have to drop out of the picture, but large institutions should make every effort to carry on intercollegiate play because of its value from a military view.

"It instills a competitive spirit and that's what war is—competition, with all the rules tossed out."

Rivalries between colleges on the athletic field approach most closely the kind of competition the Axis powers have featured in their youth training programs, the Michigan State College director contended.

He suggested that Army camp teams be substituted for distant opponents who must be eliminated because of transportation shortages.

"In this war the ability to get off the ground and fight back means everything, and that's what intercollegiate rivalry long has given us and must continue to give us," Young asserted.

They'll Be on Uncle Sam's Side in All-Star Game

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Service Team Line-up Still Indefinite

By the Associated Press

Great Lakes, Ill., June 29.—Mickey Cochrane makes a typical All-Star game manager. Like the National and American League bosses, the head man of the All-Service team doesn't have his lineup chosen and in all probability won't see his entire squad together as a unit until the night of the tilt July 7.

With the Cleveland engagement only eight days away, Cochrane had an A-1 assortment of players on hand today at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station—but six key men, all members of the Great Lakes nine, weren't around. They were on a three-day road trip.

So Cochrane didn't bother the boys as they loosened up. Instead the Naval lieutenant, formerly manager of the Detroit Tigers, worked at his desk on details of the game between his collection of service men and the winner of the July 6 major league All-Star game. Tomorrow he will go to Cincinnati, where the Great Lakes team will meet a combined squad of Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs.

By Thursday, if he's lucky, Cochrane may have the bulk of his team together for the first time. Then they can get down to business.

Already on the reservation are Bob Feller (Cleveland), Fred Hutchinson (Detroit), Sam Chapman (Philadelphia A's), and Vince Smith (Pittsburgh) of the Navy. Army men present are Cecil Travis (Washington), Morrie Arnovich (New York Giants), Johnny Sturm (New York Yankees), Emmett Mueller (Philadelphia Phils), Mickey Harris (Boston Red Sox), John Grodzicki (St. Louis Cards) and Ken Silvestri (Yankee).

To these Cochrane can add John Rigney (White Sox), Joe Grace (St. Louis Browns), Don Padgett (St. Louis Cards), Benny McCoy (Athletics), Johnny Lucadello (Browns) and Frank Pytlak (Red Sox). There may be some others later—but Cochrane at this point doesn't know.

Maryland Bass Season Delayed By Muddy River

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., June 29.—Anglers took one look at the Potomac and Monocacy Rivers today and definitely abandoned plans for opening of the fresh water black bass season on Wednesday. Both streams are full and very muddy. Clear water is a requisite for successful bass fishing. Rivermen said the streams should return to normal by the July 4 wekend, provided no more rain develops.

Local fishermen are confronted this year by a scarcity of live bait. Dealers who have heretofore dealt in live minnows have gone out of busines sdue to tire and gas rationing. They claim they have to travel too far to obtain minnows and so many men are now in the armed services and working defense plants that there wil lbe less cal for live bait.

That there wil be fewer anglers this year is evident from the sale of licenses. The clerk of the court's office reports a sharp decline in permits this year, compared to previous seasons.

$1,465 in War Stamps Go to Golfers Here

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Having already taken approximately $1465 in War Savings bonds and stamps as prizes and contributed more than $1350 to the Red Cross and Relief Societies, exclusive of intra club tournaments, the competitive golfers of the District and vicinity look towards the July tournament card for more opportunities to aid the financial drive of the war-time organizations.

The District Women's Golf Association, most active to date, has purchased $500 in stamps and bonds for prizes, including $350 worth which went to the various flight winners of the championship tournament. The Maryland State Golf Association announced a prize list of $198 for the Amateur championship last week and $125 for the women's championship in stamps and bonds. The pro-amateurs at Congressional, Bannockburn and Country Club of Maryland have sent $275 in stamps and bonds to the winners, while the Middle Atlantic Amateur gave $125. A $25 bond went to the low professional in the pro-lady and opening day affairs at Columbia, and Congressional found the members taking $100 in stamps and bonds as prizes.

Red Cross Got $900

The Red Cross fund was enriched approximately $900 from the Memorial Day Hale America tournaments at most local clubs while the D. C. Golf Association's drive for Army and Navy War Relief funds the fourth Sunday of May and June netted nearly $250. Columbia members contributed $200 to the varied relief societies on opening day and Congressional about half that much.

In addition all clubs have been purchasing stamps for prizes in the weekend events but no records have been kept to date, although Dr. R. A. Keilty hopes to have a complete accounting by the end of the season. Several clubs have been staging relief tournaments independent of the nationally scheduled affairs and the total of this sum is also unknown.

The second of the three big holiday weekends selected by the U. S. G. A. for the intraclub tournaments for Red Cross benefit falls Saturday and Sunday. The entry fee is $1 and certificates will be awarded the low scorers.

Feature event of the July card is the Maryland Open championship at Prince Georges on July 21. Three more junior champions will be crowned, both the Maryland Junior Open and association titlist and the Middle Atlantic champion.

There has been talk of moving the District Amateur championship up to a July date in order to play the tournament while the golfers have a limited supply of gasoline remaining for pleasure purposes, and also to shift it from Congressional to a course more accessible from the city.

Some of the professionals have drawn Prince Georges Pro Al Houghton's ire by suggesting the Maryland Open be transferred from the club where it was originally assigned due to the damage the beetles inflicted on the fairways. Houghton reports a new crop coming up, however, and is ready to battle any suggestions as to transferring the 36-hole tournament.

THE JULY SCHEDLE

July 4-5—Independence Day holiday program at all clubs, including Hale America-Red Cross benefit affairs.
July 7—Middle Atlantic Junior at Congressional, 56 holes, age limit 21.
July 8—Maryland State mixed two-ball, at Chevy Chase.
July 10—C. B. S. Women's Cup, at Washington, Class B only.
July 13—Pro-amateur, Rolling Road.
July 14—Maryland Junior Open, Roland Park, 18 holes.
July 17—Washington Post Cup Women's Tournament; Class A, Columbia; Class B, Kenwood.
July 21—Maryland Open Championship, Prince Georges, 36 holes.
July 22—Maryland State Junior, Argyle.
July 27—Pro-amateur, Manor.
July 27—Duffers' Cup, Class B women golfers, Congressional.

Sammy Byrd's 68-64 Wins Pennsy Open

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 29.—Sam Byrd, former major league baseball star, streaked around the Shannopin Country Club's course today in a 10-under par 132 for 36 holes to win the one-day Pennsylvania Open golf championship.

Byrd scored a 68 in the morning and a blazing 64 in the afternoon to finish seven strokes under his nearest competitor, Henry Ransom of Philadelphia, who shot 71-68—139.

Dick Shoemaker, Pittsburgh, formerly of Titusville, was third with 67-73—140. Morrie Gravatt of Johnstown, with 72-70—142, was tied with Steve Kovach, the Brackenridge Heights amateur, 71-71—142 and Ray Mangrum, Oakmont, 73-69—142.

Detroit Heavy Meets DeChard At Stadium

Raskin's fighter is one Al Reiss, a 24-year-old 185-pounder from Detroit, who has done quite well in 100 fights as a professional.

Reiss and DeChard will fight over the 8-round route on a card for the benefit of the family of the late Preston Drew, who lost his life as a result of injuries received in a boxing match at the ball park two weeks ago.

There are ten other volunteer fighters on the card beside DeChard, and opponents are being lined up for them by Promoter Joe Turner.

Reiss participated in the "White Hope" tournament in Detroit last season. He lost to Jack Marshall of Texas who bowed in the finals to Lee Savold, the Iowan who upset Lou Nova on the Naval Relief Show.

For DeChard this will be his first match since the local boxer's victory over Frank Poreda on the relief show. Since his loss to Joe Baksi, DeChard has increased his fighting pace, and his friends now are confident he is an improved scrapper.

Promoter Turner, who already has distributed thousands of tickets to various organizations for the benefit show, has three other bouts made. One involves Lew Hanbury, Golden Gloves champion, in a 6-rounder against Wayman Stewart, colored featherweight. Another six is between Roy Dunn and Ken (Young) Stribling. A 4-rounder finds Bobby Gantt meeting Jimmy Hill.

Tickets are on sale at the Arena, Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest.

Manager McCarthy Pronounced 'Better'

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, was "very much better today," Dr. Robert H. Lawrence of the Del Prado Hotel reported. The Yankees manager remained behind when his team went east last night. McCarthy is suffering from gall bladder attack, and probably will stay here a few days, Dr. Lawrence said.

Favored Trysak Scores 3rd Time in Charles Town Feature

Sallipatica Second to $4.40 Shot

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 29.—Trysak won his third victory of the season here by taking the seventh race, best offering on a featureless Monday program. Racing in the silks of N. Theodore and capably ridden by Jockey Ralph (Buddy) Root, Trysak drove to the finish line 1½ lengths in advance of Alfred G. Paul's Sallipatica. Three lengths farther back came R. A. Chapman's Miss Pilgrim to be third in the field of seven operating over the 1 1/16-mile course.

It was in the role of a heavily-played favorite that Trysak carried his stable's blue and white colors to victory. He paid $4.40 to win and by an oddity of the mutuels, paid the same figure to place. The 5-year-old horse was clocked in 2:05 2-5. The track was heavy but was drying out rapidly.

From the inside position, Trysak broke on top but soon had a running mate in Jewel Song. The two ran head-and-head through the stretch the first time. Leaving the clubhouse turn, Trysak shook off his rival to open a length lead. Sallipatica, in third position, then moved up to displace the tiring Jewel Song.

Jockey Herb Claggett, a Florida boy, was the day's riding hero. He piloted three winners on the nine race card. His first success came in the third event when he rode J. E. Hayes' Lady Mowlee to victory at a $37.20 price. The daughter of Mowlee also put the finishing touches on a $134.80 daily double payoff started when Amperage won the second race. Claggett's third winner was aboard J. R. Vanwert's Lady Devine in the eighth.

REMOLEE was hard ridden while in first flight and weakened.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:56. Winner, T. W. Kirk's br. m. Dear Al:

Jockey Al Bocson was hit in the eye by a clod of mud in yesterday's second race and had to cancel his remaining mounts. Jockey Clarence Wright left last night for Wheeling to ride at that point. Jockey Martin Bletzsacker returned from a visit to his parents in Ohio and promptly rode Black Magic to victory in the first race. "Blets" goes from here to Pascoag, R. I. George (Pappy) Witmer, former jockey, is the proud father of a baby boy. The youngster and his mother are doing well in the Brunswick (Md.) Hospital. Former Jockey Jack Maier purchased the plater Chide. Snooks Winters, clerk of scales here, leaves tomorow night for Charleston. This is the final week of the victory meeting here. Why not go all-out for Army and Navy relief by coming out? Friend Gaby Haugh, racing writer for the Baltimore News-Post, is ill. He had to turn his Delaware Park work over to Jack Carpenter. Last week I wrote regarding Bill Snyder and I got his paper mixed up. He is the publisher of the Shepherdstown Register. I'm sorry. If the rains keep away, the track should be fast for this afternoon's races. Jockey Scottie Prain's right stirrup broke in the stretch while he was riding West Sea in the seventh race. In addition, he was hit in the eye with mud. The horse wasn't going to win anyway. Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney went to New England to see her horses run at Suffolk Downs. Jockey Buddy Root came back from his spill and is riding in excellent form. Alan Clarke, whose Nell Mowlee won at Delaware Park yesterday, may ship Walter Haight here this week. The colt is headed for a trip around the half-milers, starting at Hagerstown next week. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—FOUR LEAF and LINDEN GIRL are a tight fit in the day's opener. I prefer them in the order listed. FELLING HIGH and SHY MISS are dangerous contenders.

Second race—SECRETA turned in a fine winning effort here last week and figures to repeat in this company. DUPLIKET is getting ready to win a test of this sort and belongs close. READY ABOUT for the show end.

Third race—ECOWAY is the best of this gang. Needs only the right handling. SIGNBOARD has plenty of speed and is a threat. MOST ALERT should be along in time to take care of the others.

Fourth race—AFTER ORCHIDS can whip this kind and I'm going to string along. PANDORAMINT needs an off track for the best, but is fit as hands make horses. CRIMSON LANCER to take care of the others.

Fifth race—WASHED OUT could be the right one in this short sprint. This plater should like the distance. HIGHLAND SONG will be right there if taken off the reserve list. CHILLEEVALLEE is improving.

Sixth race—BUSY FINGERS should run off with this field. Needs only the right riding. YELLOW DRAGON was shipped here for this race and will be a factor. HARD LOSER to take care of the others.

Seventh race—FREDS FIRST will do a lot of closing in this field, and I look for him to be along in time to take it all. DISCRETION is formidable and will be close if taken off the reserve list. ANYA is a possible surprise.

Eighth race—PERSIAN QUEEN should beat these. Needs only the right handling. SATIN HERO and FAIR HAIRED to take care of the place and show.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take NEVER HOME, WAKE and BUTTERMAN.

CLOCKER MIKE AT CHARLES TOWN

2—Duplket, Stepping In, Saddling Bell.
3—Terry May, Most Alert, Timenetta.
4—Miss Hildur, Golden Mayne, After Orchids.
5—Chilleevallee, Frelan, Exarch.
6—Hard Loser, Busy Fingers, Yellow Dragon.
7—Easter Rabbit, No Fair, Time Scout.
8—Fair Haired, Seplin, Elamp.
Sub race—Rolls Rough, Owaller, Twain.
Best bet—TERRY MAY.

Side Arm Wins Shawmut Purse At Suffolk Downs

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 29.—John R. Macomber's Side Arm 5-year-old son of Petee Wrack—Pistolette, ran a mile in 1:37 3-5 to outclass five other horses in the featured Shawmut Purse today at Suffolk Downs.

A length back in second place was Mrs. D. Roberts' Jay Stevens, which had a 2½-length advantage on Maepeace, from the Merry-Ho Stable.

Side Arm, cleverly rated off the pace by veteran Jockey Ty Meloche, did not make its move until nearing the far turn, but in the stretch led all the way.

Jay Stevens, trailing the field for the first three-quarters of the race, challenged, but failed to close any ground in the last 100 yards.

Side Arm paid $5, $3 and $2.20; Jay Stevens, $3.20 and $2.20, and Maepeace, $2.60.

Telephone Net In May Slumps To $95,424

Net income of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. slumped to $95,424 in May as compared with $136,914 in the same month last year, the monthly report filed with the Public Utilities Commission revealed last night.

Operating revenues for May were $1,668,509 against $1,299,941 but operating expenses jumped to $1,326,396 as compared with $942,647 last year. Operating taxes were $130,621 as compared with $135,688 in May, 1941.

There were 343,499 telephones in service on May 31 which was an increase of 1492 telephones over the previous month. Telephone users made 43,628,000 calls during May or 4,642,000 more than in May, 1941.

For the first five months this year net income was $560,712 against $744,585 in the same period last year. Operating revenues were reported 28.6 per cent higher than for the same period last year while operating expenses, including taxes, were 36.5 per cent higher.

Charles A. Robinson, vice president and general manager, pointed out that the decrease in net income for May was in the face of a $14,861,605 advance in plant investment during the year.

Dividend Reduced By Blaw-Knox Co.

Pittsburgh, June 29 (AP).—The Blaw-Knox Co. today declared a dividend of 10 cents a share, payable August 1 to holders of record July 9. The previous distribution was 15 cents last May 1. In 1941 four payments of 15 cents each were made.

William P. Witherow, president, said that in view of the unsettled tax situation and other uncertainties growing out of the war economy there could be no definite dividend policy by the management. The matter of distributions, he added, would be reviewed from time to time.

The company makes machinery and specialty products for various industries and was reported operating at 100 per cent of capacity on war production.

Bank Debt Prepaid By Southern Pacific

New York, June 29 (AP).—The Southern Pacific Co. today wiped its slate clean of all bank indebtedness by prepaying $3,750,000 of notes which would have matured from April 1 to October 1, 1943.

The company started this year with a total of $15,000,000 due banks in serial notes spread over the next few years but tremendous increases in revenues has enable frekuent payments t be made out of income, climaxed by today's final payment.

In August, 1941, the company arranged to borrow a total of $20,000,000 from a group of banks to bolster worinking capital and pay off a loan received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

With the complete paymants on these loans made, the company now has utstanding only its funded debt.

Debt-Encumbered Persons and Corporations Declared Overlooked as Income Taxes Soar

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the need for income tax debt relief. The writer of today's and tomorrow's articles is Nathan Rafler, assistant to the president of the Cafritz Co., Washington real estate firm. Mr. Rafler is a former economist with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

It has often been said that there are only two certainties in this uncertain world—death and taxes. But to these two may now be added another—that is the certainty of default on debt payments unless some provision facilitating their payment is incorporated into pending tax legislation.

A great deal of hullaballoo has been raised recently about Congress' abdication of responsibility and its lowered prestige as compared with the executive branch of the Government. But let us give credit where credit is due. When it became apparent that men would have to be drafted for the armed services, Congress had the foresight to envision that their reduced pay would probably result in defaults on installment debts of various kinds.

Foreseeing this result, it had the good sense to pass legislation described as the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act, providing for reasonable deferment (or longer-term financing) of "time payment" debts, such as mortgages on real estate, installment purchase of home furnishings, cars, etc. This was done in order to give the selectees more peace of mind concerning the economic security of partial dependents.

Now we are face to face with a draft problem of another sort—the drafting of incomes—with the same end product of lowered income. In his message concerning the danger of inflation, the President called for extremely drastic taxation of incomes, in order to cut down the excess purchasing power resulting from arms expenditures. Taxes have already increased substantially, and the propsed new rates will bite still deeper as can be seen from the following table:

MARRIED PERSON—NO DEPENDENTS

Net Income Before Personal Exemption	Amount of Tax 1940 Rates	1941 Rates	Proposed 1942 Rates
$3,000	$30.80	$138	$306
4,000	70.40	249	504
5,000	110.00	375	708
10,000	528.00	1,305	2,064

In the same inflation message the President calls for voluntary purchase of war bonds with earnings, instead of using those earinings to buy articles which are not essential. Furthermore, in the President's own words: "To keep the cost of living from spiralling upward, we must discourage credit and installment buying, and encourage the paying off of debts, mortgages and other obligations: for this promotes saving, retards excessive buying and adds to the amount available to the creditors for the purchase of war bonds."

But while the President makes an economically sound suggestion for the sterilization of buying power, he fails to implement his suggestion with the means for carrying it out. It is true that many labor union workers in war plants are receiving a substantially higher income than they received in the past, and farmers are at the highest income level on record. But there does not seem to be any Administration recognition of the fact that millions of citizens in this country have failed to share in this rise in income. Among these may be included middle class white collar workers, small business men hard hit by priorities and price control, people existing on fixed pensions or annuities of one sort or another, as well as most, if not all, Government employes, whether national, State or municipal.

These people have, in fact, already suffered a reduction in income through a 15% increase in the cost of living since the war began. They have suffered a still further decrease in income through the extremely rapid rise in income taxes which was graphically illustrated in the table above. While these people are as patriotic as any other group in the country, they undertook time payment obligations in good faith when they knew they could meet their payments. Now an unforeseen and drastic increase in taxation has impaired their ability to carry the load.

This problem came to our (The Cafritz Co.) attention in a very direct manner recently. Several people who were paying off mortgages on their homes came to us (The Cafritz Co.) in March with the statement that they could not meet their mortgage payments, their real estate taxes and their income taxes—all of which were due that month. We knew that these people were thrifty and honest, so we advanced real estate taxes for them and deferred their mortgage payments. This enabled them to meet their income tax payments. Obviously no firm engaged in business could long continue this altruistic practice without endangering its own financial stability.

The President is so acutely aware of the increased income of union labor and farmers, that it would seem he has forgotten the inarticulate, vast middle-class in this country, whose income has remained stationary but whose cost of living and taxes have both increased.

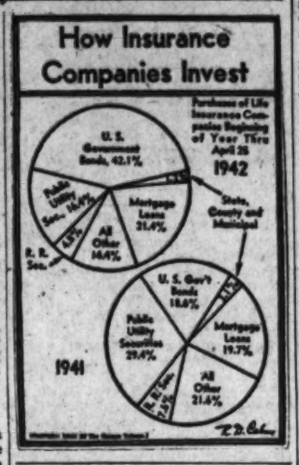
Just as surely as the Government has drafted men for service in the armed forces at reduced pay, it has drafted the incomes of people for service in financing our national effort. It has provided for the possible and probable defaults on debt payments by drafted men.

But it has failed to provide any relief for the large group of people who will now find it impossible to make payments on their debts, with consequent widespread defaults and losses of various kinds of property which are debt encumbered. It does not seem possible that such a result was intended, for it would work enormous hardship without adding one iota to the anti-inflationary fight.

TOMORROW—A proposed solution



Roosevelt Hits U. S. Subsidies To Land Banks

By the Associated Press

A bill extending for two years reduced interest rates on Federal Land Bank and Land Bank commissioner loans was signed yesterday by President Roosevelt with the statement that it was essential to remove inefficiencies in the present loan system so as to avoid continuing Treasury subsidies.

Mr. Roosevelt said that under the bill the Treasury will have to pay some 67 million dollars in subsidies during the two years for which the reduced rates were extended.

In a formal statement, the President noted that, when a previous extension was made in 1940, he had anticipated that "legislative action would be taken promptly to remove impediments to the efficiency of the Federal Land Bank system which have made it impossible for the land banks to furnish farmers with long-term mortgage credit on reasonable terms without subsidies from the Federal Treasury."

"The reasons why no action has been taken to remedy the obvious defects in the laws governing the functioning of these important agencies are obscure and unconvincing," the Chief Executive asserted.

"There is no evident justification for imposing indefinitely upon the Treasury an expense which results solely from failure to adapt the basis upon which the land banks can operate to the realities of the function they have to perform by eliminating from their required structure and operations costly procedures that serve no useful public function."

Subsidies Allowed On Farm Products

President Roosevelt, it was learned authoritatively yesterday, has given the Commodity Credit Corporation limited authority to subsidize certain farm products in order to keep their cost to consumer down to the price ceiling fixed by Leon Henderson.

The authority was contained, officials said, in a letter drafted by agreement between Henderson and Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, and is intended as a stop-gap pending congressional decisions on the general question of subsidizing farm products.

Hessian Fly Damage Heavy in Ohio Wheat

Columbus, Ohio, June 29 (AP).—The 30 per cent crop loss that cost Ohio's wheat farmers millions of dollars 22 years ago may be repeated in 1943 unless a rapidly mounting Hessian fly infestation is controlled, a farm expert warned today.

T. H. Parks, extension specialist at Ohio State University, said the 12 per cent infestation recorded in Ohio last year had jumped to 60 per cent in some southern Ohio areas this year.

WPB Boosts 'Take' of Food Pack in 1942

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board yesterday increased the percentage of the 1942 pack of specified fruits and vegetables which must be set aside for the Army, Navy, lend-lease and other Government agencies.

Under terms of the amended order, larger supplies of all 11 items listed in the original order, except asparagus, peaches, carrots and spinach, are to be taken by the Government, and pineapple juice is added to the list.

Under the amendment, the commodities and percentages which packers must set aside for the Government were:

Fruit cocktail, 40 per cent; peaches, 38 per cent; pears, 40 per cent; asparagus, 30 per cent; lima beans, 35 per cent; string beans, 35 per cent; sweet corn, 35 per cent; peas, 35 per cent; tomatoes, 35 per cent; tomato catsup, 33 per cent; tomato juice, 17 per cent.

On 13 "secondary products" canners must produce a certain quota for the Government over and above their pack for civilian needs. The Government quota, based on their permissive pack, follows:

Apples, 100 per cent; apple sauce, 60 per cent; apricots, 75 per cent; cherries, (R. S. P.) 44 per cent; sweet cherries, 50 per cent; peaches, 28 per cent; pineapple, 34 per cent; pineaple juice, 14 per cent; fresh prunes, 30 per cent; beets, 100 per cent; carrots, 100 per cent; pumpkin, 72 per cent, and spinach, 58 per cent.

Radio Equipment Pool

The War Production Board has accepted the principle of an equipment pool for the broadcasting industry, James Lawrence Fly, chairman of both the Federal Communications Commission and the Board of War Communications, said yesterday.

The BWC recommended such a pool to the WPB in May at the industry's suggestion.

Asked about the status of the request at a press conference, Fly said that it had been accepted in principle and that work was under way on details of inventorying the supplies available for such a pool.

He said that there was a heavy turnover of parts in the radio industry and that if it were not for the backlog of equipment, only 27 percent of the station would be operating at the end of a year. By cooperative distribution of supplies on hand, he said it was hoped to be able to maintain the industry in operation.

WPB Lifts Curbs On Razor Sales

The War Production Board yesterday lifted all restrictions on safety razors by jobbers and manufacturers. Such razors were frozen May 22, to enable the Army and Navy to arrange for purchase of stocks needed during June and July and WPB explained that such arrangements had been made.

Steel Output Rate Slumps to 96.5%

New York, June 29 (AP).—Steel production this week will total 1,639,200 net tons with mills operating at an average of 96.5 per cent of capacity, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

Last week's estimated tonnage was 1,664,600 tons on operations of 98 per cent of capacity. A month ago mills ran at 99.3 per cent and turned out 1,686,700 tons and a year ago operating at 91.8 per cent the industry produced 1,516,700 tons.

The indicated drop in steel output from last week was attributed to furnace suspensions for repairs. Trade sources were not looking for any substantial curtailment of operations over the July 4 holiday, as was usual in peacetime.

Sugar Ration Boost Urged by Committee

New York, June 29 (AP).—The Port of New York sugar committee said that it would sponsor a general petition to Donald Nelson and Leon Henderson urging them to increase the sugar ration in order to reduce mounting refined stocks in this area.

The petition would suggest that the respective heads of the War Production Board and Office of Price Administration increase the ration for the period from July through September, the committee said.

Machine-Tool Scouts Hunt Idle Hours, Seek Full-Time Basis for All Scarce Items

The big machine tools, shock troops of the battle of production, are being ordered into double time. Tool experts of the War Production Board are combing the country's industrial centers for idle machine-tool hours, which may help solve the bottlenecks of some smaller industrial plants.

Aim of the critical tool survey, now in process, is to put every tool of the 11 critically scarce types on a full time schedule.

Result of the drive will be a machine-hour index, which will guide the stumped manufacturer to the machine tool in his community which has precious work-hours to spare.

No Rest: WPB's tool scouts are looking for the plants which have certain scarce machine tools, but do not work them full time for their own needs.

For instance, the ABC corporation works on a 120-hour-a-week schedule. To keep its other machines going full tilt, however, takes only 80 hours work on its large planer. That leaves 40 hours of idle time on the planer.

WPB intends to make that idle planer-time available to the XYZ company down the street, whose work is jammed up for lack of a planer.

Lists: Ten teams of tool scouts are working in the Chicago area now. They already have survived the critical machine tools around Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Cleveland. Later, they will go to Detroit, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

Out of each survey comes a list of all critical machine tools in the region (the regions are the same as the Federal Reserve Board Districts). The tools are listed by cities and by type of machine.

These lists will be available to all industrialists working on war jobs and on essential civilian production in that region. They will be available, too, to manufacturers just over the regional borderline in the next FRB district.

Suppose: A manufacturer finds his work being delayed for lack of a broaching machine or a bevel gear cutter. He can consult the critical tool list, find a man in his community or a neighboring town who has spare hours on the needed machine and make a deal to put the machine on full-time work.

Confusion: There has been considerable confusion over the much-discussed "machine tool bottleneck." Thousands of small industrialists have been stumped to know why, despite all the talk of machine tool shortages, his machine tools stood idle and not even a buyer appeared.

The answer is that there are machine tools and machine tools. The "bottleneck" tools are the large and complicated devices, those keyed to operate on extremely close tolerances. Comparatively, the ordinary planer or drill is in the "dime a dozen" class. For some types of machine tools, there is no need at all.

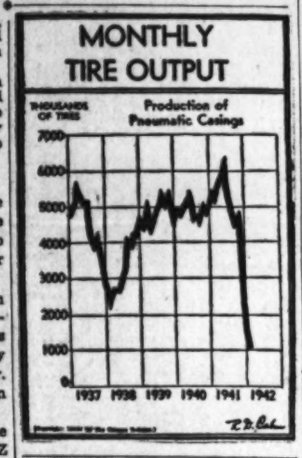
The Missing Tools: For reasons of military security, the really scarce machine tools cannot be described in detail. In general, however, they fall into 11 types of tools, with some 53 specifications.

WPB describes the types thus (but remember that in each case it is the large, close-tolerance models which are scarce):

Boring mills (horizontal and vertical); broaching machines; drilling machines; forging machines; gear cutters (gear hobbers, bevel gear cutters); grinders (thread, internal, external cylindrical, centerless); lathes (engine, turrett and automatic); screw machines (automatic single and multiple spindle); milling machines (boring, planing); planers, 60 inches and up; thread millers (external, internal).

Officials pin high hopes on the critical tool survey for getting every scarce machine tool into full-time production. The worst limiting factor, they admit, is the simple fact of geography. There is a limit to how far heavy goods can be trundled back and forth for the needed tool job. In areas where war plants are fairly thick, however, the pay-off in work done may be quite high.



Retail Sales In Nation Off Again in May

The Commerce Department said yesterday that retail sales declined again in May, continuing a downward trend since February.

Sales were estimated last month at $4,437,000,000 compared with $4,467,000,000 in April and $4,930,000,000 in May of last year.

The department explained that practically all the decline occurred among durable goods, many of which are no longer manufactured or whose stocks have been frozen or rationed. Restricted installments have held down the sale of these items.

Murphy Co. Issue Put on Market

New York, June 29 (AP)—G. C. Murphy Co., Pennsylvania variety chain store corporation, offered publicly a new issue of $100 par value 4¾ per cent cumulative preferred stock.

The offering, aggregating 90,000 shares priced at $105 each, is expected to yield the company about $9,250,000 in new financing.

The issue is being handled through underwriters headed by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

About $4,250,000 of the net proceeds from the sale of the new issue will be used to redeem all outstanding 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the company and the balance, approximately $5,000,000, will be used to finance increased inventories and growing volume of sales.

Erie Railroad Stock Pays First Dividend

New York, June 29 (AP).—The stock exchange ticker tapped out a bit of financial history today in noting that Erie Railroad common stock and certificates of beneficial interest sold ex-dividend the 50-cent disbursement voted by the directors on June 19.

This dividend was the first ever authorized by the present Erie system, organized in 1895, and the first paid by an Erie company since 1866. Thus, Wall Street annals today carried the entry that Erie common stock sold ex-dividend for the first time in history.

ODT Postpones Effective Date Of Truck Order

By the Associated Press

The Office of Defense Transportation yestreday postponed from July 1 to July 15 the effective date of orders requiring certain trucks to carry return loads.

ODT said the postponement was issued to allow more time for a general revision of orders governing trucks operated by common, contract and private carriers in over-the-road service.

As originally drawn, the orders prohibited trucks from returning to their point of origin unless loaded to at least 75 per cent of capacity—considered the minimum efficiency standard for wartime commercial vehicle operation in light of the rubber shortage and lack of new equipment.

Under the postponement, trucks may continue to return empty or only partially loaded if no cargoes are available.

Lumber Output Dips

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association reported yesterday that lumber production for the week ended June 20 stood at 137 per cent of the average of the corresponding week of 1935-39, and shipments 158 per cent. Production totaled 263,102,000 feet, which was 4 per cent less than the previous week and 2 per cent less than the corresponding week a year ago.

Tax Period Extended

The Treasury has extended from July 31 to September 20 the period during which corporations may pay their capital stock tax for the year ending June 30.

What Of Your Family's Future?

Today you may feel that your family will be well provided for, no matter what happens to you. But inevitably the future works changes. Family situations alter . . . financial conditions vary . . . problems arise which no man may foresee.

That is why wisdom dictates an experienced, understanding Executor and Trustee . . . one on whose guidance your family may rely as implicitly as they rely upon your own.

In fulfilling this all-important role, American Security offers you the permanence of a Trust Company . . . the understanding of a friend . . . mature and collective judgement of many trained minds . . . over 50 years' experience as Executor and Trustee. We invite you to discuss your estate problems with our Trust Officer.

Secretary's Wins Softball Clash

Secretary's Office, Forengn and Domestic Commerce, defeated the Census Bureau, 6 to 3, yesterday in Department of Commerce Soft Ball League, and won the second round and the right to meet the winner of the first round for the first-half championship.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Market Nine Is Industrial Winner, 9-3

Scoring four runs in the seventh inning, Center Market nine yesterday broke up a pitchers' duel between Hoff and Mellanos Cafe's Silverman and romped to a 9-3 triumph in the Washington Post-Industrial League game on the Ellipse. It was the Market's third straight triumph in the second half.

Hoff went the distance for the winners and allowed only seven hits. The winning spree came when Silverman walked four men in the seventh and handed out two scratch singles. Porter was finally called in to retire the side.

Nats Reach Boston for Five Games

ble-play balls throughout the West. Not until the last two games of the 12-game trip did he see his infield convert a ground ball into a double play. Second base, where Ellis Clary, Bob Repass and Jimmy Pofahl have been holding forth on alternate days, has been the greatest weakness. At shortstop Rookie Johnny Sullivan has been doing tolerably well.

The double victory over the Browns yesterday, in which the Nats pounded out 20 hits, was their first display of power on the entire Western trip, and Harris is forced to make allowances for the St. Louis pitching.

Trio Starts Hitting

The lone ray of sunshine in Harris' life during the past two weeks was provided by Jake Early, Jimmy Vernon and George Case who, all of a sudden, have started to hit. Early toured the West at a .410 pace with his 16 safe blows in 39 times at bat and Vernon, too, found his batting eye. He slugged out 17 hits in 52 appearances for a .327 average.

Case had a large series of it at St. Louis, where he opened each of the four games with a hit and slugged out 12 safeties in 20 times at bat. However, such as Repass, Pofahl, Clary and Spence were figuratively unable to beg or get the loan of an important hit in the West.

Tomorrow Harris will attempt to present a strong pitching front against the Red Sox, starting Sid Hudson and Early Wynn in the double-header. Buck Newsom is claiming a painfully sore left leg and says, "This may be the end of my career," but nobody believes him . . . Harris intended to bench Repass, but he will play him at second base at Boston, because the fellow hit well on the last trip here, banging one home run over the left field wall and hitting the fence several times . . . The Nats are only one game out of the cellar.

Toledo Downs Tigers by 2-1 In Exhibition

By the Associated Press

Toledo, Ohio, June 29.—Rookie Ray Parrott's two-run single in the eighth inning gave the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association a 2-to-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers of the American League tonight in an exhibition game witnessed by 7000 fans.

The Tigers held a 1-0 lead through the first seven innings due to Charlie Gehringer's single in the fifth which scored Pinchhitter Roger Cramer from second. In the eighth two walks and Dillinger's double set the stage for Parrott's game-deciding rap.

LaChappelle, Kulkovich in Grudge Bout

Another of those "grudge" matches, this time involving Maurice LaChappelle, the Frenchman, and Henry Kulkovich, the "Mad Russian," was booked yesterday for tomorrow night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

This LaChappelle-Kulkovich scrap comes by reason of a feud the boys started in two-man competition a couple of months ago. LaChappelle and Kulkovich always have been on opposite sides. Never has Kulkovich and his four different partners been able to win a decision.

The big flare-up, however, came last week when LaChappelle and John Melas, the Greek, whipped Kulkovich and Jim Austeri. Kulky became so enraged after the bout that he almost traded blows with the Frenchman in the dressing room.

Kulkovich challenged LaChappelle, and Joe Turner ordered a 30-minute singles match.

"Gentleman Lou" Plummer, the Baltimore villain, will engage Michele Leone, the Boston sensation, in the feature battle over the one-hour time limit route. Leone is the lad who hit stardom locally in a hurry, following last week's triumph over Milo Steinborn.

John Melas will return to meet Abe Yourist and Jim Austeri will tackle Fred Grobmier in other 30-minute matches.

Tommy O'Toole, the former boxer, takes on Tony Milanot in a semi-windup.

Tickets are on sale at Turners' Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest.

Braves Score Late To Beat Albany

Albany, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—The Albany Senators took an early five-run lead over the Boston Braves tonight, but wilted under a series of extra-base blows which gave the National Leaguers a 9-7 exhibition game victory.

Triples by Kluttz and Nanny Fernandez helped bring in four Boston runs in the fourth. Another long blow by Fernandez, a double, drove home two runs in the sixth and the Braves added another when Fernandez advanced on a fielder's choice, and scored on an infield out.

Charles Defeats Burley 2d Time

Pittsburgh, June 29 (AP).—Ezzard Charles, flashy 20-year-old Cincinnati Negro boxer, tonight jabbed and punched his way to a second decision over Charley Burley, slugging Negro of Minneapolis. Charles weighed 160 and Burley, 151.

The two staged another furious battle matching the one here a few weeks ago in which Charles, on the night before his graduation from high school, halted Burley's string of 26 straight victories. There were no knockdowns. A crowd of approximately 1200 fans paid a gross of $6843 to witness the bout.

Traveling World Series Frowned On

town. They would get tired after about a week and turn the thing into a farce, probably. You can't expect a bunch of athletes to stay at fever heat for weeks on end.

"What, for instance, if we settled the series in the clubs' home parks and then went on tour? Nobody would want to see them then. And what if we made it 8 out of 15 and one team clinched it after 10 games, say, in Columbus, Ohio. That would leave five more to be played out in the wide open spaces. Can you picture the fans breaking down the fences at Los Angeles to see the fifteenth contest? Neither can I."

Up to now, there is nothing official about the proposal. That is, officials of the various service charity funds have not asked that the series be extended for their benefit. It is doubtful that they will if they discuss it first with a few baseball men.

Jap Fliers Gun U. S. Airman Down in Sea

By Frank Hewlett

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Somewhere in Australia, June 29. For what seemed an eternity, five Japanese Zero pilots machine-gunned First Lieut. Donald Mitchell of Evanston, Ill., while he struggled helplessly in the ocean, but their aim was poor and today Mitchell told of the harrowing experience.

Mitchell was the only member of the crew who escaped when the plane crashed. He said he would have crashed with it if the pilot, Lieut. D. L. Rulison of Shreveport, La., had not helped him bail out by shoving him through the pilot's dome. Mitchell's only injury was a broken ankle.

"The Japs filled our ships with holes and finally a cannon burst wrecked an aileron and the plane went out of control," he said. "When Rulison saw that he couldn't right the plane he gave the order to jump. I pulled my seat back, grabbed my chute and tried to get out through the pilot's dome. But the plane was falling so fast I couldn't make it.

Push That Saved His Life

"Then Rulison gave me a shove and out I went. Something clipped me hard as I left the ship and I guess that is when my ankle was broken. I owe my life to that push Rulison gave me, with maybe an assist to those Japs who couldn't hit me after I was down."

Mitchell was less than 200 feet from the water when his chute opened and the Japanese began attacking him immediately.

"They sank the parachute and then they started pegging at me," he said. "I held onto my life jacket with one hand and tried to keep below the water as one after another they came in close, guns blazing. The bullets were hitting pretty close, too, but finally they ran out of ammunition and headed for home."

Michell started swimming toward the Australian mainland, but his right leg was useless and progress was slow. Finally the current washed him onto a rock. He rested an hour, then rolled back into the sea and slowly worked his way to a small island where he found a stream of fresh water. After two days on the island he struck out for the mainland.

Picked Up by Native in Canoe

"I had been in the water for what seemed hours, but had gone only a few hundred yards when a native in a canoe picked me up and took me to an Australian camp, where a plane picked me up and brought me to a hospital," he said.

Michell and his mates were returning from a raid on a Japanese base in New Guinea when the Zeros got on their tail. The plane had been damaged by a barrage but Rulison decided to slow up and try to protect another damaged plane.

"During the running fight of about 80 miles we never went faster than 200 miles an hour," he said. "Rulison could have bucked into the clouds and shaken off the fighters, but instead he gave his life trying to save the other fellows."

Michell was stationed in the Philippines when the war started, but his Flying Fortress was destroyed on the ground on the first day of the war. Later he was on Bataan briefly and for three months he fought in the Mindanao campaign before he was moved to Australia in April.

King Peter Impressed by Navy Strongholds

Norfolk, Va., June 29 (AP).—Peter II, 18-year-old King of Axis-occupied Yugoslavia, made a flying visit today to the Norfolk Naval Operating Base. His enthusiastic comment was, "if the Germans knew what you have here, they'd sign the peace tomorrow."

King Peter made a brief inspection tour of the base, the Navy Yard in Portsmouth, and other naval installations in the Hampton Roads area.

Wearing the white uniform of a lieutenant colonel in the Yugoslav Air Force, His Majesty was greeted at the air station by Rear Admiral Manley H. Simons, United States Navy, and other naval dignitaries.

After inspecting the air station, the boy monarch drove with Admiral Simons to the Navy Yard in Portsmouth, where he was greeted by Rear Admiral Felix X. Gygax, United States Navy, commandant of the yard, and taken on a tour conducted by Capt. B. V. McCandlish, United States Navy, captain of the yard.

Citizens' Ass'n Asks Control Of Rat Nuisance

Steps to control the "rat nuisance" in Washington, including strict enforcement of regulations requiring all garbage pails to be kept tightly covered, were asked of the Police and Health Departments last night in a resolution adopted by the Mid-City Citizens Association.

At its final session of the summer, at Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, the association also indorsed legislation to substitute the lethal gas chamber for the electric chair in the District and voted approval of a proposal whereby householders in residential zones could take in four or less boarders or roomers.

Shrinking Process Nothing New, Court Decides

The problem of shirt shrinking was before the United States Court of Appeals yesterday when the court upheld refusal of a patent on a shrinking process to Robert Seyfarth.

In a decision describing various methods of preshrinking fabrics, the appellate tribunal held that Seyfarth's process, called "Relyonsize," constituted only refinements of known methods.

"It seems clear," the court said, "that the process is highly useful."

However, the court went on, new features claimed by Seyfarth have been used before in other shrinking processes.

Arms Upheld For Auxiliary Police Officers

The case of an auxiliary policeman charged with carrying a concealed weapon—the first of its kind in Washington—was dismissed in Police Court yesterday on the ground that auxiliary police are entitled to the same exemption from the concealed weapon law as regular policeman.

Judge Walter J. Casey based his decision on a section of the District Code, which calls for exclusion from the statute all policeman and "other duly appointed law enforcement officers."

Defendant in the case was Ernest Thompson, 39-year-old Negro, of 136 U Street Northwest assigned to the Thirteenth Precinct.

The Police Department has been considering for some time the question of whether to arm auxiliary policemen, according to Supt. Edward J. Kelly. Major Kelly said yesterday he was in accord with a plan to furnish pistols to the auxiliary police, since their functions could be regarded as similar to those of special police, who are armed.

Thompson was arrested early Saturday morning at Twelfth and Rhode Island Avenue by Policeman William Nevin. Thompson was not on duty at the time, Nevin told the court.

Dean Benjamin, U. of Md., Takes Army Captaincy

Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the College of Education at the University of Maryland and a nationally known educator and author, has been granted leave of absence from the university to enter the Army as a captain, it was announced yesterday by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university.

BENJAMIN

Dr. Benjamin, a native of Oregon, received his doctorate at Stanford University in 1927. He became dean of education at Maryland in 1939.

Nation's Traffic Death Toll Drops 25%

The Nation's traffic death toll dropped 25 per cent in May—the sharpest slump for any month on record—it was reported by the National Safety Council in Chicago last night.

Traffic deaths dropped 26 per cent in May in the North Atlantic district, 31 per cent in the South Atlantic and North Central areas, 21 per cent in the South Central sector, and 27 per cent in the Pacific region. They went up 12 per cent in the Mountain States.

Flying Training Command Shifted To Fort Worth

Transfer of the headquarters of the Army Air Forces Flying Training Command from the War Department to Fort Worth, Tex., effective July 1, was announced yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Barton K. Yount, head of the flying training command, said about 60 officers and 75 civilian employes would shift to the new headquarters. Many clerks, typists and stenographers are being transferred to other units and replacements will be hired in Fort Worth.

House Weighs Fate of CCC In the Balance

Future operation of the Civilian Conservation Corps is expected to be decided today by a vote of the House, which earlier approved legislation extinguishing the agency starting tomorrow.

Conferees yesterday failed to adjust differences between the House-approved half-million dollars for liquidating the corps, and the Senate total, approved when Vice President Wallace broke a 32-32 tie, calling for more than 76 million dollars to continue its work.

Senate to Rush Action Today On Housing Bill

The Senate today is expected to pass the Defense Housing bill, kicked around for more than a year while war emergency workers jammed into available living quarters like so many sardines, which will give the National Housing Agency $32,500,000 for temporary Washington dwelling units.

The bill, as finally passed yesterday by the House, includes three million dollars for family units—an item upon which the Senate has been insistent. That is a far cry from the original Senate demand that 13 million dollars be allotted for that type construction, but observers believe it is enough to pacify the upper house.

Polish-Americans Honor Paderewski At Tomb Here

The Nation's prominent Polish-American citizens gathered in Arlington National Cemetery yesterday and paid homage to Ignace Jan Paderewski, who died in New York a year ago.

From as far west as Chicago, representatives of Polish patriotic organizations and the Polish Roman Catholic Union, came to the extraordinary memorial service held in the crypt erected in honor of the men who lost their lives in the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor.

Capt. Norrod To Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services with full military honors will be held at Arlington National Cemetery at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow for Capt. Albert B. Norrod, jr., 31, Army Air Force officer killed Sunday when his plane crashed near the Columbus (Miss.) Army Flying School.

NORROD

Captain Norrod had been a resident of the District since he moved here with his parents from Tennessee to work with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. His father, A. B Norrow, employe of the General Accounting Office, and his mother are the only survivors. They live at 707 Twentieth Street Northwest.

Staff Sergt. Robert S. Landred, of Camp Claibourne, La., passenger in the single-engined training plane piloted by Captain Norrow, also was killed in the crash. A board of inquiry will be appointed to investigate, Col. L. C. Mallory, the school's commanding officer, said yesterday.

Known as an excellent pilot and instructor, Captain Norrod began his Army career with a reserve second lieutenant's commission, obtained after R. O. T. C. training at the University of Tennessee, where he was graduated.

Four years ago he trained at Randolph Field, Tex., and was made a first lieutenant in the reserve. After being called to active duty two years later, Captain Norrow spent a year instructing Royal Air Force pilots at Cochran Field, Ga., and won his captaincy a few months later during an assignment which carried him through the South addressing college students on behalf of the Air Corps.

Author Who Built First Sahara Golf Course Dies at 72

Mineola, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Roy Norton, 72, author and adventurer who won fame in many fields but was proudest of building the first golf course in the Sahara Desert, died last night at the Meadowbrook Hospital here after a lingering illness.

As a friend of Rex Beach, Norton had followed the gold rush to Alaska, and penned "The Plunderers" in 1911 to tell of his experiences in the Far North.

He enjoyed telling friends how he built the first golf course to decorate the dry

Answers to Quiz

1. When North makes a jump suit take-out, a slam looks very likely to South, as he has much more than a minimum hand. His best call is four clubs, which helps show North the strength and distribution of his hand.

2. After receiving a double raise in a minor suit, the opening bidder usually shows a biddable four-card major suit, if he has one. Lacking a major suit, he says three no trump, unless he has unbalanced distribution and believes he can take eleven tricks. Although South's hand has unbalanced distribution in this situation, he would be wise to say three no trump, as his hand is very weak. It may be easier to take nine tricks at no trump, despite the singleton spade, than eleven at diamonds.

Listen! with Glynn

"Two is company" is the provocative title of the new musical series which you will hear over WJSV every Tuesday and Thursday night, starting tonight at 10:45 p. m. and starring the popular singer, Shannon Bolin, along with the organ music of a well known WJSVite known as Jimmy Smiley.

Those of you who have been listening to WJSV have heard Miss Bolin's rich contralto voice on any number of programs and those of you who are on the religious side have heard her as soloist at any number of church services. She's been around the station for something like two years.

For those who are interested in biographical details, Miss Bolin hails from South Dakota. She's a graduate of Dakota Wesleyan College and before she went into the singing business, at which she's now doing very well, she was a school teacher. Among the various shows in which you have heard her on WJSV have been "Our Town and Your Town," "Lady in White," "Song Styles," "Lullaby Lady" and, oddly enough, one titled "Songs by Shannon Bolin."

And, while we're on the subject of music, this should be as good a place as any to call your attention to the fact that one of the best known musicians of the day is to be heard on "The Voice of Broadway," with Dorothy Kilgallen, at 6:15 tonight, over WJSV and the CBS network.

That would be Irving Berlin, whose new musical show, "This Is the Army," done entirely by service men, is to have its debut on Broadway on July 4.

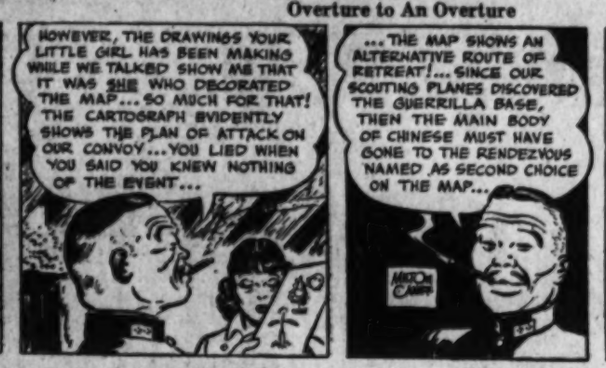
TERRY AND THE PIRATES

MADAME SANDHURST, WE OF JAPAN GREATLY ADMIRE CLEVERNESS... BY TELLING ME THAT THE MAP YOU CARRY WAS MUTILATED BY THE SCRIBBLINGS OF A MAD GUERRILLA CHIEF, YOU DELAYED MY INVESTIGATION FOR SOME TIME...

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY

Overture to An Overture



HOWEVER, THE DRAWINGS YOUR LITTLE GIRL HAS BEEN MAKING WHILE WE TALKED SHOW ME THAT IT WAS SHE WHO DECORATED THE MAP... SO MUCH FOR THAT! THE CARTOGRAPH EVIDENTLY SHOWS THE PLAN OF ATTACK ON OUR CONVOY... YOU LIED WHEN YOU SAID YOU KNEW NOTHING OF THE EVENT...
...THE MAP SHOWS AN ALTERNATIVE ROUTE OF RETREAT!... SINCE OUR SCOUTING PLANES DISCOVERED THE GUERRILLA BASE, THEN THE MAIN BODY OF CHINESE MUST HAVE GONE TO THE RENDEZVOUS NAMED AS SECOND CHOICE ON THE MAP...

BY MILTON CANIFF

SENTRY... HAVE THIS WIRELESS MESSAGE SENT TO THE COASTAL PATROL COMMAND! WHILE WE ARE WAITING FOR THE CONFIRMATION OF THE DISCOVERY OF THE GUERRILLAS' HIDING PLACE, MADAME SANDHURST AND I WILL PASS THE TIME MOST PLEASANTLY...
